Willkie Genial Says Norblad

Astoria, Ore., July 12 (U.P.)—Wendell Willkie, republican presidential candidate, is a genial, easy-to-meet man who doesn't mind being filmed in his private office by amateur movie fans, according to Walter Norblad, Astoria, member of the Oregon delegation to the republican national convention who returned Friday.

Norblad, first of the Oregon delegation to switch his vote to Willkie, went to New York after the convention and talked to the candidate in his private office. He said Willkie discussed northwest affairs at length, expressing a belief that Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams should be developed to full potentialities for public good.

After the interview, Norblad asked permission to make some home movies and Willkie readily consented.

Norblad was one of the Willkie floor workers in Philadelphia after Senator Charles McNary had released the Oregon delegation from its pledge.

Greek Seamen Brought Ashore

Astoria, Ore., July 13 (U.P.)—Twenty-one Greek seamen who drifted for 48 hours in an open boat after the Greek steamer Hellenic Skipper exploded and sank, 140 miles southwest of Aberdeen, Wash., Wednesday, told today of their experience.

No lives were lost in the ship disaster but J. Mentzanias, second engineer, was treated at Aberdeen hospital for severe burns. The crew was rescued by fishermen late yesterday.

Capt. Panais Danails told how his ship caught fire when she was one day out of Grays Harbor. He said the fire apparently started from a spark in the generator room and spread through the engine room. The explosion occurred shortly after the fire started.

The explosion rocked the ship with terrific force and put the radio out of order, preventing the crew from signaling for aid. The captain marshalled his crew into the 26 foot lifeboat with scant provisions and water and stood off from the vessel which sank in 20 minutes after the fire broke out.

They drifted for two days and nights, trying to head the small craft through fog and high seas toward land with the aid of makeshift oars and sails made from bedsheets and blankets. They were without a compass.

The night of the wreck the crew sighted a freighter but frantic efforts to attract attention failed. They used flashlights and fired pistols in vain.

After drifting for 48 hours, they were sighted yesterday by a fishing boat skippered by A. B. Chittester of Castle Rock, Wash. The fishermen towed them into the Columbia bar and coast guardsmen took them into Astoria.

Jehovah Group Held Captives

Mooresville, Ind., July 13 (AP)—Some 50 persons who gathered last night for a Jehovah's Witnesses meeting remained today in the second floor Odd Fellows hall here, held captive by a group of men who set up an American flag at the exit and demanded that they salute it before leaving.

S. K. Shuler of Mooresville, a member of the sect who pledged allegiance to the flag in order to get out, said many of its members refused to do so because they believed "the Bible teaches not to revere any man-made thing."

The crowd threw eggs and lemons. An 8-year-old girl was cut on one shoulder when a window was broken. In the hall were men, women and children, several of them babies.

Night Marshal John Swintz arrested two teen-age boys for throwing the missiles and two men who came out of the hall on charges of desecrating the flag.

Captain Walter K. Butler of Mooresville, in the besieging group, said he was a Spanish-American and World war veteran and most of the other men also were war veterans.

Mooresville, Ind., July 13 (AP)—State police today escorted 47 adherents of Jehovah's Witnesses from the second-floor Odd Fellows hall here where they had spent the night and morning refusing steadfastly to salute an American flag.

Device Believed Infernal Machine

New York, July 13 (AP)—Acting Lieut. James Pyke of the police bomb squad said today he was convinced a box-enclosed apparatus found at a school in Union City, N. J., was "an infernal machine."

Pyke said the apparatus, brought here for investigation, included a clock manufactured by the same company which produced the one used in the bomb which killed two detectives and injured five at the New York World's fair July 4. Preliminary investigation, however, revealed nothing of an explosive nature.

It was found on the steps of the Hebrew school, adjacent to the North Hudson Jewish community center at Union City.

Police removed the box, eight inches square, to an empty lot near the school and placed it in an oil solution until the New York police arrived. The ticking stopped after a half hour.

Three families of 21 persons were moved from a house next to the vacant lot.

