

Pioneer Shelburn Store Changes Hands

Scio—Shelburn store and service station changed hands this week. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pangle having purchased the business from Mrs. J. J. Ransom, who succeeded to the general mercantile establishment upon the death of her husband two years ago.

Mrs. Ransom will make her home for the present with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stuber in Albany. Mrs. Stuber has assisted her mother with the business for two years and was familiar with the business prior to her marriage, having virtually grown up in the store.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Shanks will handle the business until the Pangles return from California about the first of the coming year. Mrs. Pangle, who has been with her mother, Mrs. Shanks, for some time will go to California next week, returning with her husband who is rounding out a season on an outstanding Los Angeles football team.

Mrs. Stuber has been postmaster at Shelburn for two years but the Pangles plan to take care of that feature of the business also. Mrs. Stuber's commission expires January 1 next.

Mr. and Mrs. Shanks are well known pioneers of the Shelburn and Scio communities, the Pangles also being well connected here. The Ransoms conducted the business at Shelburn about 20 years.

Monmouth Freshman Class is Formed

Monmouth—As the result of nine terms instead of eight being required for graduation at the Oregon College of Education, a freshman class has been formed.

Until this year, students were classified as juniors and seniors. The class rating will be based on the number of term hours a student has to his credit. The freshman class will include those who have had no previous college work; the juniors, those who have had from one to 60 hours, and the seniors, those who have had above 60 term hours. Each class will elect officers and will be represented on the student council. The term-hour rating as presented is for this year only. Most of the eighth-term students will be graduated this year, and next year the college will be placed on a definite three-year basis.

Double Bill Offered—Youth hits the high spots with the brakes off in "Winter Carnival." Co-starred in "Winter Carnival" are Ann Sheridan and Richard Carlson.
