Stock Prices Continue to Score Advance

New York, Oct. 21 (U.P.)—The stock market absorbed large amounts of profit-taking today and continued its advance for the third successive session, with volume under yesterday's 4,340,000 shares.

The list advanced in the first hour and again in the last. Between these periods, price recessions predominated with steel shares weak, notable U. S. Steel. Railroad issues led a late recovery on hopes for an early I. C. C. decision raising freight rates. Prices were at the worst at midday and at the best in the last hour. Trading lightened on declines and picked up on rallies.

Several favorable news items had effect, in contrast with the recent tendency to ignore them. Car loadings showed increases. Construction and retail sales gained. Several favorable corporation reports were issued.

Unfavorable factors had little effect. One of them, the weekly Dun and Bradstreet business activity index, showed a decline to the lowest level since June 24, 1936.

Wall Street today felt the steel industry would point the way for the stock market's course over the next few weeks. Heavy steel centers reported a steadier pace than recently when curtailment was particularly drastic.

In addition to anticipation of a fright rate increase for the railroads, traders looked for upward adjustment of passenger rates. New York Central touched 19¾ early and toward the close was around 22 for a gain of more than 2 points.

Union Pacific jumped to 99 from a low of 95, which was off 3¼ points. Atchison rose 3 points from its low to 45, up 1¾ net.

United States Steel touched 58⅝ off 3¼, but turned the loss into a small net gain. Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Bethlehem and Republic were up fractions to more than a point.

Dow Jones closing averages: Industrial, 135.48, up 0.92; railroad 35.03, up 26.38; utility 22.43, up 0.78.

Transactions approximated 3,640,000 shares compared with 4,340,000 shares yesterday. Curb transactions approximated 620,000 shares compared with 837,000 shares yesterday.

Livestock Cures Bring Warning

The state department of agriculture issued a warning today to farmers against buying livestock remedies from strangers.

They said one man is operating over the state, selling a "cure-all" remedy for poultry. He makes a physical examination of the birds, finds something wrong with them, and then sells his remedy, which the department said wouldn't cure anything.

The department pointed out that there is no law against selling the remedies, but urged farmers interested to press for passage of such an act.

10,000 Cases Carrot Pack Started by Jory

The Jory Packing company at Liberty started a carrot pack yesterday which it is expected will last for about three weeks. The pack will not be overly large, from 8,000 to 10,000 cases, will be put up in Nos. 2's and 10's, the carrots being diced. The carrots are coming from the sandy bottoms in the Jefferson district and are reported of fine quality.

The Jory Packing company this year completed one of the most interesting vegetable packs yet attempted here in the shape of frozen beans and corn now in storage at the Terminal Ice & Storage company and ready for shipment to the east where it already has been sold.

Roland Jory, manager of the cannery, believes that the vegetable pack is destined to be the main production in this section and in a few years will eclipse the fruit pack which now leads the field by a heavy margin.

Just such packs as the one put up at his plant this year, however, is the forerunner of what can be done with vegetables in this section and the demand indicates that the production could go to great limits.

The pack in question is a frozen pack of Blue Lake beans secured from the Clear-Hill Co-operative at West Stayton and of Golden Cross corn coming mainly from patches grown by Alderman & Son near Dayton and Jake Gilmore and Charley Hunt near Jefferson.

Both beans and corn are packed in cardboard cartons, the beans and corn being frozen solid and maintained in that condition until ready for use. The corn pack in the main is made up of whole kernels cut from the cob although some of the corn was packed directly on the cob. The resultant pack is something very pretty to look at and very edible when prepared, and what is of more importance to this section, very attractive to buyers and consumers.

"I look for this form of pack to be one of the most important in this section," stated Jory, and many others who keep in close touch with food production developments here agree with him.

Polk County Gets Several Meetings

Dallas—As part of a series of some 300 meetings planned for this winter by members of the extension service of the Oregon State college, Polk county has been scheduled for several.

