41st Division On Two Days Sham Battle

Fort Lewis, April 21 (AP)—For the first time since it was called to active service last September, the 41st division plunged today into a two-day war game that will see every infantry, artillery, engineer, signal, medical and supporting unit in concerted, simulated combat.

With Fort Lewis and the new 41st division cantonment in the hands of a theoretical enemy, more than 15,000 men of the 41st girded themselves at Rainier, Wash., for a gigantic offensive push during the night that will culminate with a full divisional attack at dawn tomorrow.

Fighting side by side will be Oregon and Washington infantry and artillery, Idaho artillerymen and engineers, Montana infantrymen and Wyoming service troops.

The 41st has not fought as a complete unit since last summer's far west war games. Since that time, the Pacific northwest division has been put on active duty and progressively trained in company, regimental and brigade combat. From partly-trained civilian-soldiers, the men have been drilled into seasoned troopers.

Watching the 41st in its first big test were Major General George A. White of Salem, Ore., divisional commander, and Major General Kenyon A. Joyce, corps commander.

This was the problem facing the 41st:

The enemy has captured the northwest's biggest military post. Theoretically, the 3rd division, backed against the Nisqually river, is holding it at bay. The 41st is preparing for an offensive push at Rainier.

At sundown, the 41st will start moving up 10 miles under blackout conditions for a dawn attack designed to dislodge the enemy. The northwest troops will attempt to drive it onto the Nisqually tideslats and force a "little Dunkerque" evacuation.

In precious brigade combat maneuvers, 31st troops have always been on the defensive. The current "war" will put them in the role of attackers for the first time.

Brest Bombed; Cologne Also

London, April 21 (UP)—British bombers hammered at Brest, an important German U-boat base, Cologne, Duesseldorf, Aachen and numerous other places last night, the air ministry said today. Large fires were observed at Cologne and bombs burst near a dry-dock at Brest, the air ministry said.

A 3000-ton enemy supply ship was reported to have been hit and left in sinking condition off the Norwegian coast yesterday.

The weather was bad and results were difficult to observe, the air ministry said, but large fires were seen at Cologne. Other British bombers were said to have attacked Duesseldorf, Aachen and several airfields in Germany and German-occupied territory.

Oil stores at Rotterdam and docks at Dunkerque on the "Invasion" coast also were bombed, the air ministry said.

British planes, in daylight operations yesterday, went after enemy shipping off the Dutch and Norwegian coasts. A heavily-laden supply ship of about 3000-ton was said to have been encountered off Norway, hit and left sinking.

Jones Deplores Defense Lag

New York, April 21 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones declared today that although defense activity is "better than good," there is no room for American "complacency."

"There is no place for indifference," Jones said in a speech prepared for delivery at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

The secretary couped a report of progress in defense over the past year with two warnings:

"If the aggressor nations are successful, our generation is apt to see little of tranquility."

"If we are to get ready to defend ourselves, let's be sure that we do a good job of it."

Dwelling momentarily on "our lack of preparedness" a year ago, he conceded it is "not easy for a peace loving people like ours to change overnight from purely peace time pursuits to complete all-out effort at arming, even for defense."

"This is particularly true," he said, "because we have always had faith in the protection of the oceans, and have always believed that no power could invade us."

"Maybe we can't be invaded, but we might become isolated economically, and that would inevitably lead to war. Trade outlets are the cause of most wars."

Shipping Key To Outcome of War Says Lovell

Ability of America to provide shipping will be the determining factor in the outcome of the present European conflict, in the opinion of Dr. R. Ivan Lovell, professor of history, who spoke to the Chamber of Commerce today on the latest developments abroad. Loss of the Suez canal would not be as serious as lack of merchant ships on the Atlantic ocean, he held. Great Britain, losing around 350,000 tons of shipping a month, can lose another 4,500,000 tons before the situation becomes critical, Dr. Lovell declared.

Penetration of Latin-American countries, with 20,000,000 people of axis nationality was viewed as a greater menace than loss of Greece and Turkey with a "second Dunkerque" in the Mediterranean sea.

Most significant development in the world conflict since the first of the year was the lend-lease bill and the subsequent developments such as the $7,000,000,000 appropriation measure.

"The United States is not at war but is in the war, both morally and materially," Dr. Lovell declared. "This does not involve the sending of expeditionary forces to Europe but involves this country in support to British principles of democracy and the loss of the British fleet would place the United States on the verge of the danger of aggression but not invasion."

Oil stores at Rotterdam and docks at Dunkerque on the "Invasion" coast also were bombed, the air ministry said.

British planes, in daylight operations yesterday, went after enemy shipping off the Dutch and Norwegian coasts. A heavily-laden supply ship of about 3000-ton was said to have been encountered off Norway, hit and left sinking.

Windsor Visits Relief Group

Palm Beach, Fla., April 21 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor took time out from his preparation of a local radio address today to visit Palm Beach headquarters of a British war relief group and question workers about details of the organization.

The duke's broadcast was described as a message of "sincere appreciation to the people of Palm Beach and America for the sympathy and material aid being extended to the British Empire."

The talk was to be transcribed some time this afternoon for broadcasting over station WJNO of Palm Beach at 4:30 p. m. (PST).

The Windsors plan to leave tomorrow aboard the private plane of Harold Vanderbilt for the Bahamas Islands, which the duke governs. They came here last Friday.

Last night, members of some of America's most prominent families waited in line to meet the Windsors at a cocktail party given by Capt. Alistair Mackintosh, long-time friend of the duke, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dillman. Later they attended a small dinner party given by Herbert Pulitzer, New York publisher.

Need Doctors for British Service

Washington, April 21 (AP)—One thousand young American doctors today were asked to volunteer for service in Great Britain to meet "desperately" acute needs of British military and civilian hospitals.

President Roosevelt and the British Red Cross made the appeal, Mr. Roosevelt acting in his capacity as president of the American Red Cross.

The American Medical Association's journal, in an editorial, assured Britain of "every possible assistance," and revealed that the AMA has supplied the Red Cross with lists of eligible young doctors. It recalled that 1,300 American doctors went to Britain in 1917.

The AMA's committee on medical preparedness will aid in selecting the volunteers and pass on their qualifications. The division of medical sciences of the national research council has established a special subcommittee on medical personnel for Britain.

Young surgeons and physicians who volunteer for British service will be enrolled by the Red Cross in Britain and will "work under the protection of the Red Cross treaty of Geneva, a covenant which has been respected by belligerents since 1864," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Those accepted will not be required to swear allegiance to Britain and will not forfeit citizenship. Applications will be accepted at the Washington headquarters of the Red Cross.

Interior department officials said that water for irrigation will be made available gradually over a period of years as canals are located and constructed and some parts of the Columbia basin might be watered in 1944 or 1945.
