Oregon Leads in Traffic Safety

Oregon and the city of Portland led the nation in saving lives in traffic during the first three months of 1941. Secretary of State Earl Snell said today.

Compared with last year, Oregon saved 18 lives during the period. Portland led all cities of more than 250,000 population with a 56 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities. This record, Snell said, was better than those of Kansas City and Dallas, Tex., winners in the cities traffic safety contest of the National Safety Council last year. "While Oregon made a fine record during the first quarter of the year," Snell said, "some of the ground gained was lost in April when deaths totaled 40, compared with 22 for April, 1940."

such a claim, but if the application so states, I must have," he said.
