

USED GLANDS OF DEAD MAN TO CURE ILLNESS

Baltimore, Nov. 10. (AP)—The story of how a dead man's glands were transplanted into another man to bring him from abnormality to normal life for two years was reported today before the Southern Medical association.

Dr. Hugh H. Young and William P. Dibusch of the Brady clinic of the Johns Hopkins hospital discussed the case, together with that of another man who apparently returned permanently to normal after a similar gland operation.

As described by Dr. Young, the first case was that of a 46-year-old man whose glands failed to secrete the powerful hormones which regulate the body's functions.

Shortly after he asked for an operation it was found that a healthy young man was to be executed at a nearby penitentiary within two weeks. There followed a remarkable experiment of medicine.

Arrangements were made and immediately following the execution the glands were removed and rushed to Dr. Young's clinic where they were quickly transplanted to the abnormal man.

As a result the individual changed almost immediately into a different man, the Johns Hopkins scientists declared.

Two years later he reported a gradual decline to his old self, however, apparently due to a failure of the transplanted glands to continue functioning, Dr. Young said. On the other hand a 22-year-old man who was also abnormal received a similar gland transplant at another clinic and has continued in a normal state for many years, he added, having graduated from college recently.

GEISHA GIRLS IN TOKYO WIN STRIKE

Tokyo, Nov. 10. (AP)—In the first strike of its kind on record, 340 pretty geisha of the Shibuya district have won their demands that restaurants reduce their charges for geisha entertainment.

The strike was unique in two ways—it was the first joint effort by geisha to dictate terms of employment and it was a request for decreased rather than increased charges.

The girls, gaily kimonoed but grimly determined, held out for a charge of 3 yen for two hours entertainment rather than the proposed rate of 4 yen. The higher figure, they argued, would drive patrons to other establishments.

After a few days of negotiations, during which the geisha paraded and plastered their headquarters with campaign signs, the restaurant men capitulated.

Patrons who had been employing the geisha were on the side of the girls, for the proposed higher rates would have come out of the customers' pockets.

The employers argued that the higher rate was necessary so that their overhead, risk of bad debts

FORESTRY MEN CALL SESSION

Representatives from the 20 national forests of Oregon and Washington gathered in Foresting Wednesday for a ten-day training session for administrative assistants of supervisors offices, according to the U. S. forest service.

This training meeting is conducted as part of the personnel management program of the forest service, for the purpose of improving the quality and quantity of employees' work and insuring a high standard of thoroughness and efficiency throughout the wide national forest area.

Administrative assistants have charge of the headquarters work of the national forests under the supervision of the forest supervisors, it is pointed out. They act as office managers, employment agents, supervise the work of purchasing agents, warehousemen and clerical workers and keep track of the forest service equipment.

The training course will include such subjects as office organization, inspection, public contact, personnel management and training and accounting. The meeting will be supervised by Assistant Regional Forester A. H. Hodgson who is in charge of forest service personnel management work in Oregon and Washington.

"We want to go the limit in meeting effectively the complex problems arising in this national forest area which plays so important a part in the economic life of the two states," said regional forester G. J. Buck. "All permanent employees of the forest service have passed competitive examinations and are under U. S. civil service appointments. In addition to the careful preparation and experience required for these permanent appointments, in service training courses given from time to time are directed specifically to the problems that are met by the men in their everyday work."
