One of the newest versions of the spring suit hat is this debonair "off-the-face" model brimmed and banded in snowy white pique to effect puritanical chic. The rolling sweep of the brim flatters the wearer and reveals interesting hairlines and coiffures. The back view at the left shows interest divided between the crisp whiteness of the large tailored bow and the sculptured crown. White on dark felts (as pictured) is stunning worn with suit, coat or cape costumes—and in pastels worn with sports attire, the hat is infinitely young and charming. It is a hat with the youthful flair every woman is seeking—even though she isn't admitting it to herself.