County Agent W. C. Leth states that meetings to be held for this county will be on such subjects as the 1938 agricultural conservation program, a Bang's disease hearing, county Grange conference, two dairy meetings, a general economic conference and other meetings. The tentative dates for a number of the meetings have been set and are as follows: November 13 at Salem, Bang's disease hearing for Marion and Polk counties; November 16, meeting to explain details of the 1938 agricultural conservation program for community committeemen only; December 7 and 21, dairy problems meetings; December 10, soils resources meeting; January 6, small fruits meeting, and January 25, county economic conference.

In several of these meetings various specialists from the college will assist him in conducting them, states Mr. Leth. From time to time complete announcements will be made concerning each of the above meetings.

Chandler Cattle Capture Awards

Kansas City, Oct. 20 (AP)—Hereford cattle exhibited by Herbert Chandler, Baker, Ore., held three awards in the American Royal Livestock show here today.

Chandler's entries placed third in the Hereford heifers calved between January 1 and April 30, 1936; second in the Hereford heifers calved between May 1 and August 31, 1936, and first in the Hereford cows calved between January 1 and April 30, 1935.

Killing Advised To Get Indemnity

The department of agriculture urged farmers to kill their cows immediately if they are affected with Bang's disease so the farmers may obtain the federal indemnity, which may be discontinued after next July 1.

The department is holding hearings over the state to determine the future of the state's program.

Predict Increase In Lamb Crop

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The agriculture department forecast today an increase in market supplies of fed lambs and a decrease in prices for the season, December through April.

The report predicted:

Corn belt states will increase the number of lambs fed this fall and winter to more than offset a decrease in western states.

The price of slaughter lambs in December probably will be higher than a year earlier, but the seasonal advance from January to April will be less than for the same months this year.

A probable weaker demand for meats and wools will lower the average price for the coming season, compared with last season.

Total supplies of sheep and lambs for the December-April period will be no larger than in 1936-37.

The report said lamb prices strengthened early this month after a decline in September, with prices at Chicago for the week ending October 16, $1.50 a hundredweight higher than a year earlier.

Farmers See Test of Corn

Aurora — Over 100 Clackamas county farmers viewed the results of a corn variety trial on the Phil Wiegand farm near Aurora Sunday and Monday. The farmers were fully convinced that hybrid corn will play an important part in Willamette valley agriculture.

Under direction of Clackamas County Agent J. J. Inskeep, more than 50 varieties of corn, including local, were planted in separate tracts on the Wiegand farm, to carry out further a similar trial made last year. Last week the corn was harvested and the results tabulated.

The hybrid varieties mature earlier, the stalks stand better, the foliage greener, when the corn is mature, and more silage is produced than on the open-pollinated varieties, the trials show.

All of the hybrid varieties produced more than 60 pounds of corn per 25 hills.

Corn from the W. H. Jackson farm, Canby, was the leading local variety. This corn produced 83.5 pounds on 25 hills.

The corn from each variety will be dried, weighed and re-checked before definite results of the test are announced.

Monoxide Victims Revived by Milk

Pendleton, Oct. 21 (AP)—Joe Miller, service station owner at Mission near here, had heard that cold sweet milk administered to carbon monoxide victims will bring them around in a hurry. Today he is satisfied with the method—at least, it brought a woman and a child out of unconscious condition.

Yesterday a family clattered up to Miller's station in an ancient model car. The father, driving, was not affected by exhaust gas from the motor, which had rolled into the car, but his wife and one child had lost consciousness. Two other children were made ill. A fourth suffered no ill effects.

The mother was unconscious for half an hour and the daughter for an hour, recovering, Miller said, after he had administered the milk.

Miller did not learn the name of the family which was driving to La Grande from St. Marie's Idaho.

