

Find 4 Daggers In Folsom Cells After Break

Folsom State Prison, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP)—Four daggers were found in convicts' cells today during an investigation of Sunday's outbreak in which three men were killed and eight wounded.

Joseph Whelan, secretary to Warden Clarence Larkin—who was stabbed 12 times by rioting prisoners and may die—reported discovery of the homemade knives, but said he did not believe the owners were implicated in the plot of seven inmates to escape.

Condition of Warden Larkin and Captain of the Guards William Ryan, both of whom were attacked while held as hostages by the seven criminals, was described today as "extremely serious."

The Sacramento county grand jury will convene tomorrow to consider indictments against surviving convict rioters. District Attorney Otis Babcock said indictments and convictions "are almost certain" and the five men probably will be sentenced to die in California's new lethal gas chamber.

Two of the seven conspirators, Clyde Stevens and Bennie Kucharaki, were killed by guards' bullets. Guard H. E. Martin, who rushed to aid Larkin and Ryan in their fight with the convicts, was slain by knife thrusts.

Dr. Proctor W. Day, completing an examination of the critically injured warden about 10:30 said an infection has set in but as yet it is not out of hand and he has hopes of being able to control it.

Dr. C. H. McDonald who joined in attending Warden Larkin was less optimistic.

"I am afraid the situation is very, very bad," he said.

The warden's most dangerous wound of the several he received in hand to hand fighting with convicts who had taken him and Captain of the Guard W. J. Ryan hostages, was an abdominal knife thrust which punctured his liver.

He was operated on at the prison emergency hospital Sunday and brought to Yester hospital here by ambulance yesterday.

Capt. Ryan's condition was regarded as even more critical. The hospital reported he had grown weaker through the night and appeared to be sinking. Ryan received knife wounds in his lungs.

Deer Season Fails To Get Good Start

Klamath Falls, Sept. 21 (AP)—Despite favorable weather conditions following a drenching rain and a record number of red hails in the woods, the deer season apparently got off to an inauspicious start in Klamath county yesterday.

Only three or four hunters had returned to Klamath Falls with their bags by 2:30 this afternoon in contrast to the customary first day parade of successful nimrods.

Cowboys of Northwest Are Organized

Pendleton, Ore., Sept. 21 (AP)—In the wake of the Pendleton Round-Up, which was preceded by a teapottemper over professional cowboy demands, came announcement yesterday that ranch and range hands of the northwest have organized a professional organization known as the Northwest Cowboys' Association, with headquarters in Pendleton. Its purpose, according to Tony Vey of Pendleton, president, is "fair and square dealing with rodeo managements throughout northwest states."

Organization of the group was perfected during the three-day round-up which ended here Saturday.

Besides Vey, well known round-up performers, other officers are Herb Owens of Kennewick, Wash., vice-president, and C. C. Cole of Cooper, Wash., secretary-treasurer.

"This is a professional organization of ranch and range boys, and we hope to have members throughout all of the northwest states," Vey said. "Our purpose is fair and square dealing with rodeo managements."

"We'll not interfere with management of round-up shows, and we'll let them appoint their own judges and name their own arena men."

He said the new organization already has 70 members.

Vey declared that the cowboys' association "is not against the Turtles," professional organization whose members were barred from the Pendleton Round-Up. He did point out, however, that policies of the new organization are different from those of the "Turtles."

At a meeting here later, announcement of directors will be made. These field men were named: Ben Boone of Seattle, Bill Swigler of Umatilla, Ore., Jock French of Long Creek, Ore., Pink Boylen of Pendleton, Fay Le Grow of Athena, Ore., Harry Anderson, president of the Ellensburg, Wash., rodeo, Johnny Shores of Ellensburg and Frank Woods of Yakima, Wash.

Service Worker Becomes Sleuth

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP)—A woman social worker turned detective yesterday and found a young mother accused of abandoning her two-week-old baby girl in a cemetery.

Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle identified the mother as Mrs. Blanche Cassello, 21, a WPA clerk.

