

Reynolds Tells Why Longview Was Chosen

Washington, March 21 (AP)—R. S. Reynolds, president of the Reynolds company of Richmond, Va., which chose Longview, Wash., as site for its new aluminum plant, explained in a statement made public by Senator McNary (R-Ore) the reasons for the company choosing the Longview site.

The statement was sent by Reynolds to Paul J. Raver, Bonneville administrator, and forwarded to the senator by Secretary Ickes, McNary and Senator Holman (R-Ore) had urged the company select a site in Oregon.

"We are entering upon a highly competitive and hazardous undertaking," Reynolds said. "In such an undertaking cost of operation is a deciding factor. As early as last November we contacted the Bonneville power administration with view of securing power for such a plant in the northwest. Since that time my experts have carefully surveyed all available sites in the northwest. Within the past two weeks my engineers have re-surveyed the available sites, with particular attention to Cascade Locks and other sites within a 15 miles radius."

Reynolds said because of the highly competitive nature of the business his company was particularly interested in the low cost power available within the 15-mile radius of Bonneville dam but found it would increase the costs of handling materials to locate at that spot.

The company president said it was not the intention to continue handling alumina by rail but that it expected to handle it by shipping of all types and carrying bauxite to a bauxite reduction plant by water. He said the 27-foot channel in the Columbia would have limited the type of vessels used for this transportation or would have required rehandling of the materials.

He said in spite of this the company considered locating the alumina reduction plant at Cascade Locks and the bauxite reduction plant further down the Columbia where ocean going vessels could dock.

He said eventually it was decided both plants must be located at the same site.

500,000 Will Help in Sale Of Securities

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The treasury today began enrolling an army of 500,000 persons to assist in a campaign to sell billions of dollars worth of the new defense savings securities to the American public.

Gale F. Johnson, St. Louis insurance man who will supervise the drive, said the campaign workers would be sent out to ask employers to use the securities for employee savings plans; to canvass the schools; to urge labor union cooperation; to arrange with banks so depositors can have the bonds bought for them regularly and charged to their accounts, and to organize other promotional activities.

Governors, mayors and other prominent local officials will be asked to name communities in even the smallest communities. Johnson explained that the theme of the drive would be for continuous purchases rather than large lump sum transactions.

For example, he said, the idea would be to encourage a school child in the habit of buying one 10 cent savings stamp a week or month, rather than to have the child buy $5 worth at one time, and then forget about the matter.

The new securities, announced last night by Secretary Morgenthau, were graded in denominations all the way from 10 cents to $10,000, in order to make such regular purchase programs fit into almost any size purse.

Blossom Day Plans Laid Out

If weather continues to be favorable Salem's annual Blossom day probably will be within the next two weeks. This was the opinion at a meeting of the Cherrians last night when plans for the event were pretty definitely laid.

Donald Dekebach and Orval Lama were detailed by King Bing Frank Doerfler to select and mark out the Blossom day route, and Carl Gabrielson to arrange for open house at the state capitol.

On Saturday night following Blossom day the Cherrians will put on a benefit dance to raise funds for a float to be entered in the Rose Festival parade in Portland next June. Arrangements for the dance are in the hands of a committee composed of Deryl Myers, William Bell, Claybourne Dyer, and Rex Kimmell. On the ticket committee are Harry Weinstein, S. W. Starr, Carl Collins, W. J. Farrell and William McCleary.

VITAL VITAMINS

An erroneous impression prevails that milk is a whole food containing all of the necessary vitamins. This is no more true of milk than of any other food. Vitamins C and D are not completely contained in milk, others equally important are entirely absent.

The truth is that where illness has existed for some time, or debility has set in for any reason, the body requires extra vitamins, and these are best obtained in a scientifically prepared form.

Any indication that the system needs toning up calls for a visit to your doctor. If he finds you need them, his prescription will specify those missing vitamins supplied by a druggist in a well-stocked drug store.

AIR'S FREE so why not use it?

GETTING right down to it, one reason why you get as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon from a 1941 FIREBALL Buick with Compound Carburetion is that this engine is supplied with more air.

For it is a mixture of gasoline and air that gives you power.

A single carburetor, no matter how many jets it has, can handle only so much air — which is nearly always too little for full-out, high-power performance.

But two carburetors that function as needed, as is the case in Compound Carburetion, can meet any fuel-supply need from low-speed to heavy-power use — and always provide a well-balanced mixture.

They can double the air supply as well as the gasoline feed — and that's something you can't do in any single-carburetor car.

So Compound Carburetion leads to big savings in fuel costs.

You get as much as 800 miles for the gas-cost of 700 in earlier Buicks of the same size.

It also provides a walloping big bank of reserve power, which means an up-and-at-'em lift and surge that's nothing short of thrilling to experience.

And you can have Compound Carburetion, you know, on any 1941 Buick — it's only a few dollars extra on the swell big SPECIAL pictured here, and standard equipment on all other models.

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $915 for the Business Coupe delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires, state tax, optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.