Italy Thanked By Eden for Co-operation

The foreign secretary declared both Italy and Germany had "substantially modified their views" on the relation of withdrawal of volunteers from Spain and the granting of belligerent rights to the Spanish combatants.

He added the Italians had proposed the "acceptable plan" for deciding on the proportions of withdrawal of foreign volunteers from either army on the basis of figures to be submitted by a commission to be sent to Spain.

Turning to the far eastern situation, Eden pledged Britain's determination to "do everything" in its power to insure success" of the Nov. 30 nine-power conference in Brussels which will attempt to mediate the Chinese-Japanese war. He said Italy would send a delegation and that French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos would represent France.

Eden said British rearmament had no "overt or latent strains of revenge, either in the Mediterranean or anywhere else," but he added:

"Our position in the Mediterranean is simply this—we mean to maintain the right of way on this main arterial road. We are justified in expecting such a right of way should be unchallenged.

"We have never asked and we do not ask today that the right of way should be exclusive."

Then he promised "our wholehearted cooperation" in the general Mediterranean friendship scheme "on condition this problem of non-intervention in Spain is resolved."

Sheep Nomads Out of Luck

Burns, Oct. 21 (AP)—F. R. Carpenter of Washington, D. C., Taylor grazing act administrator, told 400 eastern Oregon stockmen yesterday "nomad" sheepmen will receive no recognition.

Carpenter, who described the nomad as a "man with a band of sheep and a frying pan," added:

"There is no longer a place for such operators in American agriculture. They are on the way out and the sooner they understand it, the better it will be for all concerned."

The rangemen favored the adoption of permanent rules to govern long time permits under the act on federally-owned range lands. Regulations adopted in other sections were discussed by Carpenter and Theodore A. Walters, first assistant secretary of the interior.

Those attending included Walter M. Pierce of La Grande, second district congressman, former U. S. Senator Robert N. Stanfield, and representatives of the forest service and the state land board.

bring their cups along and show them to the populace.

Irl McSherry says he's figured out that if a car drives up to an intersection just as a red light flashes on it gives the driver just exactly the right time to fill and light his pipe before the green light shows up. That may depend somewhat on what kind of tobacco and matches are used.

A delegation from the Salem high school student body waited on us last night and advised there were plans afoot to douse the Statesman sports columnist in the creek when he shows up for the Salem-McMinnville game tonight. Ire has been aroused about remarks to the effect that the student body doesn't support the team, when as a matter of fact the student body never has shown up in such numbers as this year, completely filling the old grandstand at every game. Now, as to failure of the general Salem populace to support high school football games we could say things that would make said populace dump us in the creek.

Bill Burghardt was clumping along in the rough at the Salem Golf club the other day, wheezing a bit and taking his time. John Farrar came up behind him and whispered in his ear, "You know the matter with use two guys, Bill. It's too many winters and too many summers."

The Salem Breakfast club is going to make another attempt to function again tomorrow morning which may be the last unless the crowd turns out. We've had at least two dozen of the boys tell us in the last week the only reason they haven't turned out is because they didn't know the club had started functioning again. If they're not there tomorrow we'll know it's either because they don't want to come, or they don't read this here column. It's at the Quelle tomorrow morning because the doctors have taken over the Marion hotel.

news Bay district, are getting no end of mash letters these days. But A. C. Thane, just back from the boom town, warns women who believe the miners are fabulously rich that all is not platinum that glitters.

Even Pete Wold, a freighter captain, has received several proposals. His wife enjoys them very much, Thane said.

Kitchy Kitchy

Los Angeles—Zoo attendants teased Rufus, 680-pound African lion, into getting well.

Rufus was critically ill from arsenic poisoning. He refused to eat. Zoo veterinarians poked iron bars at him until he angrily lashed at a chunk of beef. They substituted a diet of two raw eggs in a pint of goat's milk and Rufus thrived.

Soon he'll be ready for his usual 15 pounds of raw beef daily.

