Salmon River Cutoff Contractor Finishes Resurfacing Highway

Otis—The $238,000 contract for reconstructing and resurfacing 13 1/2 miles of the Salmon river road east of Otis junction with the Coast highway was finished Thursday and is to be hard surfaced under a contract to be let.

The Salmon river road project has employed since early summer an average of 125 men daily, 60 per cent from Lincoln county and 40 per cent from Tillamook, under the plan of the national bureau of public works. Sixteen trucks have been on the job almost constantly. Of crushed rock for the road, 90,000 tons have gone into the bottom course, 20,000 tons into the top course, 7,000 tons into leveling, and 32,500 tons into the stock piles for the paving job next spring.

Many of the men recruited locally for this highway job have lived with their families in temporary cabins built along the right-of-way and some have acquired land on which they have built more permanent homes in which they will continue to reside.

Contractor Hall with his staff of 16 men will leave the end of the week for Ashland where he has a contract for resurfacing several miles of the Pacific highway. A little later, with part of the crew, he will go to a job on The Dalles-Columbia highway south of Bend.

Something of the growing travel which this shortest road into Portland from the Coast highway carries is indicated in a check recently made by a citizen living on the "cut-off" who says: "I counted in an 18 minute wait at one end of the one way traffic controlled by the pilot car, 72 passenger cars (35 per cent from California), two Greyhound stages and five truck loads of logs (averaging 3,000 feet of lumber)." This was on a week day and at about 11 a. m. As is well known Saturday and Sunday afternoons the road carries almost solid processions of cars.

Prizes in the miscellaneous section were awarded as follows: Cloven, first prize; Marjorie Miller, second; Jo Ann Tweedie, veteran coming the greatest distance, George Olson from Minnesota; fastest veteran, William Uppendahl; tallest veteran, Frank Brennan; Christian veteran, Frank Hansen; prevaricator, Tom Mahoney; the speaker; oldest veteran, Wesley Loney, Civil war veteran who will be 88 November 23; homeliest veteran, E. Schell; oldest auto, J. Melvin Rinko; most beautiful auxiliary member, Mrs. O. H. Boje; auxiliary member, Leola Murray; cowboy on horse, Mrs. Romie, from Wisconsin; best bicycle, the Beck twins, Judson, Mrs. Nellie Muir and Mrs. Gladys Murray.

Prize winners in the pet section: Thanksgiving turkey, Babs Beck, Dorothy and Betty Miller; Red Cross dog and nurse, Norma June Black, cowboy on horse, Mrs. A. C. Miller; cowboy on horse, Esther Van Valenbergh; cow with wagon and doll, Red Cross nurse, Edwin Fremdahl; boys with calf, Warren Bacon, Ray Rich; boy with goat, Teddy Hanauka; boy with brown cow, Mrs. E. W. Schell; oldest auto, Peary Stone; honorable mention, Elsie Yoder and Ralph Wiedeker, Judson, Mrs. E. O. Hoyle, Mrs. A. Hoyle.

The prize for the best float went to the Woodburn fire department and for the best group or unit in line to the school boy patrol.

Prizes awarded for window displays went to Yates barber shop, first; Beck Clothing store, second; Olson jewelry store, third, and Evenden Drug company, fourth.

Money donated by merchants of Woodburn and Gervais was used to purchase show tickets for 150 children in the parade. Valuable prizes in merchandise were donated by the business men of Woodburn, Gervais and Hubbard. A splendid patriotic address was given at the armory after the parade by Thomas Mahoney, past commander of Portland Post No. 1. A cafeteria dinner was served at noon by the auxiliary to about 150 people.

A big dance at the armory in the evening closed the events of the day. H. M. Austin, commander of Woodburn post, wishes to extend the thanks of the post and auxiliary to all those who participated in the parade and to the merchants of Woodburn, Hubbard and Gervais for their liberal donation of prizes.
