King George Inspects Britain's Home Fleet

London, June 21 (AP)—George VI, Britain's sailor king, today started a significant two-day inspection of the home fleet—most vital unit of the nation's swiftly expanding navy—at Portland, strategic south coast naval base.

The maneuvers were the first for royal inspection since the Duke of Windsor surveyed the fleet just before he abdicated as Edward VIII in December, 1936.

The fleet has concentrated at Portland for six weeks, ostensibly preparing for today's royal visit. Naval experts, however, have said the real reason for the massing of sea power there was that Portland would be an ideal jumping-off point for the fleet if it were needed in a hurry in the Mediterranean, the North sea or even the orient.

Cronemiller Tells of Trees and Their Value

The United States has 1200 species of trees, of which 200 are of commercial importance, as compared with 150 different varieties in Europe, Lynn F. Cronemiller, former state forester, told the Kiwanis club today noon in discussing the romance of trees.

One of Oregon's best known species, the Douglas pine, was discovered by David Douglas, young English botanist, early in the 1800's. He was the first to identify it as a separate species and it was described as "false hemlock with foliage like a yew."

The Sugar pine was also found by Douglas, the variety which grows enormous cones. While on the coast he collected over 1000 species of trees and plants then unknown to botanists.

The most widely distributed tree in the world is the dwarf juniper and in North America the aspen or cottonwood has this distinction. Cronemiller said. Fossils reveal that the Redwoods were once distributed throughout the world but are found now only in Yosemite national park.

"Trees have peculiarities, the speaker said. The native white pine does well in Europe and after being imported 200 years ago, the black locust now excels in Europe and varieties are imported here. The black oak transplanted to England will not grow where the native variety grows but the red oak will. Monterey Cypress, worthless in this country, is fast being developed into commercial value in Australia.

Foresters today are seeking new varieties for specific purposes. Cronemiller said in closing. The apple was developed, as well as other plants and livestock, and he predicts that through forest genetics great advances will be made along this line. He indicated that a fast maturing in between 15 and 20 years instead of nearly 100 years as at present.

Police Court to Pay Witnesses

Never, in the history of Salem, have witnesses appearing in police court been paid anything for their services, although witnesses in justice court and circuit court are paid a stipulated compensation and mileage. That is to be changed—if the city council passes an ordinance bill that is to be introduced at the next meeting of the city council.

At last night's meeting of the council a letter from City Attorney Paul R. Hendricks was read, calling the council's attention to the fact that police court witnesses have to serve without pay, sometimes at great inconvenience and perhaps a small financial loss to themselves. He cited as an example a witness in a recent case who had to drop his work and come in from the country to give his testimony.

The city attorney recommended compensation of $1 plus mileage at the rate of 5 cents a mile coming and going.

The council directed the attorney to prepare the ordinance bill to put compensation into effect.

How long Roosevelt would remain has not been determined.

Labor Boycott Rouses Farmers

Hood River, June 21 (AP)—Howard L. Shoemaker, president of the Associated Farmers of Oregon, said today it was a "swell break for the farmers" when he was informed the State Federation of Labor convention was considering a resolution asking a boycott of the agricultural group's members.

"The Associated Farmers and other farmer organizations and individuals are sponsors of an initiative bill to regulate picketing and boycotting by labor groups," Shoemaker said, "and this is just the kind of advertising that will help us most and at a time when such help is most needed."

"Organized labor has threatened a boycott on the farmers' lamb and mutton and has said that it would refuse to handle their wool. Last season organized labor started a boycott on turkeys."

"Every time that boycott is mentioned, farmers are getting that much madder and more determined to regulate this threat against our liberties and to take away our constitutional rights. In other words, it is a warning to us all that we must either surrender or else—"

Rotary Clubs In Bay City

San Francisco, June 21 (AP)—Delegates to the Rotary international convention split up into 40 vocational groups today to talk shop and discuss industrial problems in the light of a presidential admonition to apply mutual understanding to economic difficulties.

The divisions were arranged to promote fellowship among the 13,000 or more visitors from all over the world to give each delegate an opportunity to meet others of his own business or profession.

Rotarian golfers had two tournaments for afternoon diversion.

Maurice Dupreyer of France, president of Rotary international, opened the convention yesterday with an appeal for the use of Rotary ideals in settling social, economic and international problems.

He said Rotarians knew it was "far better to come to a mutual understanding regarding the distribution of riches than to take them by force of arms, after which the same problems are bound to recur under another guise."

Frank L. Mutholland of Toledo, Ohio, a past president, told the convention that Rotary had increased the number of its clubs 25 times since the order held its eighth international meeting here in 1913.

Miss Randall's death, resulting from a broken neck and internal injuries, occurred shortly after midnight. Owen died two hours later.

