The local represents more than 300 lumber workers.

Without naming either the CIO or AFL, the men charged Smith with hopeless bias in favor of orthodox labor unions over independent unions. Chairman Del Bowen told of wage-

Independence Budget Ready

Independence—A tentative budget for the Independence schools has been arranged by the committee and was accepted by the budget committee at the meeting this week. It calls for total expenditure of $37,905 for the school year.

It will require a six per cent increase in the tax levy on all property within the district. This was made necessary, as was explained by the board members, by a item of $3750 for repairs and maintenance of the high school building; retirement of an additional $500 bond; $500 additional for interest provision for added expense of operating the school plants and additional fire insurance in anticipation of a new high school building.

Other installations in the office were made by Charles Kidwell, foreman, and S. C. Inkley, of the Pacific Tel. & Tel. company. Cable splitters were Bert Smith, foreman, and Harold Neville. Mr. Benz and Mr. Desb assisted in making tests.

Girl Scouts Keep Council Authorities

Lebanon—Mrs. E. H. Bohle was re-elected as commissioner to head the Girl Scout council for the coming year at a meeting following luncheon at the scout camp, Firmin. All other officers were also asked to retain their places again for this year.

Mrs. Peter Tweed, vice-commissioner; Mrs. Elmer Whetstone, secretary; and Mrs. John Zimbrick, treasurer, complete the group of officers. Special committees will be named in the near future.

Also important during this meeting were the plans for a rummage sale to be held early next month and the announcement of a special meeting to be held September 9, when leaders will be chosen for troops and other business relative to the opening of the regular troop meetings will be discussed.

Approximately 12 members of the council attended the meeting and inspected the camp before the luncheon hour. Mrs. Peter Tweed and Mrs. Harry Fredericks are preparing a detailed report of the work of the camp which closed Sunday. The tenth season since it was first undertaken by the Lebanon council for recreation and instruction of local scouts. The tour of the council showed that the large group of scouts attending were enjoying the work and were reaching high efficiency in class instruction.

Clock Assured New Courthouse Albany Is Told

Albany—Linn county's new courthouse will have a clock, but what sort of a clock, or where it will be located, has not been determined. It was stated by Judge J. J. Barrett, spokesman for the county council to discuss a fire alarm system to be attached to the clock.

One thing is certain, however, Albany's citizenry will hear the same familiar tone of the bell which is attached to the clock in the old courthouse tower, the county court stated.

Judge Barrett stated that no prices on new clocks had had been obtained by the court, nor had it been learned how much it would cost to move the old clock works to the new building, so nothing definite, except that a clock would be on the new courthouse and that the same bell would be used, had been

The project involves the furnishing of all plant, labor and materials and performance of all the work for clearing, bank sloping, gravel excavation, overhaul and construction of approximately 1880 feet of stone rip-rap revetment. The work includes 0.5 acres clearing, 200 cubic yards of bank sloping, 16,100 cubic yards overhaul and 14,550 tons of stone rip-rap in place.

Engle immediately sought the aid of an Albany veterinarian who determined the animals were suffering from weed poisoning. The veterinarian revived seven of the cows, but two were too far gone to be revived, he said. Before he left the Engle farm, he said, the seven remaining cows were up on their feet and walking about. Engle took the cows from the stubble field, which was said to be heavily infested with weeds.
