Arguments were heard by Judge McMahan this morning on the question of validity of two writs of review filed in the case of Howard Cooper vs. ex rel C. H. Gram. The writs are based on allegations that default order was taken in Salem justice court before the statutory time had elapsed, while the other side contends the writs of review were filed after the statutory time for such filing had elapsed. The court took the two contentions under advisement.

6 Czechs Slain By Germans

Prague, Oct. 20 (AP)—The general staff reported today six persons were killed during disorders provoked yesterday by Sudeten Germans in two separate districts.

It said four persons died during rifle attacks by Sudeten German free corps members on a Czech military patrol at Zelechovice in northern Bohemia.

A communique said the mayor of Zelechovice became the fifth victim when he was killed after the battle was over.

The sixth person reported killed was a farmer in the commune of Vauvack. The general staff announced he was working in his fields when a German soldier fired on him.

It was said the trouble at Zelechovice began when the Czech patrol, protesting against occupation of the village, visited the German commander and urged him to withdraw his troops. The Czechs declared the Germans had overstepped the new frontier line in taking the place.

During military conference, residents of the village began taking down swastika banners which had been hung in windows prior to the entrance of the German troops.

Members of the free corps, the general staff asserted, hurried to the neighboring village of Olpovce and returned with a detachment of Sudeten customs guards and opened fire on the Czechs.

One Czech soldier and three Czech policemen fell with the first volley. The mayor was killed later because, it was charged, he was carrying firearms.

Concentrated efforts to speed up the Willamette valley project, to prevent dissensions between factions and communities and to promote development of the pulp industry were urged upon members of the Salem Lions club Thursday noon by Leslie M. Scott, president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

Scott, taking as his text, "What's Ahead for Oregon?" predicted the Willamette valley project and enlargement of the wood pulp industry would enhance Salem's position in the business world to a large extent. He told of the vast amount of wood pulp and pulp products which are being imported and pointed out the possibilities for this industry in the northwest where 400,000,000 cords of wood are available for this purpose. He said that 3,000,000 are being consumed annually while 4,000,000 are being added each year through natural growth.

In touching upon the Willamette valley project, Scott declared that rain is one of Oregon's greatest assets. The matter of controlling this rainfall as it courses down the streams is a question which the project will go a long way toward solving. Irrigation, navigation, power and control of erosion are all tied up with the project, which has the backing of the federal government.

Duck Stamp Sales Advance 150,000

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Sales of duck stamps in the fourth year of the annual series—July 1, 1937 to June 30, 1938—surpassed those for 1934-1935, the next highest year, by almost 150,000.

Sales for year ended June 30, 1938, reached a new high of $783,008. The stamps, costing $1, are required of hunters of migratory waterfowl. The funds are used to acquire and maintain refuges for migratory birds and other wildlife.

Oregon sales were 19,540. The four-year total was $6,220.

Idaho sales reached 10,138, for a four-year total of $7,114.

Washington duck hunters bought 41,060, largest in history of the state, bringing the four-year total sales to 117,469.

inspired radical elements last spring in a semi-successful effort to beat Martin with Hess and quash the prosecution of labor racketeers, to endorse Hess for election over Sprague.

Nor does the endorsement of Hess by the communistically dominated Commonwealth league cause any loss of sleep in the Sprague camp, which sees in that action furtherance of its own efforts to define the issue of the gubernatorial campaign as one between good and bad government, of progressive conservatism vs. destructive and demoralizing radicalism.

There are, Sprague strategists assert, enough straight thinking patriotic citizens in Oregon to insure the election of their candidate if they will go to the polls and vote.

Likewise, it is their belief that there are enough now thoroughly aroused law abiding people in Oregon to defeat any candidate chosen and backed by such racketeering interests as have been revealed in the background of the Hess set-up by the Moody goon report this week.

Delegates to the 29th annual Pacific Northwest Logging Congress saw Puget Sound from the decks of a ferry today as business sessions were suspended during an excursion trip.

A banquet was to be held tonight.

The convention theme, "Logging for Continuous Production" received its first airing Wednesday in a symposium led by representatives of Redwood, Douglas fir and White pine districts.

A series of papers from the various districts stressed necessity of sustained production in all lumber areas, but differed widely on methods of reforestation. Proponents of selective logging, such as practiced near Mineral, Wash., claimed that system was more economical, gave better fire protection, better growth and resulted in improved public relations; while George Drake of Shelton attacked the system as uneconomical and impractical in many parts of the country, he favored sectional logging with occasional re-seeding plots left between logged areas.

Nearly every paper presented suggested the real hope for logging lies in development of new processes utilizing cellulose, alcohol and other lumber products which can be made from young timber, cull trees and varieties not now profitable.

Letters Read Implicating Erich Glaser

Rumrich said he typed the letter, including Glaser's signature, and Glaser told him he had written a letter to Zimmerman.

Rumrich said he had typed and sent a letter to a man named Fisher in Panama and signed Glaser's name, although Glaser did not see the letter.

Rumrich said he asked Glaser where the "Z" signals came from, (in Glaser's memorandum book and relating to communication between aircraft and the ground).

"He told me," Rumrich related, "about the book at Mitchell field. (He found them in a radio procedure book). He said he might be able to get hold of it. He said in case he did he would like me to ask $100 for it."

Rumrich testified Glaser turned over a list, without a request on his part, a list of coast guard stations in the United States.