Gill Attacks Enemies for Labor Division

Tillamook, June 21 (AP)—Ray W. Gill, state grange master, attacked "enemies" today for attempting to create a sharp division between agricultural and labor interests.

Gill addressed the 35th annual convention of the state federation of labor where yesterday resolutions were introduced condemning the Associated Farmers of Oregon.

"During recent years," Gill said, "certain groups of selfish or politically minded persons have schemed to create a feeling of distrust between farmers and laborers."

"They have sought to drive the wedge of hate between these two great groups. From the farmers' side they have failed largely because the grange believes that problems that exist between the farmers and the laborers can be settled around the council table."

"The grange appreciates the fine spirit of cooperation that has been manifested in the joint farm-labor relations committee as set up from members of your organization and members of our organization, acting as a joint committee."

"It is important that we maintain this friendly approach to each other and those forces that have tried to disturb such approaches have failed."

"I am glad to report to you that the Oregon grange session just closed went on record by a decisive vote in favor of continuing the policies that have been established in recent years regarding our labor relations and proposed legislation that would effects such relations."

The gymnasium was used last winter in connection with a recreation program under joint sponsorship of the city schools and WPA but, in view of the fact that the sewing project employs approximately 150 women who receive close to $6000 monthly, the board decided to turn the space over. ## Poultry Bill At Last Passes City Council

The poultry slaughter house issue, which has been in controversy in Salem for about two years, was settled last night when the city council passed an ordinance bill regulating the industry. As a result is expected that the Marion Creamery & Poultry company, located at Commercial and Bellevue, will move its killing business to a North Front street location, while the Fairmount Dairy business will remain where it is by willingness of the required percentage of residents for it to do so.

The ordinance requires that this business shall be prohibited anywhere in the city except in a class three business or a class four unrestricted zone, and in these zones it is required that at least 75 per cent of the property holders within 150 feet of the place of business must be in favor of it. In other words it is local option. In the case of the Fairmount it is said that the local option will be for the industry because of a number of the residents employed there, while in the case of the Marion the sentiment is pretty solid against it.

In the discussion of the measure Alderman Fred A. Williams spoke at some length on the importance of the turkey dressing and shipping industry to Salem. Alderman Evans said the largest industry affected by the bill was in favor of it.

Aldermen Woodman, Marshall, O'Hara and Williams voted against the bill.

Mrs. Frizzell Asks $25,080 For Property

A price of $25,080 is placed on the Alice B. Frizzell property, located at 248 North Summer street, which the state capitol reconstruction commission is seeking to acquire in connection with the building program, according to an answer filed in circuit court today by Custer E. Rios, attorney for Mrs. Frizzell. The commission has instituted condemnation proceedings and it is expected the case will be heard at the next term of court which occurs about mid-July.

Mrs. Frizzell, in figures presented to her attorney, indicates she has received a net income from the property of $1254 annually. Basing this return upon a 5 percent basis upon capital investment, the property is shown to be worth $25,080.

It is also shown by Mrs. Frizzell that the price she is asking for her lot which is 66 by 165 feet in size, is not out of line judging by what the commission has paid for adjoining property. The corner lot, immediately to the south, was purchased at the rate of $2.27 per square foot as against the 95 cents which the commission has offered Mrs. Frizzell. The Louis Lachmund property was bought on the basis of $2.61 per square foot, while the Meyers lot was paid for at the rate of $2.44. The Kimball corner, one of the first to be secured by the state, was paid for at the rate of $3 square foot.

In the reply filed today the defendant in the condemnation proceedings denies a stipulation previously filed by the state that the property in question has a market value not in excess of $10,440.

It is expected an answer will be filed tomorrow in connection with the Patton property which is also subject to condemnation. The Borchsen property, located at Chemeketa and Summer street, will also be brought into court under condemnation proceedings.

Deed Set Aside By High Court

The state supreme court today reversed the decree of Circuit Judge Fred W. Wilson of Wasco county, in a suit brought by Bridget Connel, as a creditor, to set aside a conveyance of certain real property from the defendant, Mary Glavey O'Connor, to another defendant, Marguerite Glavey, her daughter.

The lower court, after a hearing on the merits of the suit, dismissed the proceeding.

The property involved in the suit was mortgaged to insure the payment of three promissory notes aggregating $1727.

The supreme court held that the circumstances under which the conveyance was made by Mrs. O'Connor indicated an attempt on her part to put the property owned by her beyond the reach of her creditors.

The court ordered the deed from Mary Glavey O'Connor to Marguerite Glavey cancelled and set aside.

The opinion was written by Justice Bailey.

In an oral order the court allowed the appellant in the case of the Coos Bay Lumber company vs. Barklay costs aggregating $550.65.
