

A Cake That's a Triumph

For most of us, making a cake that's a masterpiece—a triumph of flavor and delicacy—is a satisfying achievement, whether it's a fudge cake, rich and dark, or an Angel Food cake, snowy white and light as a feather. It's more than a matter of luck, your success in cake baking; it's choosing a good recipe and fine ingredients; blending those ingredients with a light and knowing hand; and baking the cake to bring out its finest flavor, to make it moist, light, golden-brown and delicious to the last crumb.

This "Black Angel Cake" is an unusually good chocolate cake that keeps well—if you can find a safe spot for it! Choose, for your cake, the best ingredients, combine them with care, then trust the baking to the accurately controlled heat in the oven of your modern electric range. Uniform heat in the oven of these ranges insures even baking and browning; there's no necessity for watching, no need for changing the position of the pans in the oven; just set the thermostat at the desired temperature, and breathe the oven.

Black Angel Cake
(Makes two 9-inch layers)
Part 1
2½ squares (¾ ounce) unsweetened chocolate
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup sweet milk
2 eggs (well beaten)
Melt chocolate on surface unit on electric range, with switch turned to third position. Gradually add remaining ingredients and cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens (about 8 minutes).
Cool.
Part 2
1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs (well beaten)
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups cake flour
¼ teaspoon soda

serve a number of guests, cut an inside circle, first, half way between the center of the cake and the outer edge. Then cut 12 pie-shaped pieces from the inside circle, and 24 pieces from the outside circle.

Cut a square cake into 16 equal squares, then cut across the cake, diagonally, to divide each square into triangular pieces.

Divide a rectangular cake into 5 equal, lengthwise strips. Then, starting at one corner, cut through the strips diagonally.

If a bit of egg yolk gets into the whites, it may be removed with a piece of the shell, or with the corner of a damp towel.

To hold an angel food tin in place while the cake cools, turn a funnel upside down, and insert the end into the tube of the pan.

Remember that a bit of salt is needed in cakes to bring out the flavor of the ingredients.