Disagreement on Anti-Trust Act

Portland, July 13 (AP)—Labor and the justice department disagreed on a "reasonable interpretation" of the anti-trust act at the Institute of Northwest Affairs last night.

Tom Clark, western representative of the anti-trust division, asserted the justice department had never interfered with reasonable labor practices. Chris Roesen, labor attorney, replied that recent decisions against labor were determined by an arbitrary definition.

"Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, has read his own folk lore into the Sherman act," Boessen said. "His interpretation of the act to include combinations of labor in restraint of trade is as far from the original intention as it is possible to get. The word 'unreasonable' as used by Arnold in a list of five rules concerning labor practice has as many definitions as there are men to interpret it."

Clark claimed the laws were not made for one group and that "labor should not be privileged to erect a barrier between itself and any law."

Hammond, Ore., July 13 (AP)—An unconfirmed report here today indicated 1000 more soldiers soon will arrive at Fort Stevens, supplementing nearly 600 already there.

Two Britons and Toy Gun Take Germans

London, July 13 (U.P.)—Two men, armed only with a toy pistol, yesterday disarmed five members of the crew of a German Heinkel bomber which had been forced down in a field in southwest England.

Samuel Chaplin Brown, 37, was painting the front door of an inn when the plane landed. The inn landlord, whose name was not disclosed, shouted, "Come on, let's get those Jerries."

The landlord, his hand in his pocket as though concealing a pistol, jumped a hedge and advanced on the German aviators and Brown, clutching a toy pistol, followed him. They all shouted to the Germans, one of whom was six feet six inches tall, "give us those guns."

The Germans complied meekly and waited with Brown and the landlord until a military detachment arrived to take them into custody.

Confession May Free Negroes

Folsom Prison, Calif., July 13 (AP)—A Folsom prison convict was en route to Stockton today in custody of officers who will investigate his confession of a double knife slaying, for which two negroes have been indicted.

Warden Clyde I. Plummer said the convict, Ernest Striplin, had been removed from solitary confinement where he was placed after telling his story, and was delivered into the custody of Sheriff Martin Ansbroe of San Joaquin county.

Plummer said Striplin told how he was under the influence of a narcotic the night of April 28 when he killed Nathan Chinchiolo, 23, of Stockton, and Dorothy Woofter, 19, of Tracy, in a weed patch near the Stockton airport.

Striplin twice has been convicted of robbery and was committed to Folsom last June 3 as a parole violator.

Awaiting trial on the murder charges are Dewey Clark, 29, and Earl Jones, 38. They were accused of having been seen riding in Chinchiolo's car after the slaying. Both pleaded innocent on the murder charges and their trial was set for next August 5.

Plummer said Striplin declared that he jumped onto the running board of the car in which the two were riding with the intent of robbing them; that when Chinchiolo started to fight he stabbed the young man, then after dragging Chinchiolo from the car he ravished and stabbed the girl.

Blockade Continues

Berlin, July 13 (AP)—The German high command proclaimed fresh successes today in the "starvation blockade" against England claiming the seizure of "valuable" cargoes and asserting that effective blows had been struck from the air at British steamers in the English channel.

Continued bombing of harbors and other strategic areas in the British Isles also was reported.

It was said semi-officially that altogether 40,000 tons of British shipping were damaged yesterday by the airforce alone.

At the same time the military command reported the sinking of 24,674 tons of "enemy cargo space." The period of this action was not disclosed.

German planes operating over the English channel were credited with sinking one outpost vessel and a cargo steamer of 2000 tons and with seriously damaging five other cargo steamers.

The air force meanwhile was said to have "successfully bombed" airdromes, harbor facilities and munitions factories in England and Scotland.

British air losses yesterday totaled 13 planes, the high command said, and five German planes are missing.

London, July 13 (AP)—Three German aircraft were destroyed by British fighters off the southeast coast tonight after British bombers last night and today had pounded naval bases at Emden and Kiel and objectives in the Rhineland, the air ministry announced.
