Legion Auxiliary Presents Gifts

Every disabled World war veteran who spends Christmas in a hospital will receive a gift from the American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. John A. Olson, rehabilitation chairman of Capital unit, has announced. The local unit is cooperating in the vast gift program through the Oregon department of the auxiliary, which will send Christmas remembrances to all veterans hospitalized in the state. Gifts for a family of five have been purchased and will be distributed by the department.

Christmas giving to the disabled men is an annual activity with the auxiliary, Mrs. Olson explained. Last year 94,654 men were remembered, with $235,962.24 expended for this purpose. In addition, the families of 25,293 of these veterans were visited, their needs for a happy Christmas supplied, and word sent back to the hospitals so the veterans could have peace of mind about their families on Christmas day. Each year from Salem hospitalized in the Portland Veterans' hospital will be remembered at Christmas time by Capital unit.

Needy families of veterans in Salem will be given Christmas baskets of food and toys by the unit, in conjunction with the Associated Veterans Association. Auxiliary workers also will remember the patients at the state tuberculosis hospital, boys' state training school, Salem Youth Center, and other worthwhile projects.

The auxiliary's Christmas program is part of its year-around activity for the welfare of the men who lost health and strength in the World war. The 31 government hospitals are visited at regular intervals by trained auxiliary workers, who bring comforts not supplied by the government. Frequent entertainments are given to help pass the long hours of illness and convalescence, work is supplied through the poppy and occupational therapy programs, and aid is extended to the veterans after they leave the hospitals and attempt to re-establish themselves in life. The Marion county assembly of the American Legion has sent gifts and clothing to the department for distribution to a family of five.

Hubbard — Among the students home from college to spend the Christmas vacation are Betty and Boyd Brown, Doris and Marvin Boyd from University of Oregon; Wallace Brown, Roland Stevenson and Donald DeVine of Oregon State college; Elsie Houghtaling and Cleo Carothers from Monmouth normal.

Nurses of the third district, O.S.N.A., entertained with a Christmas party at the state tuberculosis hospital recently. Speakers of the evening were Miss Linnie Laird and Miss Ethel Templin, both of Portland.

The Christmas theme was carried out and games and a gift exchange were enjoyed. Supper was served in the late evening.