Phoned to Woman

"Once he told me," Rumrich said, "his outfit was scheduled to go into maneuvers in the south and it would be a good chance for him to pick up something."

Rumrich told of telephoning Miss Senta De Wanger, who has been in protective custody as a possible witness, saying one of the "contact men" had asked him to locate her, adding Glaser was outside the telephone booth at the time.

Rumrich said he told Miss De Wanger he was a Mr. Koltz who had just come from Berlin and he would like to see her and give her a message.

"She said that was very mysterious, and what was it about," Rumrich continued. "I said 'use your imagination.'"

Letter to Scotland

Schluster, Rumrich said, had asked him if Miss De Wanger was "approachable to appointment." He said the woman, who operated a liquor store near Mitchell field, said she had some friends in Berlin who might have sent a message.

Rumrich testified he made an appointment to meet her at the McAlpin hotel in New York, "but I didn't keep it and shortly afterward I was arrested."

Dunigan read a letter purportedly written by Rumrich addressed to Mrs. Jessie Jordan at Dundee, Scotland. (Previous testimony had brought out British agents were intercepting letters addressed to Mrs. Jordan.)

The letter began "Dear Sir," and told of receiving a visit from a man and woman who had arrived on the Europa (supposedly Schluster and Miss Hofmann) and asked "Am I justified in dealing with people from the Europa?" It also said "I am very short of money," and complained "I have not heard from you for some time."

"Do the Trick"

Another letter read by Dunigan addressed to Mrs. Jordan read:

"Dear Sir: As yet I have had no news from you since December. I am getting rather worried. Kindly advise if everything okay." It said a telegram would "do the trick."

Rumrich, asked to describe his efforts to obtain passport blanks for German agents seeking to enter Russia, said he impersonated a state department official, a Mr. Weston, in requesting the blanks by telephone.

He asked the blanks be sent to a commercial telegraph office, he said, and arranged to have them forwarded from there to a nearby restaurant. Then he sent a boy to call for the parcel at the restaurant.

"I didn't want to get it myself," Rumrich explained. "He brought me the parcel, then two detectives stepped up and arrested me."

He said he never learned what was in the package.

After his arrest, on February 15, he said, he admitted promptly that "I had absented myself from the army."

North Santiam Snow Removal

County Commissioner Melson and County Engineer Hubbs went to Portland today to discuss with Engineer Farmer of the federal bureau of public roads the question of a snow removal program to keep the North Santiam highway open from Detroit to eastern Oregon during the coming winter.

The state highway department wrote the court several days ago that it desired information as to its wishes about snow removal this year as the commission was about to prepare its budget in that regard and would like to have the information so it could act accordingly in the preparation of the budget. The court in turn communicated with Engineer Farmer who intimated he thought it would be good for the new bill road to be during the winter under the snow, but also indicated if it was the general wish the government would cooperate in keeping the snow removed. The county court had indicated it would like to see the road kept open. The federal government has about 26 miles of the road under its control, Marion county six miles and the state the rest into eastern Oregon.

Arts League to Suspend Activities

The Salem Arts League, long a prominent cultural unit in the city, held its last official meeting in the public library Wednesday night and made plans for disbarring for an indefinite time.

Members feel that the new federal art center has filled the need for which the organization was formed and it was agreed to adjourn. Dues and all activities have been suspended until such a time that a need for such an organization is again felt.

The various sections of the league will become clubs, such as the Salem Writers' club, which has been an active branch of the league.

All funds left in the section's treasury will go to buy books for the Salem public library with Miss Mildred Olson, librarian, assisting in the selection.

The league has sponsored many art exhibits, lectures and other projects of a cultural nature, and was one of the first groups of its kind to be organized in the state.

Officials Work On Details of Wage-Hour Act

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Officials of the wage-hour administration studied today the possibility of an important distinction in computing overtime payments may exist between workers employed on a weekly basis and those paid by hourly rates.

As a result, it appeared possible some wage earners might legally continue to work more than 44 hours a week after the wage-hour law becomes effective Monday without actually increasing their aggregate incomes.

The interpretation of the law which creates this possibility has been given unofficially by wage-hour authorities in response to inquiries by business men and industrialists preparing to comply with the act.

Likewise other interpretations, however, it is subject to court review. If it should be held eventually to constitute a violation, the employer acting on it would be subject to penalties.

On this, as on other problems arising under the law, each employer must decide for himself the nature and extent of his compliance—always aware any step he takes may be challenged in court.

When the wage-hour law becomes effective, the nation's standard work week will be 44 hours. When employees in inter-state commerce work more hours, they must be compensated the rate of time and one-half. These provisions have posed for officials the question of how overtime is to be figured for an individual employee.

This is the unofficial advice which some wage-hour authorities have given in response to inquiries:

1. Any employee who worked on an established hourly wage rate must be paid overtime compensation at one and one-half times that rate. Such a rate may have been established by agreement between the employer and employe, by contract or by collective bargaining.

2. A worker now employed on a flat weekly salary might be worked overtime without increased total pay by regarding his hourly rate as being at a lower figure. (It would have to be at least the legal minimum of 25 cents.)

Game preserves are not modern; they were established by the early Norman kings of England.

North Santiam Snow Removal

County Commissioner Melson and County Engineer Hubbs went to Portland today to discuss with Engineer Farmer of the federal bureau of public roads the question of a snow removal program to keep the North Santiam highway open from Detroit to eastern Oregon during the coming winter.

The state highway department wrote the court several days ago that it
