State Editors Air Their Views At Conference

Eugene, Jan. 21 (AP)—Political writers of today must take as their chief objective the exposure of sham, intrigue and hypocrisy which lie behind the glib tongue and magnetic voice of politicians who now have the modern advantage of the radio, it was declared here today by Harry N. Crain, managing editor of the Salem Capital Journal, in an address before newspapermen gathered from every section of the state for the 20th annual Oregon Press conference. Mr. Crain declared that politicians who use the radio can "get close to the voters," but that the voters cannot get close to the speaker. It remains for newspaper political writers to give a true picture of what is going on politically, he said.

"It's nice work if you can get it," Arthur Perry, columnist for the Medford Mail-Tribune, said in his talk on column writing. He did not especially encourage young people to enter the field of column writing. Humor coupled with brevity, a nimble imagination and a "triple threat" vocabulary were given as essentials in this field. A columnist's duty, he said, is to make subscribers "mad and glad" but not mad enough so they will quit the paper.

During the afternoon the newspapermen heard Charles L. Baum, promotion manager of the Oregon Journal, talk on "The Newspaper's Public Relations Problem in Its Community," and held a discussion on freedom of the press and freedom of speech, led by Palmer Hoyt, managing editor of the Oregonian. At the annual banquet tonight, Dr. Donald Erb, newly elected president of the University of Oregon, will speak on "Professors and the Press."

Jones Employs May Work Monday

Portland, Jan. 21 (AP)—Employees of the Jones Lumber company today considered the possibility of returning to work Monday following a break in Portland's prolonged mill-labor dispute.

Between 500 and 600 employees of the city's largest sawmill, the Clark and Wilson plant, ended their third day of work yesterday after a five-months' shutdown. The men returned to work at the invitation of and under terms specified by the management. A similar proposal has been made to the Jones firm employees.

Sixty additional men returned to their jobs Monday when the B. F. Johnson mill re-opened under employment terms. Impetus to the back-to-work movement was attributed to fear that the men would jeopardize their right to obtain unemployment compensation relief, inasmuch as the mills had made an offer of employment to them.

Johnson charged that Emerson's statements carried an implied threat of election reprisals and said "Don't think that anyone is going to be afraid or bullied by you."

Discrepancies In Wright Story

Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (AP)—Testimony designed to show that Paul Wright stood close beside the piano when he shot and killed his wife and John Kimmel was presented by the prosecution when trial of the airport executive was resumed today.

Wright, in his confession to Glendale police said he shot them from the doorway to the living room, some distance from the piano bench on which he said he found them embracing.

Identifying an enlarged picture of the piano, Police Officer Harry Reed who answered Wright's early morning call on November 9, after the slayings, testified he found two empty shells that had been ejected by the pistol when it was fired, on the strings of the open-topped instrument.

Reed paced slowly before the jury as he pointed out where he found the empty shells, back of the music rack. With his finger he pointed out where the first shell was found. "The second," he explained, "was just north of it."

Then Reed took the automatic pistol Wright turned over to him after the shooting, and displayed it to the jury, explaining how it ejects the shells after they are fired.

On the stand late yesterday, Reed testified how Wright told him of the slayings.

A flareup from Defense Attorney Jerry Gleaser resulted when Reed described the condition of the bed in which Wright contended in his confession he had slept briefly prior to the shooting.

Railroad Side At Hearing

Portland, Ore., Jan. 21 (AP)—After taking the rap all week railroads had their day in the I.C.C. hearing on proposed rate increases of 13 per cent at the United States courthouse this morning before Commissioner William E. Lee of Washington, D. C. when five business heads of the northwest appeared in his behalf. The five-day hearing ended shortly before noon.

I. D. Hunt, officer of the Wilcox Investment company and farm owner, said that a worthwhile rate increase would result in the release of substantial orders of needed materials and equipment by railroads, would greatly improve business sentiment and would be a major factor in the establishment of better general market conditions and the reopening of the market for capital financing.

I. C. Newlands, president of the Oregon-Portland Cement company and president of the Pacific Northwest Shippers Advisory board, testified that railroads have tried "just about every way of not only holding the business they have, but of increasing it by every means known to any thoughtful business man, and that in efficiency of operation their costs are cut to a minimum."

Harry N. Curd, vice president and general manager of the Pacific Car & Foundry company, Seattle, said that railroads were entitled to a rate increase and testified that the advance asked would have no serious effect on purchases of lumber.

Potatoes May Go To Livestock

Klamath Falls, Ore., Jan. 21 (AP)—Approximately 350,000 bushels of Klamath and Deschutes county potatoes will be removed from the commercial market and diverted to livestock consumption if plans of growers materialize. A. E. Mercker, AAA official from Washington, D.C., disclosed yesterday.

Mercker has been consulting with representatives of potato growers' associations here relative to the federal feed diversion program, and as a result, the Klamath Potato Growers' association has forwarded a request to Washington for government purchase of an additional 300,000 bushels of Klamath potatoes and 50,000 additional bushels of Deschutes potatoes.

Hainan Island Repels Japanese

Shanghai, Jan. 21 (AP)—Japanese marines have been repulsed in an effort to effect a landing on Hainan island, situated in a position of great strategic importance off the coast of South China and French Indo-China, it was reported today.

Chinese sources asserted that a strong party of marines attempted to land on the shores of Yuling harbor, on the south coast of the island, under a protective barrage from three warships and a fleet of airplanes.

House Passes Naval Bill

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The house passed the $533,266,404 naval appropriations bill today after overwhelmingly defeating an attempt to eliminate funds for construction of two new battleships. The measure now goes to the senate.

The bill provides $26,723,186 more than the navy's current appropriation, but $11,139,977, less than budget estimates. In addition to the two battleships, it would permit start of construction of 20 other warships, including four auxiliary vessels, and continuation of work on 74 ships already on the ways.

Just before final passage of the bill, the house struck out by a standing vote of 119 to 83, an amendment previously adopted which would have suspended all promotions and retirements of commissioned officers in the navy for the next fiscal year.

Included in the bill were funds for reopening the torpedo manufacturing plant at Alexandria, Va. The measure also would provide for recommissioning the ammunition ship "Pyro."

Only 15 members stood in opposition to the bill's final passage after the house rejected last minute attempts by Representative Philastine (R., N. Y.), to add a provision to authorize President Roosevelt to sell a naval armaments limitation conference.

Trial by jury of E. W. Hobson, charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was begun in justice court this forenoon and recess was taken until 1:10 for deliberation on a matter of evidence.
