Lebanon Sees Building Boom This Last Week

Lebanon—The R. W. Merryweather tract in Franklin street, property containing 10 acres, has been sold to George Harden, Lebanon contractor, and will be subdivided and developed into between 40 and 48 building lots, it was announced here this week. Harden plans to begin construction on the first five units the middle of August.

Price paid for the property was $3500 cash, according to the S. C. Myers real estate office, which handled the transaction.

Another major transaction of the week was the sale of the Edwin Johnson property in Rose street to Thomas Gazeley, Portland contractor. Gazeley is launching immediate construction of four residences, one of which has already been sold, it was reported. The property sold for $400, Myers, who handled this deal also, announced.

Additional new dwelling are to be constructed by Bert Cotton, local merchant, who secured a building permit to erect two $2100 homes at Fifth and B streets, and by Don Davis, Lebanon business man, who was granted a permit to build a $1500 structure at Oak and River streets.

Harden plans to subdivide the Merryweather tract, building streets and otherwise developing the property, after completion of eight homes in Franklin street. The homes will be built for rental or sale purposes. They will consist of five rooms, and sell for $2500 or less.

Gazeley's structures will sell for between $2500 and $3000, it was reported.

Mrs. Maude Wise was installed as past grand and presented with a past grand pin by the lodge. The district deputy presented each officer with a corsage. Alta Bodeker, Eva Bressler and Mable Bass were the social committee for the evening and served dainty refreshments.

Sodality Members Register for Climb

Mt. Angel—Twenty-three members of the Young Men's and Young Women's sodalities have registered to join in a Mt. Hood climbing party Sunday, August 4.

At the meeting this week plans were made to leave from Mt. Angel early Sunday morning, but after consultation the committee is trying to rearrange the plans and leave Mt. Angel Saturday night and lodge at Rafferty's hotel at Government Camp. The climbing party should not exceed 30, so those who wish to make the climb are asked to register with Ivo Bauman or Maxine Bering, prefects of the sodalities, as soon as possible.

If the party leaves Saturday night it will be necessary to go in private cars instead of by bus. Expenses of the trip will be increased slightly by the over night stop. There will be a priest with the party so that all will be able to hear mass. A final meeting to complete arrangements and give final instructions will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, July 30.

Early Idanha Fire Harrowing Affair

Detroit—Mrs. Roy A. Elliott came up from Engene Wednesday afternoon to visit her husband, who is assistant supervisor of the Williamette national forest and who has been directing the fire fighting. They both went on to Breitenbush Springs to visit their daughter, Helen. Mrs. Elliott recalled one time when Elliott was the local ranger and a fire broke out where Idanha now stands. Elliott was there helping in the fight not knowing a spot fire had started near the ranger station. Mrs. Elliott said 500 pounds of dynamite were stored in a barn at the station and she feared the hot embers dropping would ignite the old building. She did not add, though old residents yet tell it, how she threw wet sacks around for protection until help came, besides caring for her two small daughters.

Aurora Legion Post Will Seal Officers

W. Guy Parker, president; Paul Chilcote, vice-president; Cecil Kamback, secretary; Wayne Forbis, treasurer; L. Gilson, Chilcote and J. M. Burtenshaw, district brotherhood committee.

Warning Is Issued By Lebanon Chief

Lebanon—Fire Chief Elmer Fitzgerald warned this week that city ordinance requires vacant lots must be kept free of weeds, grass and rubbish, and that with fire conditions hazardous, local residents must comply with the ordinance. He also stressed that fire permits must be obtained before burning rubbish or any other material on lots. Permits may be secured from Chief Fitzgerald or Assistant Chief Kenneth Fuller.
