Oregon Weed to Aid Medicine

Portland, Oct. 21 (AP)—Dr. Ira N. Manville, University of Oregon medical school nutritional department head, said yesterday a new and yet unnamed drug from the thorny devil's club might nearly equal insulin in the treatment of diabetics.

Intensive experiments with the drug will begin early in November, Dr. Manville said. "Considerable work has been done already by two Canadian experts, R. G. Large and H. N. Brocklesby of Prince Rupert, B. C." Dr. Manville explained. The results of their experiments have been very encouraging. If we can prove them to be true, this new find will be of immeasurable value to persons suffering from diabetes.

Hypodermic injection of insulin will become practically obsolete if the new treatment proves successful. Dr. Manville said. The new drug, an infusion obtained from the roots and bark of the devil's club, a thorny shrub prevalent in Oregon, would be taken orally. However, Dr. Manville warned that the new drug, like insulin, was not a cure and would aid only in controlling the sugar content of the blood.

Ickes Lashes 60 Families

San Francisco, Oct. 21 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the Interior, called "over-concentration of economic power" the nation's "public enemy number one" today in a speech before the Commonwealth club.

He dug up his famous "sixty families" bone of contention, subject of nationwide comment following his radio speech last December on that subject. Ickes attributed "economic indecision" to the clash between growing "economic autocracy and a growing political democracy."

Each tries to curb the other, he said, and "so long as this struggle goes on we shall never have a clear-cut direction in our economic life."

Citing various statistics on division of the national income—one group to show 178,000 families got as much as 12 1/2 million other families, another to balance the income of 327 families against more than 2 million getting less than $250 a year—Ickes asserted concentration of wealth is "aggravated by concentrated economic power."

Relief Regime Scored by Landon

Valentine, Neb., Oct. 21 (AP)—Alfred M. Landon said here today the administration of relief in the United States, from a humanitarian point of view, "must be called the most unjust and downright political in the world today."

The 1938 republican presidential nominee, in an address prepared for delivery before a northwestern Nebraska political rally, asserted "every politician knows that Mr. Hopkins and the president are just having their little joke when they say relief is free from political manipulation. Every politician in both parties knows that the spending machine and the WPA pressure machine will deliver votes just like the city machine does."

"Nowadays folks speak of projects," he said. "Now, that word is a new high-toned word for you. In the old days we called it 'pork barrel.'"

"Those on WPA have a right to be dissatisfied. It is up to them to ask just what progress has been made toward the solution of the unemployment problem in the last six years. The big job ahead of us six years ago was to get men back to work. That is the job ahead of us now."

Master Contract Good Until 1940

San Francisco, Oct. 21 (AP)—Ratification by a union mass meeting tomorrow of a master contract banning strikes or lockouts in the industry until June 1, 1940, was the only step remaining today to open 138 warehouses locked for 103 days and to return 2,500 men to their jobs Monday.

The contract, agreed on by negotiators, was ratified unanimously late yesterday by the Distributors' Association of San Francisco and was recommended for union ratification by strategy, negotiation and lockout committees of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union.

As ratification of the agreement appeared near, Mayor Angelo Rossi suggested appointment of a "permanent, neutral mediation board" to intervene in industrial disputes before they reach the strike or lockout stage.

The winning by the employers of a master contract and by the hiring of a preferential hiring clause were disclosed to be the principal victories on each side.

Lindbeck Tells Experiences as News Reporter

Public officials, for the most part, are merely human beings like the average run of citizens, efficient and anxious to serve but by no means are demi-gods is the opinion of one newspaperman at least after 30 years of news coverage in the state capitol. This newspaperman is A. L. Lindbeck of the Oregon Journal, who spoke informally of his experiences before the Salem Realty board Friday noon. Employed with the Journal since 1919, Lindbeck has been in a position to observe many changes and contact many public officials.

Dr. R. E. Lee Steiner typifies the newspaperman's best friends, Lindbeck said as he reviewed the various personalities. Lindbeck said that Dr. Steiner in addition to knowing a story when he saw it, was always willing to put all his cards on the table and trust in the reporter's sense of fairness to protect him. This method of keeping a story out of print is one of the best developed since the reporter is requested to keep the confidence entrusted in him.

Four state departments keep full time public departments, each one of which grinds out reams of propaganda from which the newspaperman must sift the wheat from the chaff. These departments are the military, secretary of state, agriculture and unemployment compensation commission.

Of the present crop of officials, Lindbeck, termed Earl Snell, secretary of state, as the most easily approached. Of the entire lot he has contacted during his tenure in Salem, the speaker said Governor Ben Olcott was the most democratic. He added that he found most officials extremely cooperative in the matter of publicity and were helpful wherever possible.
