The convention got under way at 2:30 o'clock with individual meetings of the posts and auxiliaries in the Legion hall. At 6:30, a turkey banquet was served in the Lebanon hotel, an event attended by approximately 150 Legionnaires, their wives and friends. The group was given a welcome by Mayor Joel C. Booth, and local talent contributed a program of entertainment.

Following the banquet, the two units held a joint meeting in the Legion hall. This was open to the public.
