Sundown Stories

Busy Sweet Face

Quietly, very quietly, Sweet Face walked into the big school-room. There, on every desk, were the pencils of which the children had spoken. The pencils did not look as though they should worry the children so much, but then Sweet Face had not thoroughly understood what they had meant by examinations. All he knew was that they wished they didn't have to write answers with those pencils.

With an eye turned every few minutes toward both doors and the windows, Sweet Face went around to every desk and picked up the pencils.

"After I collect all of them," he told himself, "I'll take them out-of-doors and hide them in the long grass."

Sweet Face worked as quickly as he could, and he was nervous, too, for fear the teacher would come and catch him at this job.

"I'm just as afraid of the teacher as though I had to take examinations, whatever they may be," Sweet Face thought. "I know they're dreadful, though."

Sweet Face heard someone walking down the road. As fast as his four lamb legs would carry him he had grabbed all the pencils and was taking them out the back door. In his hurry he had dropped one. He hoped that would not matter.

He got down into the long grass so as not to be seen. The pencils were by him. The teacher had arrived at the school.

Now he heard the voices of the children. They were going into the class-room.

Wouldn't they be delighted! No examinations for them!

Tomorrow—"Listening Lamb."

Hawley-Jones Vows Said Today

Waconda—A pretty wedding was solemnized Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the First Christian parsonage in Salem when Miss Aminta Jones, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Paul Jones, became the bride of Leo Ralph Hawley, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hawley of Medford.

Miss Jones was given in marriage by her father, S. Paul Jones, before an improvised altar of mixed flowers, with Rev. Guy L. Drill officiating. Mrs. Drill sang "I Love You Truly," preceding the ceremony.

Miss Jones was lovely in a white satin gown, tip-toe length, embellished with sequine and a cape effect veil. She carried a shower bouquet of Talisman roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Her only attendant, Miss Evelyn Cain, wore a blue organdy gown and carried a mixed bouquet of sweet peas.

S. Paul Jones, Jr., brother of the bride, served as best man for Mr. Hawley.

A reception for the immediate families and a few close friends was held following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawley will motor to Canada on their wedding trip and will also visit at Yellowstone National park, Grand Canyon and various other places of interest. They will make their home in Medford.

Sunday Wedding Pretty Event

The First Christian church was the scene of a pretty ceremony Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Lois Leanora Fiesher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fiesher of Newport, became the bride of Roy E. Needles, son of Mrs. Olive Needles of Portland and Jess L. Needles of Delco, Ida.

Rev. Guy L. Drill officiated in the presence of the two families and intimate friends of the couple. Ocean spray, lilies, delphinium and roses graced the altar where the vows were exchanged. Miss Helen Ralph sang "I Love You Truly" before the ceremony and also played the wedding marches.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white lace fashioned over white satin and designed along princess lines. Her fingertip veil was held in a cap with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of roses.

Her attendant, Miss Alice Cunningham, wore a frock of blue organza made over a taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of rose buds.

Fred Fiesher, brother of the bride, was best man for Mr. Needles and William Judson and Harold Cummings of Portland were the ushers.

A reception followed in the church parlor. Assisting about the rooms and in dispensing hospitalities were Mrs. Lester Fisher, Mrs. Bruce Cunningham, Mrs. William Judson, Mrs. Charles Ruggles, Miss Helen Ralph and Miss Ann Boehringer. A tiered wedding cake and roses centered the serving table.

For traveling the bride chose an ensemble of neutral tan worn with rust accessories and a corsage of sweet peas and roses. After July 1 the couple will be at home in Newport.
