

Ban Gasoline On Ferries With Passengers

The county court is in receipt of a second notification from the federal government in regard to operations of its ferries, especially as to the Independence ferry, in which a ruling of the department of commerce is referred to forbidding transportation of gasoline or similar inflammable materials on ferry boats when passengers are aboard. The ruling permits the gasoline to be carried when there are no passengers.

Ernie Johns, district manager for the Standard Oil company, who was before the court today and shown the ruling, stated that the only inter county ferry used by the gasoline trucks is the Independence ferry and that as far as he knows only three companies use that, the Standard, Union and Shell. He says the Standard has some accounts among farmers across the river from Independence who prefer to buy from the Independence plant. He says the trucks make only about one trip a week and it could be arranged that the ferry make a special trip for these trucks without passengers aboard.

It is likely such an arrangement will be made and that the Buena Vista and Wheatland ferries will be closed to gasoline trucks altogether as they are scarcely if ever used for that purpose, it was stated.

The county court also went to McMinnville today in regard to other ferry matters, to confer with the court there especially as to whether the Wheatland ferry shall be closed after 10 o'clock to for-hire traffic. The government has advised if the for-hire traffic is continued the counties must submit to navigation rulings in regard to pilots, inspection and other matters. The court also will probably confer as to winter approaches for the Wheatland ferry.

No Ruling on Janitor Question

Attorney General L. H. Van Winkle declined to rule today upon the dismissal of several janitors of school district No. 1, Portland. An opinion was requested by Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction, in behalf of Roy E. Cannon, Multnomah county school superintendent.

The individuals, contending their discharge was a violation of civil service laws, brought suit in Multnomah county circuit court to prevent their dismissal.

Van Winkle said he would not rule on the legality of the discharge since the matter was before the court.

The men were discharged before a 1937 law, providing civil service for custodians in school districts of more than 100,000 population, went into effect.

Traffic Mishaps In State Grow

Oregon showed a 2.6 per cent traffic accident increase in September over a year ago, while Portland had 81 fewer accidents than in September, 1936, Secretary of State Earl Snell said today.

Thirty-two persons died in traffic accidents last month, three more than August and two more than September, 1936.

"The September reports," Snell said, "indicate the virtual stopping in acceleration of the accident rate. During the first four months this year Oregon accidents were leaping ahead of last year's record, the rate of increase being 32 per cent. We've halted this increase and can now turn our attention to bringing about an actual reduction in the number of accidents."

He urged drivers to reduce their speed during bad weather and not to drive while fatigued.

School Boards Control Buildings

School boards have authority to deny the use of school buildings to any organization, Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle ruled today for Rex Putnam, state school superintendent.

Roy E. Cannon, Multnomah county school superintendent, asked Putnam whether the school board had authority to grant a group of persons permission to hold a meeting in a school building to raise funds for Americans fighting in the Spanish civil war.

"A school board," Van Winkle said, "shall have the power and authority to refuse the use of a school house whenever in its judgment it seems inadvisable to permit the use of such a school house for any of the purposes mentioned in the statute relating to civic centers."
