Activities Planned On Campus

Willamette University Campus—The holiday season finds the campus practically deserted with the major part of the student body visiting their parents or friends and relatives. Lausanne hall is remaining open during the holiday season for the few co-eds who remain in town but meals will not be served and a few students will remain at the fraternity and sorority houses during the holidays.

The traditional Willamette-Whitman football game proved a drawing card for students and faculty members remaining for the holidays. Also in evidence in the spectators' row when the gold and blue and the cardinal and gold clad men trotted on the Sweetland field for the yearly Thanksgiving encounter were a number of alumni who were in Salem for the holidays.

Social events, debate, speech and dramatics will claim the attention of the students when they return from their holiday relaxation. Co-eds will be making plans for their winter formal which always follow the football season, dramatic students will begin practices for their one-act play contests and speech students will continue their hard grind of practice for future speech events.
