Sundown Stories

By Mary Graham Bonner

Old Frog
"I heard a call then," said Willy Nilly as he stopped the automobile Two-Ways. The animals got out from the trailer and came around to Willy Nilly.
"Are we going to stop for lunch?" Honey Bear asked.
"Yes," agreed Willy Nilly, "and at the same time I must call on a Green Frog. I don't know how long a time it is since I had a talk with one. I heard his low call from that brook over yonder."
"Now all of you have a good meal while I have a chat. I'm not hungry just now."
"Perhaps Mrs. Quacker, you and Mrs. Quacker and the other ducks, would like to have a cooling bath from the other end of the brook. The frog is at this end."
"A good idea, quack, quack," quacked Mrs. Quacker, and the other ducks and ducklings and Mrs. Quacker quackingly agreed that no idea could be better.

Willy Nilly wandered over to the brook from which he had heard the call of the green frog.
"Chug-chung, chug-chung," called the green frog again and again.
"Hello," said Willy Nilly.
"Chug-chung, chug-chung, can you understand frogish talk?" asked the green frog as he sat on an old stump that was partly hidden in the water.
"Indeed I can," answered Willy Nilly. "I'm off on a holiday and I heard your voice so thought I'd stop to speak to you. We've planned to stop whenever we feel like it—to see what we want to see and to enjoy ourselves."
"It is a compliment that you wanted to see me, chug, chug."