She told him, he said, her estranged husband, Samuel, persuaded her to leave the mite in a graveyard in suburban Hillside because "I'd be unable to support it."

The infant, hungry but apparently unharmed, was recovered Sunday after she had lain under a hedge for 24 hours with only a blanket and a shopping bag to protect her against the chill winds.

The baby was taken to St. Vincent's orphanage, where the director of social welfare, Miss Bernadine Healey, examined county birth records. She obtained the names and addresses of recent parents and visited each home. After she questioned Mrs. Cassello she called police. At the prosecutor's office Mrs. Cassello said her husband accompanied her to the cemetery.

"Oh, the young matron sobbed, 'I'm so sorry.'"

Search for Cassello was ordered of a broad development program calling for eight more dams in the Columbia and Snake rivers, at an estimated total cost of $183,000,000.

Four dams would be built in the Columbia and four in the Snake river.

Million Dollar WPA Dam Collapses

Kansas City, Kan., Sept. 21 (AP)—The new $1,000,000 Wyandotte county dam was destroyed after a collapse of the center section of the dirt filled embankment.

The dam, a WPA project five miles north of here was 1400 feet long and 80 feet high. Eight hundred feet of the center section sank some 50 feet while subsequent cave-ins lowered most of the rest.

The Wyandotte county lake was designed as a public recreation project. The dam was supposed to form a lake 33 acres in area. It was started in December, 1935, and would have been finished in two weeks.

Huge cracks, some of them two feet wide, suddenly appeared along the top of the dam. There were low rumblings, and as the structure dropped, a cloud of dust arose that blinded spectators. No one was injured, although two carloads of sightseers and a night watchman narrowly escaped being trapped in the "earthquake."

Engineers said quicksand deposits apparently were responsible for the collapse.

Ballot Titles Prepared Monday

Ballot titles for a proposed initiative measure and three constitutional amendments, to be voted upon at the November, 1938, general election, were prepared Monday by Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle.

The measure would require all marriage license applicants to be examined and certified showing freedom from venereal diseases, epilepsy, feeble-mindedness, insanity, drug addiction or chronic alcoholism.

A proposed constitutional amendment would provide for payment of legislators of 88 days for 50 days maximum session and 10 cents travel mileage.

Another amendment would give the governor 20 days after the legislature, instead of five, to consider legislative bills.

The third amendment would repeal bank stockholders individual liability to depositors to amount of par value of his stock.

Because he lost his job two days before his marriage, W. E. Notham has sued the Commercial Bank of Scotland, Ltd., of Glasgow, Scotland, where he had been employed as clerk.

Registration of the male portion of this year's freshman class was progressing satisfactorily at Willamette university, according to reports from the office of the registrar. While the registration of men was in progress during the forenoon, the women were given physical examinations. The program was reversed during the afternoon. Yesterday's enrollment of 270 freshmen was expected to be exceeded by actual registrations before the week is over.

Wednesday upper classmen will register. This group will include some 60 transfer students, who are bringing their credentials to Willamette from many institutions throughout the northwest and elsewhere.

A reception to the first year group was tendered by the faculty at Lausanne hall last night. The first assembly was held Monday afternoon. President Baxter in greeting the freshmen in official capacity for the first time, advised them to assume more responsibilities in order to prepare the way to becoming useful citizens. He pointed out the advantages of the smaller institution and enumerated a number of persons holding positions high in official life who graduated from the school.

The assembly was presided over by Prof. Herman Clark who reviewed the freshman week calendar. Dean Frank Erickson admonished members of the incoming class to form habits of study, responsibility and dependability. Advice concerning rush week on the campus were detailed by Dr. Robert Gatke.

Appeal Will Be Made From Report

The Dalles, Ore., Sept. 21 (AP)—The Inland Empire Waterways association announced it will file an appeal from the decision of district army engineers that further development of the upper Columbia and Snake rivers is not now economically justified.

The case will be carried to the board of engineers at Washington, D. C. The announcement followed a decision to prepare briefs in an effort to win congressional approval.
