lands, Ernest Carson and Cecil Moore, who have confessed.) Banks quoted Roy Hewitt, Salem attorney, as saying to him: "There is no use in involving anyone else, as the governor is going to railroad you to the penitentiary." He was still on the stand at the noon recess.

Hugh Reynolds, of Eugene, former secretary of the Joint Salem-Eugene council of teamsters, took the stand for the defense at the opening of the trial this morning. Objection by the state was sustained by Circuit Judge Arlie G. Walker, who is hearing the case.

Shaefer a Witness
Leonard Shaefer, Salem, who acted as business agent until July 1, 1937, was another morning witness. Defense Attorney Vanderveer's question if Shaefer had told him that he (Banks) had been promised leniency if he aided Rosser was objected to by the state, which was sustained.

Defense Attorney Vanderveer and Assistant Prosecutor Oscar Hayer engaged in a lively little side till. "That leaves me hanging in mid-air," Vanderveer declared. "That is the only place a man can hang—in the air," remarked Hayer.

"The judge might hang you for that remark," came the reply from Vanderveer. Reynolds testified that he asked the joint council to take Salem "off his hands" in June, 1937, and that he was relieved of his duties by Al Banks, former business agent, in January of this year. No one, he declares, was authorized to take money out of the union cash funds and replace it with IOU's Banks had given to "tap the till" in this manner. Reynolds said he objected to Banks' writing checks and that over $200 had been charged to the organization but he did not know for what purpose. When he asked Banks about it, Banks told him that it was "for the benefit of the boys," he declared.

Upon cross examination Reynolds denied that he had ever talked to Rosser about the way Banks handled affairs but a few minutes later said: "I told Mr. Rosser that Banks did not know the value of money or how to handle money." This was shortly after the fire and he again asked Rosser to be relieved at once, he said. Banks was then promoted from business agent and took over the secretarial duties at Salem.

Asked by Special Prosecutor Oscar Hayer if he had ever been convicted of a crime, Reynolds replied: "Yes—on a frame up." He referred to the breaking of barber shop windows in Eugene.

Dave O'Hara, state superintendent of elections in the office of the secretary of state, was called to the stand in connection with commutation papers in the sentencing of Fred Upson and Harold Beltz, who had testified at the trial of Dave Rutz, business agent for the teamsters at The Dalles, who was convicted in a tractor sabotage case. The papers tended to show that the two men were offered leniency if they would testify for the state.

Dismissal Motion Denied
Circuit Judge Arlie G. Walker denied yesterday a motion for dismissal and the defense opened its case for Rosser.

Custer E. Ross, Salem attorney who visited A. N. Banks, former Salem teamster business agent serving 12 years in prison for paying three men $105 to fire the mill, in jail, was the first witness. He testified Banks did not implicate Rosser.

The dismissal motion was made by George Vanderveer, Seattle labor attorney defending Rosser, on the ground that the testimony of Banks had not been corroborated by other witnesses.

Vanderveer held accomplices' testimony must be corroborated, while Ralph E. Moody, special prosecutor appointed by Governor Charles H. Martin, declared "a jury can convict on an accomplices' uncorroborated testimony provided there is some evidence which tends to connect the defendant with the crime." Moody added that testimony of some of the state's 19 witnesses so tended to connect Rosser.

Confession Turned Over
Banks' alleged confession, which Vanderveer unsuccessfully sought previously, was turned over voluntarily by the state. Judge Walker sustained a state objection against it being introduced as evidence by the defense.

Paul Mumpower, Portland detective, and Clarence A. Potts, Multnomah county deputy district attorney, were the final witnesses for the state. They testified they did not force Cecil Moore, who admitted his part in setting the fire, to confess. Moore had testified that Mumpower hit him in the face 12 times and kicked him in the back so that he could not walk for three weeks.

Mill Reopens But CIO May Halt Shipping

Portland, Ore., July 7 (AP)—Sawmills were spinning once more this morning at the West Oregon Lumber mill but a CIO picket line foreclosed the possibility of another shut-down when the time comes for the longshoremen to load the mill's lumber.

The mill was operating today under the conditions of an AFL contract signed by the company and the millmen and sawmill workers. The contract established the AFL as the sole bargaining agent and excludes workers not acceptable to the company and the union.

The CIO holds a certification as bargaining agent for the mill, granted by the national labor relations board last fall.

The mill may be forced to close once more should the CIO-affiliated longshoremen refuse to load lumber behind a picket line. Rocco Craycraft, secretary of the longshoremen, said today they would stand behind the protesting CIO lumbermen and would not work behind the picket line.

Under a contract with the waterfront employers association the longshoremen have been loading all cargoes for the last few months, however.

The West Oregon-AFL contract says CIO employees are excluded but may become eligible to hold jobs by switching their affiliation. The CIO has threatened to fight the agreement from another angle by filing lockout charges with the national labor relations board.

Albany Asks for Grant by WPA

Portland, Ore., July 7 (AP)—Six applications for public works administration grants, two from Oregon, one from Washington, and three from Idaho, have been filed at the Portland office, headquarters for region seven, Regional Director C. C. Hockley has announced.

