Boy Campers Relate Tales Of Adventure

Camp Pioneer, July 21—Campers reunion in the middle of a camp period was held last night around a blazing campfire, when the two hike parties met to tell of their adventures during the past four days when they have been hiking and camping in the high Cascades. Camp Pioneer is located 4300 feet high in the Cascades, but their hiking and camping was even higher.

The two hike parties told by means of skits, "addresses" and other ways of their sorrows and joys, their despair and hopes, and their fallings and their achievements. However, the tendency seemed to run in the direction of complete satisfaction and enjoyment.

The Marion Lake hikers had tales of large fish; of swimming in Marion Lake on sunny days; floating about on a raft; and of viewing Marion Falls.

The Three-Finger Jack hikers told of their own Duffy Lake; of climbing Three-Finger Jack; and of climbing other challenging buttes.

Those boys who went to Marion Lake are Kenneth Watt, Larry Bangs, Lyle Gardner, Tommy Adolphson, George Fuller, Leo Hopp, Jess Sohn, and Don Reiger. Jack Taylor, Bob Findley, and Ken Murphy were leaders.

Second Line Between Dams Has Approval

Portland, July 21 (AP)—A second transmission line connecting Bonneville and Grand Coulee power plants by way of Tacoma and Seattle instead of paralleling the first Bonneville-Coulee circuit, has been approved by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, the Oregon Journal announced here today.

The new line was revealed in an exclusive Journal dispatch from Washington and was confirmed by acting Bonneville administrator Banks in Portland today.

Four advantages were pointed out by Administrator Banks in constructing the new line, which he said was part of a so-called master plan for a federal power grid ultimately connecting all important power systems of the Pacific northwest.

1. It would safeguard the tie-in of two great federal power plants by providing two separate circuits instead of placing all on one.

2. It would permit Bonneville, and later Grand Coulee, to serve a wider range of consumers by tapping five more Washington counties that are organized as public utility districts.

3. It would permit standby tie-ins with Seattle city light and Tacoma city light systems and with the municipal system at Ellensburg, which has already requested Bonneville power.

4. It would contribute to the national defense.

New York, July 21 (AP)—William Bardwell Curts, 20-year-old graduate of the University of California, who spent a month and two days in a Nazi prison, returned on the liner Hamburg today with praise for the way he was treated.

A chunky, amiable lad, Curts told reporters on ship deck that "they treated me 100 per cent right."

Curts went to Germany in the middle of August, 1938, to study economics at Munich. On May 12, in Heideberg, after "a few beers," Curts signed a guest book in a German beer hall and later added "a poem I picked up in Budapest."

The poem, freely translated, he said, was:
"The fuhrer has no wife,
"The farmer has no pig."
"The butcher has no meat—
"That's the third reich."
The upshot was that, although he apologized, Curts was beaten—"not very badly"—and hustled to jail charged with "slandering the third reich."

U. S. diplomatic officials obtained his release last June 14 on his promise to leave Germany.

While in prison, Curts wrote to his guardian, Bestor Robinson, at Oakland, Calif., that "only through this beating did I really get an opportunity to know the German people—they fight for their fuhrer," adding:
"How beautiful. How industrious. How serene it is here in Germany compared to other European countries and our country!"

He declined to venture an opinion of the German government. He added that he believed a "majority of the German people" approved of their government.
