DEVER PEOPLE PROTEST ROCK UPON HIGHWAY

Albany — Discussion of general plans of the county court for road work in Linn county grew out of the request of a delegation of nearly 30 residents of the Dever district who interviewed the court Thursday.

The Dever delegation complained that large round rock placed on roads in their territory this spring has remained loose on the surface, where it is causing abnormal wear and tear on cars, and that the condition of roads generally over the district is below standard.

Members of the court explained that their purpose in spreading the large rock was to provide the roads with adequate foundation for a later application of fine rock. It was brought out at the meeting that last winter's freezing weather played havoc with most of the older roadbeds.

The audience ended when the court agreed to look the situation over to ascertain to what extent maintainers might be able to remedy the Dever situation and to what extent resurfacing could be done now.

ELECTRIC LINE IMPROVEMENTS AT SILVERTON

Silverton—Reliability of electric service in Silverton will be improved and insured to a considerable extent when the Portland General Electric company completes its changes in the transmission line supplying service to Silverton and constructs a new sub-station at James and McClaine streets, as S. P. Rose, district manager of the company, has announced will be done in the near future.

Silverton is now being supplied with electric service through a branch line from the transmission line which extends from the hydro-electric power plant at Estacada through Mt. Angel and Bethany to Salem. The above mentioned branch line connects with the main line at Bethany.

The main line is now to be extended from Bethany into Silverton to the new sub-station site at James and McClaine streets and then extend southwest on the road paralleling the Southern Pacific tracks to the Brush Creek school, where it will connect with the present main transmission line again. The section of the present main line which now extends from Bethany around the Bethany cemetery and over to the Brush Creek school will then be removed.

This change in the transmission line connections will give Silverton two independent sources of electric service, one through the line which will then extend from the Estacada power house to Silverton by Bethany and the other which will extend from Salem to Silverton by the Brush Creek school.

The transformers and other equipment to be installed in the new sub-station at James and McClaine streets will increase the Silverton sub-station capacity 100 per cent as another 600 kilowatt transformer of the same capacity as the existing transformer at the present sub-station will be installed in the new sub-station.

This will not only provide additional capacity when needed but will also insure continuity of service to the extent of 600 kilowatts if one of the transformers should burn out. At present Silverton service is dependent upon the one 600 kilowatt transformer in the present sub-station.

The cost of making the changes in the transmission line is estimated to be $4,100. The cost of the new sub-station, including the new 600 kilowatt transformer is $11,500, making a total of $15,600 to be spent for the above mentioned improvements to the electrical service in Silverton.

Mr. Rose says that the management of the company believes this additional investment is justified by the increasing magnitude and importance of the Silverton electrical load in Silverton and vicinity.