His Good Turn

Des Moines, Iowa—When Alexander Starcevich, 49, and Mrs. Mildred Sheehan, 34, applied for a marriage license here, Frank Sheehan, Mrs. Sheehan's divorced husband, signed the paper as a witness.

"I just wanted to help them," he explained.

Time to Buy Babson Says

London, Oct. 21 (U.P.)—Now is the time to purchase selected American equities, war or no war, Roger W. Babson, noted American economist, advised British investors yesterday.

In a message in the financial news he warned British investors not to be panicky regarding the United States provided they own their shares outright in companies that have not been attacked by labor difficulties—which he termed "Lewisly."

"I am very glad to see this break because labor has become most unruly," Babson said, "on the assumption that there were no limits to profits while labor leaders themselves were gambling in the stock market and even employes felt that Wall street was a one-way street with stocks going up.

"This bear is bringing everyone to his senses and should be most beneficial to actual owners of American industrials. With exception of four railroads, rail shares are the most vulnerable and the least attractive.

"The most attractive issues are chemicals and oils with motors about half way. . . . In fact it would not be surprising if motors do not return to their former highs. But I believe that chemicals, oils and some steels will see higher prices next year than this.

"English investors must not forget that the whole world is headed for inflation which should materially benefit companies owning large natural resources."

Oscar B. Marshall

Silverton—Oscar B. Marshall, 73, passed away Wednesday afternoon at an Oregon City hospital following a heart attack. He suffered paralysis of the throat during April while visiting at the coast and had been in ill health since then. Marshall was born near Albany, one of a family of eleven children. His parents, Arthur G. and Josephine Marshall, were pioneers to Linn county in 1852 from Illinois. He attended Christian college at Monmouth and was well known as an athlete. He had resided in Minnesota for a number of years, where he married. The family had lived near Albany for the past 18 years. His wife, Luella, and one daughter, Mildred, passed away several years ago. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. R. E. Houston of Albany and Mrs. F. M. Powell of Silverton, with whom Marshall made his home. Funeral announcements will be made later from the Fortmiller mortuary of Albany.

Win Smashing Victories on Shansi Front

positions are the keys to all northwestern China.

At some points the Chinese have wiped out detachments of Japanese protecting the dangerously long lines of communication to main bases.

Thousands of Chinese wounded are pouring through field headquarters toward Taiyuan.

Battlefields are strewn with dead. Chinese commanders assert that, on the Japanese side, many "white" or czarist Russians are among the dead but I have not personally confirmed this.

The 120th division of the Chinese 8th route army, the former Chinese communist army, has marched to Ningpu, northwest of Yuanping, and there captured Nanhualhwa, annihilating a Japanese force of considerable size, it is asserted, in addition to killing between 300 and 400 Japanese caught and surrounded in a valley in the mountains.

One hundred thousand Chinese troops never before reported in action, are pounding the main Japanese force, which consists of nearly two divisions, in the area. These men are under a famous general—"Hundred Victory" Wei. He is General Wei Liu-Hang, who earned his title by leading his battle scarred Honan and Anhwei province veterans to some 100 victories in the long civil wars.

The 8th army veterans have cut through the mountains north of the Yenmen pass, torn up roads and forced Japanese reinforcements in 100 trucks to retire toward Tatung.

This has left the main Japanese force in a most dangerous position, surrounded by Chinese.

Men of the 8th route army also have severed the main Tatung-Yuanping road, while the easterly line of communication toward Kalgan also has been cut, it is asserted, by the Chinese capture of the Pinghsin pass near the great wall in eastern Shansi. This has forced some Japanese cavalry to retreat from Shansi province into Hopei province.

New Supply of Tannin Offered

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP) — The bark of the western hemlock, growing in the forests of Oregon, Washington, Alaska, Idaho and Montana, offers the leather industry a new supply of tannin, a vegetable product used in tanning heavy leathers, agriculture department chemists said today.