The Oregon cities applying for federal funds are Bend and Albany. A grant of $9,495 for the construction of a city garage building and improvement to the street lighting system was requested by Albany. The total estimated cost of the work projected is $21,000. Bend asked $1,710 towards the construction of a $3,800 fire station.

Largest request of the six was $63,090 for the construction of a school at Haches, Wash. The federal money represents 45 per cent of the estimated cost of $140,221.

Application for a grant of $40,500 for construction of a municipal building and water mains replacement at Weiser, Ida., was being filed. Welser plans to do work requiring an estimated $90,000. Menan, Ida., requested $11,700 of federal money to aid in the construction and furnishing of a $26,000 addition to its high school building.

The applications will be forwarded to Washington for approval, Hockley said.

From Vancouver, the power will be distributed into Oregon and Washington. Bids will be opened August 10 here.

Portland, July 7 (AP)—Oregon's administrative expenses for the AAA program during the crop year of 1938 were $110,907, the Oregon Journal's Washington correspondent was informed today.

Included in Oregon's total were the administrative expenses of the following counties:

- Benton $3593, Clackamas $5096, Clatsop $482, Columbia $3840, Coos $1905, Deschutes $2106, Harney $274, Hood River $685, Jackson $1711, Klamath $2035, Lane $7014, Linn $5932, Multnomah $1558, Union $4582, Wasco $2105, Marion $5923.

The Association of American Railroads said approximately 85 per cent of all mail travels by rail, and a considerable part of that handled by other means of transportation goes part of the way by railroad.

German Born Nazi Trooper Hits Fatherland

Riverhead, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—A German-born former Nazi storm trooper and aviator today denounced his native land as a country of oppression.

Testifying at the trial of six directors of the German American settlement league, who are charged with violating the civil rights act, Willy Brandt, 38, said he had quit Nazi Germany in disgust because the people were crushed and oppressed. Assistant District Attorney Lindsay R. Henry asked Brandt if he had seen "people shot down in the street without trial" and the witness replied in the affirmative.

"Many of them were my friends," he said.

On cross examination, William J. Karle, defense lawyer, attempted to show that the complainant in the case, Roy P. Monahan, state commander of the Disabled War Veterans, had hired Brandt to join the German-American band to gain evidence. The witness said he became associated with Monahan after he had joined the band.

Brandt labeled Henry Hauck, a defendant, and director of the German-American camp at Yaphank, Long Island, a Nazi and said he had quit the band because of Fritz Kuhn's friendship with Hitler.

Kuhn, national leader of the band, conferred with Karle throughout the trial. Karle said the leader might be called to testify for the defense.

Brandt testified yesterday that an oath of allegiance to Hitler was required of members of the German-American band. He said the oath was the same as that taken by German storm troopers.

The league and its directors are accused of failing to file a membership list with the secretary of state as required of oath-bound organizations by the civil rights act.

White Canes for Blind Presented

The initial distribution of white canes to the sightless, sponsored by the Salem Lions club, was made during today's luncheon of the organization. Three men, all residents of Marion county, received the canes which are expected to aid the recipients materially in making their way through traffic.

Plans call for the distribution of 22 canes. Today's presentations were made by Earl Snell, secretary of state.

Professor Franklin Thompson of Willamette university, in a brief talk, spoke of the unique contribution to society many blind persons make. He told of one man with whom he lives in a small mid-western community, who has charge of the local telephone switchboard. He stressed the need on the part of the general public for a greater realization of the problems of the sightless and urged cooperation in providing facilities, such as talking books and "seeing eyes."

Wendell Helm, blind musician, played a piano solo, a march written especially for the Salem Lions club.

Brown was charged with forging the signature of the union president on checks with which he withdrew union funds.

Ford Appeals NLRB Decision

Washington, July 7 (AP)—Attorneys for the Ford Motor company today asked the supreme court to review a sixth circuit court of appeals' decision permitting the national labor relations board to reopen its River Rouge plant case against the company.

The supreme court brief coincided with filing of an intermediate examiners' report in a second labor board case against the company concerning its St. Louis, Mo., plant. In the St. Louis case the intermediate examiner, Tilford E. Dudley, recommended reinstatement of 192 workers and granting of sole bargaining rights for the plant to the United Automobile Workers' union.

The supreme court petition was based primarily on a technical interpretation of the national labor relations act.

The company contended that once a case was placed before a circuit court under terms of the act, as was the Ford case—the court has no power to divest itself of jurisdiction and return the case to the board.

The petition was signed by Frederick H. Wood, New York attorney, who acted as counsel in the Schechter case.

Breure to Head Sea Labor Board

Washington, July 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt has appointed Robert W. Breure of New York to be chairman of the new maritime labor board.

The White House, announcing this today, said the other two members of the board chosen by Mr. Roosevelt were Louis Bloch of California and Claude E. Seshorn of Colorado.

The maritime labor board was authorized by congress to handle disputes within the merchant marine on a basis similar to that on which railway labor disputes now are handled.

The board will offer its offices in an effort to reach agreements between management and labor and settle controversies, but it will have no power to assume jurisdiction in any dispute unless both sides ask its services.
