SEATTLE GUILD PLANS BOYCOTT OF NEWSPAPER

Seattle, July 13 (AP)—Plans for what they termed "a widespread boycott" against the Seattle Star were being made today by members of the American Newspaper Guild who struck last week in an A. F. L.-C. I. O. jurisdictional dispute.

The guild made known its plans following a meeting with the management of the key paper in the Scripps League called by Charles W. Hope, regional director of the national labor relations board. Plans were disclosed also for a mass meeting to be held Friday night.

Guild spokesmen said the conference ended "when the management of the Star said 'we will consider until tomorrow noon whether we will reopen negotiations for settlement of the strike'."

The Star today prepared for another edition with a skeleton crew slightly augmented yesterday by two striking editorial workers returned to their jobs. E. W. Scripps, president of the Scripps League, and J. G. Scripps, his brother and secretary of the league, have been working on the copy desk since publication was resumed. They asserted they would delay as long as possible any augmentation of their crew pending further developments and invited the strikers to return to work without discrimination.

COURT BATTLE HOLY CAUSE TO ITS OPPONENTS

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Senator Bailey (D-N.C.) asserted today the administration's court bill was "concededly" an attempt to obtain for congress power that the supreme court said it did not have.

The tall North Carolinian, his voice still hoarse from two hours of speaking yesterday, earnestly told the senate:

"If you want more power, don't get it by legislation. There is only one source of power in America. The source of power in America is the people of America."

The former Baptist editor concluded with a warning that he and his associates in opposition to the bill were fighting a "holy cause."

"Very respectfully," he said, "let all take notice, those of us who oppose this measure are actuated by conviction. We know that our cause is a holy cause. You are dealing with devoted men."

Before the session started, Majority Leader Robinson (D-Ark.) conferred with a dozen proponents of the court bill on the strategy they would follow the next few days.

Subsequently, Senator Black (D-Ala.) announced he would resume tomorrow the administration fight for the bill. He will be the first spokesman for the measure since last Thursday.

Opposition leaders, declaring they had 44 certain votes and a half dozen others "within reach," said there was no need for a filibuster.

"We can win without it," commented Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) at the start of the fourth day's attack on the controversial measure.

Administration chiefs stuck by their contention that they had enough votes to pass the compromise bill. It authorizes appointment of one additional supreme court justice each year if members over 75 do not retire.

The opposition strategists predicted approval of a motion to send the bill back to the judiciary committee, which would sidetrack it at least for the remainder of this session. The motion probably will be made as soon as they have finished their case.

Kenneth Sternberg and Frederick Barnes were sentenced to two years each in the penitentiary this afternoon by Judge McMahon after leaving a trail of forged checks ranging in size from $14 to $39 passed in Salem, West Salem, Dallas, Oregon City and Independence. That more checks may appear was indicated by the fact that while the men were in court for sentence two additional checks appeared. Both men are said to be ex-convicts from New York state and one wanted there for parole violation. Most of the checks carried the forged name of Walter Lansing, captain of the state police, though some were signed by Charles T. Blake and by the name of Stein. Checks were passed principally at drug stores, clothing stores and one at the state liquor store at Dallas.

On July 9 they drew a check for $36 signing Walter Lansing's name to it. Lansing is captain of the state police. The check was made out against Ladd & Bush on a typewriter. It was earmarked for wages in full. The signature was almost an exact duplicate of the one Captain Lansing appends to legal documents. So much so in fact he admitted that he "would probably have cashed it himself" had not the words "for wages in full" been written on the check. The instrument was passed on a local merchant and came back from the bank marked "unable to locate the account."

In justice court this morning the pair entered pleas of guilty to forging charges and were bound over to the grand jury. Neither was able to furnish $500 bail and they were committed to jail.

CHINESE REPEL ATTACKERS IN SHARP BATTLE

to have launched a futile attack on Nanyuan itself at the same time the column from the north went into action.

At the height of the battle outside the walls Japanese and Korean citizens who reside in the district were said to have attempted to escape into the old Tartar city—the northern section—only to find the Chinese-men guard, near the U. S. embassy, barred to them.

