ROOM AND BOARD . . . . . By Gene Ahern

DARE TO DREAM BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters: Neida, a beautiful, courageous, girl, is running a lettuce farm to make her personal dreams come true. Bill, a lapsed, young lettuce farmer, clashes frequently with Neida. Reck, blond, gay and wealthy, makes a big play for Neida. Mrs. Reckless, Reck's cold and arrogant mother, thinks no girl is good enough for Reck.

Chapter 18
Neida Entertains
"Neida Barrie, where did you get such grand Italian food away out here?" Claire asked.
"An Italian neighbor cooked it." The young people chatted so gaily at the table and so thoroughly enjoyed the food that Neida felt the party was going to be a real success.

But after lunch their spirits seemed to drop. Although she tried to be gay and amusing, they all looked as if they were concealing yawns.

"Would you like to go up into the hills?" she asked in desperation. They agreed listlessly.

Reck's attentions to Neida, as they trudged side by side, were all that could be desired. He was devotion itself. She saw it was making an impression on her guests. She would have been less than human if she hadn't experienced a glow of triumph.

The walk was doing something to her friends. They seemed happy, exploring the mountain trail. The blood came into their cheeks and they laughed and shouted gaily to each other.

They struck deeper into the cool, shadowy gloom of the trees and finally came to a huge cleared place that once had been the estate of a cattle baron.

As they stood at the big front window looking upon a rich valley spread out many miles below, Reck spoke at Neida's shoulder.

"Glad we didn't live in the horse and buggy days, aren't you?" Amusement colored his tone.

She said nothing. Her thoughts were on the old days. In fancy she could see venerable padres on burros traveling over the rugged high-ways of a century ago.

She made a lovely picture, standing there lost in thought. She looked far too young, too slender and delicate to be managing a ranch.

There was something about her whole aspect that was deliciously earnest and sweet. Every masculine eye was upon her.

"Let's get going," Val suggested. Neida wished that her whole party could be staged outdoors, the guests seemed to enjoy it so much.

With Mrs. Jeffers in the kitchen, Neida expected dinner to go off as smoothly as lunch, but she received a shock upon reaching home. The instant she saw Mrs. Jeffers' face she knew something was wrong. She took her guests into the living room, then hastened to the kitchen without removing her wraps.

"It's not my fault!" Mrs. Jeffers burst out.

"What?"

"That woman kept comin' out here and nibblin' at that salad until there's not enough left to go 'round!"

Instantly Neida knew that Laura was the culprit.

"An' her supposed to be sick!" Mrs. Jeffers rushed on. "Lay in what I'd call it."

"I am not!" This from Laura who stood in the doorway. "I've got a sore back and now I'm afraid I'm takin' cold."

She frowned angrily to her room, muttering that she'd starve before she'd eat a bite that woman cooked.

There was nothing for Neida to do but use the vegetable salad she'd planned for tomorrow's lunch. Mrs. Jeffers didn't take very kindly to the extra work and her resentment was reflected in the manner in which she served the meal. Neida trembled in fear that she might leave before the end of the party.

The Powells arrived shortly after 8 all set to play bridge. But Neida's other guests didn't want to play bridge. They wanted to dance to the music from the radio. Neida didn't care so long as they were entertained. Besides, she found it
