

Pope Alludes To Persecutions Of Antiquity

Vatican City, Oct. 21 (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, said today Pope Pius, alluding to persecutions of antiquity, had declared "works and personages better left in oblivion are being called and recalled on the scene of life and action."

It said the pope recalled Julian the Apostate, Nero and the apostle Judas in an audience with archeologists at Castel Gandolfo, his summer palace, yesterday.

In a summary of the pope's message, the newspaper said he added that "not far away quite a different archeology is being practiced" from the mere exhuming of monuments and studying of "dead texts."

"As an old man, the father wished to ask forgiveness of his sons (the archeologists) if, while they were occupied with such great and comforting matters he asked them to consider such subjects," it added.

"It is erroneous archeology and truth which exhumes sinister figures to bring them back into existence and put in operation sinister works."

"He recalled the work of Julian the Apostate with sad, extremely sad, persecutions which, if they were not the most violent and bloodiest, were extremely uncompromising, deceitful and ahistorical."

"The work has been revived not without informers and apostles of the type and soul of Judas. So saying, the pope meant to recall in the minds of his beloved sons, things with which quite recently newspapers and speakers have been concerned—and not among irresponsible people, which have surprised and astonished the world—the honest world accustomed to honest things."

"This persecution, which they still want to deny with truly incredible audacity in face of evidence of things which the pope observes every day in documents which are ever new, documented, certain and thoroughly verified concerning constantly new situations and worse threats, is truly a profound source of grief."

Vaudeville Offered—In addition to four acts of vaudeville the State theatre is offering "We're Going to be Rich," with Brian Donley and Gracie Fields co-starred with Victor McLaglen.

Offside Remark By Governor Caused Flurry

By Paul W. Harvey, Jr.

Those who hoped Governor Martin would take part in the gubernatorial race between Charles A. Sprague, republican, and Henry L. Hess, democrat, might just as well give up.

During the past two weeks there has been much talk about a possible endorsement of Sprague by the governor. Here's how it all started.

A couple of weeks ago the governor made an offside remark at a press conference that he had "just put some eggs under the old hen and they will hatch in a few days."

This remark was interpreted in some quarters as meaning the executive would come out against Hess, who defeated him in the primary.

Then Tuesday the bubble burst when the governor released the Moody report on the prosecution of Oregon's war on labor terrorism. This was the hatching of the eggs.

Persons close to the governor say he will stay out of the campaign.

"The governor knows better than to act like a clown in endorsing Sprague," one of these persons said. "We feel, and many prominent Sprague supporters agree, that an endorsement of Sprague would help elect Hess. People just don't like to see democrats monkeying in republican affairs."

The governor remains bitter toward Hess, but he doesn't plan to say a word against him. Martin feels that he has no business taking part in a campaign in which he isn't involved personally.

He never got over Secretary Ickes' endorsement of Hess during the turbulent democratic primary. Ickes said Martin was "at heart no real dealer." Martin retaliated by calling Ickes "Washington's No. 1 thunderbug and a renegade wump republican."

Ickes will be in Oregon Sunday, but the governor won't be on hand to greet him.

"If Ickes wants to inspect the capitol (a PWA project under Ickes) it will be closed, as it always is on Sundays. I won't be around to receive him because I have to go to church," the governor said with his famous twinkle in his eye.

There is a possibility that Ickes will make a speech favoring Hess, whom he has endorsed again. But if Ickes mentions the governor in an uncompromising manner, the governor probably will answer.

"If Ickes spouts off too much, the governor will take another crack at him. But the governor's answer will not mention the candidacies either of Sprague or Hess," a close friend of the governor said.

The governor's next week. Children's meetings are held every afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, except Saturday, for children above 6 years of age.

Italy Welcomes Soldiers Home

Naples, Oct. 21 (AP)—Italy proudly welcomed Thursday 10,000 returning Italian legionnaires who joined the insurgents in the Spanish civil war in secrecy a year and a half ago.

King Vittorio Emanuele, Crown Prince Umberto, Foreign Minister Count Ciano and cheering throngs greeted the veterans.

Crowds waited for hours along the avenues marked out for a parade before the king and other dignitaries.

Blackshirt militiamen and workers' battalions turned out to march with the returning legionnaires, whose presence in Spain went unmentioned by high fascists for many weeks after they had joined insurgent forces.

Mussolini announced October 8 all legionnaires with 18 months' campaigning would be returned. This cleared the way for a projected settlement of Italy's differences with Great Britain and France.

As the troop ships Sardegna, Piemonte, Liguria and Calabria neared the Italian shore, General Bertoli, commander of the legionnaires, wireless to insurgent Generalissimo Franco word "The Italian volunteers feel great grief in leaving the noble country to which they are bound by unbreakable chains—ideals, blood and memories."

Rooks Prepare For Fresh Tilt

Corvallis, Oct. 21 (AP)—Oregon State rooks put the final polish on their attack yesterday and concluded scrimmage for their second game in a week with the Oregon Ducks.

The yearling clubs play Saturday night at Klamath Falls.

Harry Rich, 170 pound speedster, worked extensively in the quarter-back slot this week and proved himself a talented blocker, but John Carlson is expected to start the game in that office.

Busch and Bob Ranum, fullbacks who were injured in the game last week at Portland between the rooks and Duckslings were in uniforms today.
