Application of KSLM Returned

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—The federal communication commission today returned for technical correction the application of Oregon Radio, Inc., for increasing the power of station KSLM, Salem, Ore.

The company also wanted to change the station's frequency and move the transmitter. The commission said information on the proposed transmitter site was incomplete.

Confusion in the description of two proposed new locations for radio station KSLM by its eastern attorneys in filing application for the contemplated change was the cause of return of the application for correction by the federal commission, according to H. B. Read, president of Oregon Radio, Inc., owners of the station.

The company, several months ago, asked permission to increase its power from 100 to 500 watts, duplicating the installation now in use at the state college station, KOAC, at Corvallis, and to change the location of its transmitter.

Under the new set-up, which Read is confident will be approved, the offices and studios of the station will be located at the east end of the inter-county railroad bridge at the foot of Union street, and the transmitting aerial at the west end of the bridge on the Polk county side of the river. It will operate on a frequency of 1360 instead of 1370 kilocycles as at present.

Program for Christmas Seal Sales Given

Eradiation of tuberculosis is the slogan of those engaged in the fight against the "white plague" and nothing short of this accomplishment will be satisfactory, Dr. G. C. Bellinger, superintendent of the Oregon state tuberculosis hospital, emphatically declared Monday noon as he addressed a capacity audience at the Chamber of Commerce where a program in the interest of Christmas seal sales was presented. Additional guests to the luncheon were Coach R. S. Keene, Assistant Coaches Howard Maple and Elliott Becken and members of the Willamette university football squad.

Early detection of tuberculosis and the checking of the course are prime factors in control of the disease, Dr. Bellinger said. In this connection, he added, seal sale plays an important part since the funds so derived are used to conduct tuberculin tests and in other ways add to control measures. Seal sale also has resulted in stimulating county health associations in the battle against tuberculosis.

With Dr. Bruce R. Baxter presiding, Howard Holman, president of the state association for the prevention of tuberculosis, Portland, and Mrs. George Moorhead, executive secretary of the Marion County Public Health association, were called upon for brief statements.

Ask Jews for $100,000,000

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP)—Jewish leaders called upon American Jewry today to levy upon itself a "voluntary fine" of $100,000,000 for settlement of Jews being persecuted in Germany.

The proposal was made by Rabbi Edward L. Israel of Baltimore at a one-day emergency conference of the seaboard region of the united Palestine appeal. He suggested that the $100,000,000 would contrast the $400,000,000 "stolen from the Jews of Germany by the Nazi regime," and would create opportunities for Jews "now languishing in a no-man's land in central Europe."

The conference climaxed a week-end of concern for oppressed minorities.

Sen. King, D., Utah, speaking at the Palestine conference yesterday, denounced the "seditious" anti-Semitic policy of Germany and urged the United States and Great Britain jointly to promote mass settlement of Jewish refugees in Palestine.

Another suggestion for solution of the problem came from Chairman Dies, D., Tex., of the house committee investigating un-American activities. He announced that he would introduce a bill to congress legalizing the exchange of disoriented elements in this country for groups of oppressed minorities in Europe.

Delay Action On Parking Meter Bill

Alderman Ross Goodman, chairman of the special committee having under consideration the ordinance bill for the installation of parking meters on Salem's downtown business streets, was of the opinion this afternoon that the bill would not be reported out tonight for final action.

The bill is an especially controversial one, and while it appears to have substantial support in the council it is said quite a strong element among the business people of the city do not look upon it with favor.

The measure was introduced two council sessions ago, and under normal procedure would have been reported out for action two weeks ago. The committee having the bill in hand is the regular traffic committee, namely, Aldermen Goodman, Frank P. Marshall and James H. Nicholson, with Alderman E. B. Perrine added because he is chairman of the street committee.