The southern city was cut off completely from the Tartar city which contains the former imperial palace and the sacred area. All traffic was stopped and the populace confined to the houses.

Reports received in the Tartar city indicated the fighting was among the heaviest of the past week. Chinese troops were rushed from all points about the city to reinforce the guards at the southern gate.

The fighting in the new area of the Peiping battle zone south of the Yuh-Ting-Men sector of the city began shortly before noon. It was the latest outbreak of the hostilities which started last Wednesday midnight when Japanese troops on secret maneuvers clashed with the Chinese guard at the Marco Polo bridge over the Yung-Ting river, 10 miles west of Peiping.

A few minutes after noon shells started exploding over the city's walls, shaking the city. No check-up on damage within the Chinese quarter had been made.

The Japanese column, supported by 10 field guns, trench mortars, four tanks and seven armored cars, had attempted a flanking movement to surround the Chinese defenders of Peiping.

Without awaiting arrival of further Manchukuoan reinforcements, the Japanese directed their attack against the city from the east and the south.

The troops drove to the very shadow of the ancient capital's walls in motor trucks and under the protection of armored cars and Japanese infantrymen, supported by light field pieces.

Chinese troops succeeded in removing sections of railway track skirting the southern and eastern walls of Peiping to prevent the approach of Japanese armored trains.

The Chinese defenders, semi-official Chinese reports said, withstood the assault.

The Japanese attackers were forced to content themselves with establishing a virtual blockade of two sides of Peiping.

The Japanese also succeeded in cutting communication and supply lines between Peiping and Nanyuan barracks, immediately to the south. The two Chinese brigades stationed there were cut off from other units of the Chinese 29th route army, except by a southern and round-about route.

Peiping, China, July 13 (AP)—Five Japanese bombers, Chinese sources reported today, bombed the Nanyuan barracks and airdrome eight miles south of this ancient city.

The report was not at once confirmed. The aerial attack, according to the Chinese informants, occurred between three and four p.m. (2 and 3 a.m. EST.).

The report first became known here late in the day, delayed because telephone communications with Nanyuan were cut during today's fighting.

General Sung Chieh-Yuan's 29th route army forced a heavily supported detachment of Japanese troops to retreat toward their Fengtai base after they had been driven back on Peiping's southern wall in two hours of hand to hand fighting.

The big words of the Chinese infantry clashed in the sultry noon sunshine with the bayonets of the Japanese at the strategic railway bridge a half mile south of the walls.

The Japanese formed one of the advance units of a reported 10,000 troops being rushed to the North China battle area from Manchoukuo, the state Japan carved out of Chinese Manchuria.

Leach of Chinook, Wash., previously reported drowned when his empty boat was found in the Siuslaw bar Monday, was reported to be in Marshfield, seriously injured, today. DEFENDERS OF MADRID SCORE ON 3 FRONTS low over the insurgents' zig-zag line from Somorostro on the Santander highway to the Valmaseda sector.

Basque and Asturian troops defending Santander against Generalissimo Francisco Franco's north-west drive launched a counter-offensive under cover of the aerial protection.

Government forces also pressed their attack on the Zaragoza-Teruel front, east of Madrid. They were reported to have penetrated Albaracin, 23 miles west of Teruel, and to have reached the outskirts of Alfarpin, only 11 miles from Zaragoza.

Three insurgent bombers raided the port of Valencia, seat of the Spanish central government, dropping several big bombs along the waterfront.

Three persons were killed, several others injured and some buildings destroyed before government anti-aircraft batteries drove off the raiders. The squadron, apparently abandoning plans for a second attack after flying down the coast, turned toward the sea and disappeared.

Insurgent concentrations were held in their rearward positions on the Madrid front. Fleets of government aircraft, cutting off the insurgent defenses at Brunete and Villanueva Del Pardillo from reinforcements, strafed troops and trucks which sought shelter in groves of olive trees.

