SEES SCIENCE AS A MENACE

Civilization may be building the instruments with which it will commit suicide unless steps are taken to control the vast scientific knowledge which has developed in recent years, warned Dr. Arthur Braden, president of Transylvania college, Lexington, Ky., in an address before the Salem Lions club Thursday noon. Dr. Braden who is visiting the northwest in connection with the preaching mission, likened the advancement of science to the "riderless horse" of the Chicomacua battlefield. "Our problem isn't one of accumulation of more power," he declared, "but it is one of controlling the titanic machinery of civilization which we have developed. In other words what we need is a rider."

Sooner or later the world will destroy itself through its development of vast power of machinery, gas and instruments of war, Dr. Braden warned. He added that the need of this country, along with every other unit of civilization is some sort of spiritual regulation. Dr. Braden urged every person in attendance at today's luncheon to hear Dr. E. Stanley Jones who will deliver an address at the armory Friday night.

Virling K. Skelton pleaded guilty to attempted burglary of the dental offices of Dr. F. C. Jones on the evening of August 31 and was sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary by Judge L. H. McMahan this afternoon.

Palpably weak from two months in the hospital where he was taken after succumbing to shots from the revolver of Dr. Jones, Skelton almost stumbled his way into the judge's chambers this afternoon to take his sentence. Since going to the hospital he underwent two operations as result of the shooting.

Skelton endeavored to enter the dental offices by use of a thin sheet of steel which he inserted between the door jamb and the door in an effort to loosen the night latch. He was heard and Jones gave chase resulting in the shooting.

A Gold, which was found on Skelton's clothes following his arrest, he admitted came from the Nash dental offices in this city but he says another man named Elliott took the Gold from the Nash offices and Skelton says he did not enter those offices.
