

Motion by IEU Brings Denial By Harry Hazel

Portland, Oct. 21 (AP)—Harry Hazel, national labor relations board examiner, denied Wednesday a motion by counsel for the Industrial Employees' Union, Inc., for dismissal of labor board charges against the IEU in the case in which the organization is named respondent along with three northwest lumber companies and an organization of operators.

Counsel for the labor board allege the IEU to be a "company union" and ineligible as a bargaining agency for employees under the Wagner act.

Nicholas Jauregui, attorney for the IEU, contended the complaint contained no charge against the organization, but merely stated it had been coerced by employers.

"If there has been coercion, we want it removed, but we deny there has been," Jauregui said.

Hazel, over the objection of counsel for the respondents, granted permission to intervene in the hearing to Ben Anderson, representative of the CIO sawmill union.

Anderson contended some employees of the defendant companies desired to join the CIO but feared "economic pressure."

"In other words, the counsel is not here to protect any interest he has, but trying to develop an interest to protect," protested G. D. Randall, attorney for the McGoldrick Lumber company of Spokane, one of the respondent companies.

Others named in the complaint are the C. D. Johnson Lumber company of Toledo, Potlatch Foresta, Inc. of Lewiston and the Willamette Valley Lumber Operators' association.
