Thanksgiving Week Not Just Single Day

It will be a Thanksgiving week this year, not just a day. A survey showed today that 21 states, according to proclamations by governors, will observe Thanksgiving Thursday, the 23rd, in support of President Roosevelt, and 20 will observe the traditional date of the last Thursday of the month.

But many cities in states which officially had designated the 23rd, planned to observe the traditional day for sentimental reasons. Other cities announced they would observe both dates and some families, unmoved by tradition or proclamations, planned to have their turkey for dinner on Sunday, the 26th.

The survey indicated that in states observing both dates, the traditional day was most popular.