The display of air strength on the Basque front was reported to have stiffened resistance to Gen. Franco's almost undefended march toward Santander, last important government-held port on the Bay of Biscay.

HAZLETT TALKS CONSTITUTION

The genius of the constitution of the United States lies in its principles of compromise which implies a gradual growth as needs arise and which will work in practice, J. H. Hazlett, state corporation commissioner and former Hood River senator, told the Kiwanis club today noon. This, in turn, implies no dogmatism, he declared, and adaptation to the growing needs of the people is demanded by progress if the document is not to be as dead as the period in which it was written.

The constitution, the speaker declared, sets up the machinery by which ideals and unchanging principles of the declaration of independence may be attained with the supreme court the master mechanic by which adjustments and adaptations are made to meet changing conditions.

Hazlett cited numerous cases and interpretations in support of his position, pointing out that the duties of the supreme court are political to a certain extent. He said that when Chief Justice Marshall died, strict constitutionalists ruled the court with the result that the Missouri compromise was declared unconstitutional. In recent years the controversial section of the constitution has related to the duties of congress and its legislative powers. These, he said, should be governed by the general welfare.

TWO STATES TO USE SAME PROCEDURE

Washington and Oregon will use virtually the same procedure for examining applicants for motor vehicle operators' licenses, a letter today from Harry C. Huse, Washington director of licenses to Secretary of State Earl Snell indicated.

Huse said his department would use a reaction testing machine and a vision testing device modeled after those used in Oregon. Snell sent Oregon's testing devices to Huse, and they now are being used to train Washington state patrolmen in their operation.

PRINGLE CREEK CLARIFICATION HOPED FOR SOON

City Attorney Paul Hendricks has hopes that the polluted condition of Pringle creek, the waters of which have been muddied up by operations of the gravel plant recently installed by Harold Blake, road contractor, southeast of the city, will be cleared up in the near future. But he is relying more upon renewed assurances of Blake that every effort will be made to correct the condition, rather than any co-operation from the state game commission, the assistance of which he requested nearly two months ago.

Yesterday Blake informed Hendricks that a double dam had been built in the stream where it flows through the operations with the idea of catching silt, but that if this fails to bring the desired results he will install a settling basin.

Blake will be given a reasonable time to correct the condition before any further action is taken by the city, Hendricks said.

Meanwhile the city attorney has just about given up hope of any assistance from the game commission in abating the nuisance. He wrote to the commission of May 21, pointing out the fact that fish life in the stream was being threatened by the muddy condition. From that letter he received no answer.

He wrote to the commission again on July 1, advising it that unless some action was taken he proposed to take the matter up with Governor Martin.

That brought partial results and yesterday Hendricks received a letter from T. B. Weir, secretary of the game commission, in which Weir said he had taken the matter up with the attorney general and had been advised to find out if there are any fish in Pringle creek.

Apparently the commission had no knowledge of whether Pringle creek, which has been fished for years, had any fish in it and Weir asked Hendricks to determine that fact and inform him.

Hendricks said he would continue to push the matter in view of the fact that he has been informed that the gravel plant's operations are to be permanent and not confined to getting out material for the present Pacific highway paving job south of town, on which Blake is the contractor.

TELLS OF GROWTH OF RECREATION

Recreation is becoming more and more an integral part of government service due to the increase in leisure time in all walks of life. Glenn O. Grant, western representative of the National Recreation association declared in addressing a group of city officials and playground employees Tuesday noon. Everybody is becoming recreation conscious, although the movement has had a comparatively short growth, Grant said. He pointed out that the U. S. Chamber of Commerce had declared recreation was the fourth largest business in the country.

The speaker said cities are becoming to realize that business will be good where living conditions are desirable. Excellent recreational facilities go a long way toward making a contented and prosperous citizenry, he added.

Grant took occasion to praise the physical setup of Salem's recreational program and also lauded public spirited citizens and officials who have made the projects possible. However, he warned against "resting on your oars," saying that the recreation movement is growing rapidly and as a result changes are becoming almost of daily occurrence.
