War Mothers Entertained At Luncheon

American War Mothers met for a no-host luncheon at the home of Mrs. Sarah Peterson Tuesday afternoon. An informal business session followed with various reports given by members. Fifty dollars was spent by the local chapter in welfare work during the summer and the group also assisted two families who lost their possessions by fire.

A letter from Mrs. Mae Waters, retiring state department president of the American Legion auxiliary, thanking the War Mothers for a gift recently presented to her, was read.

Mrs. A. A. Lee, state president of the War Mothers, told of ceremonies held recently at Vancouver Barracks when Jackson C. Taboocit, 17, was presented a medal for his fine essay, "What Is the Value of Military Training?" Mrs. Mabel Lockwood, state secretary, and other state officers attended with Mrs. Lee.

Sundown Stories

FIG PEACE
"Hush," said the little pig as he wrenched in the trailer. "do not say a word."

Willy Nilly went forth to speak to the little girl whose crying voice he had heard. "What is the matter?" he asked her. "Oh, dear," she sighed as she came up toward the trailer. "I've lost my little pig." "Your little pig?" repeated Willy Nilly. "Yes," the little girl said, with sobs in her voice, "he has gone away, and he is my pet. He was the one pig my daddy said I could keep forever. He said he was going to sell the others and I did not mind. But this one he said he was not going to sell because he was my pet—and now my pet has left me." "You'd never sell this one?" asked Willy Nilly. "Oh, never, never," cried the little girl. "And are you sure your daddy feels the same way?" asked Willy Nilly. "Oh, yes, I'm absolutely sure," returned the little girl. "Then I think you'll find your pig is safe with us," said Willy Nilly. "He was afraid he would have to leave you."

"Some pigs don't mind being made into bacon—and I like it, too," admitted the little girl. "But my pet was different."

She didn't have to say anything more. Willy Nilly opened the door of the trailer and the pet pig and his owner were united.

"We're on our way," called Christopher Columbus Crow, "but we had to give a pig peace and happiness before we could go far."
