Trading Dull On N. Y. Market, Demand Limited

New York, June 21 (U.P.) — The stock market made an irregular advance today with trading dull.

Demand was so limited that some leading issues were untraded. Others only came out once. Largest volume was in Southern Pacific and Socony-Vacuum, which held at the previous closing levels.

Steel shares were better on outlook for a steel operating rate just under 100 per cent of capacity. Coppers were narrowly irregular. Utilities held around the previous close while rails were steady to firm.

A few issues had wide changes. American Airlines lost nearly 4 points, while Vulcan Detinning preferred gained a 4 points to a new high. J. I. Case opened at 60 off 2¼ and failed to make another appearance. McLellan Stores gained 3 points on a single sale. Thompson-Starrett preferred was off more than a point.

Armour preferred rose more than a point. Small gains were noted in American Smelting, Santa Fe, Consolidated Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, Dow Chemical, International Nickel, Kennecott, Proctor and Gamble, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil, (N. J.) Union Carbide and Woolworth.

Dow Jones closing stock averages: Industrial, 122.51, up 0.33; rail, 27.99, up 0.06; utility, 17.75, off 0.02, and 65 stocks, 41.17, up 0.09.

Stock sales approximated 130,000 shares, the smallest short session turnover since May 31, and compared with 190,000 a week ago. Curb stock sales were 27,000 shares against 36,000 last Saturday.

Wheat Prices Boosted Today

Chicago, June 21 (U.P.)—Moderate demand generated by a sharp run-up at Minneapolis and strength in soy beans boosted wheat prices more than a cent a bushel today.

After profit-taking, wheat closed ⅝ to ¾ or a cent higher.

Soy beans rose to the best level since 1937. The upturn was due to the strength in oils and lard. The close was 1⅝ to 2 cents higher.

Corn finished up ½ to 1 cent; oats ¼ to ⅝ higher, and rye up ⅝.

The December corn future established a new top for the season. Demand was credited to professionals and commercial interests.

Cloudy to clear skies prevailed over the grain belt. The forecast was for showers and cooler weather.

Potato Hearing At Klamath Falls

Washington, June 21 (AP) — A hearing on an agreement which would keep surplus, low grade Irish potatoes off the market will be held at Klamath Falls, July 10.

Similar hearings are scheduled for Washington, Nebraska and Wyoming.

The Klamath Falls hearing will be fore Deschutes, Crook and Klamath counties, Ore., and Modoc and Siskiyou counties, Calif., all of which would be affected by the program. Potato growing areas of Malheur county, Ore., and Idaho may participate.

Plans for a referendum will be made after the hearings.

Tardy Berries to Keep Canneries For Next Month

Latness of the season caused by unusual weather, especially for some types of berries, is apt to push the first half of the commercial canning year here well toward the end of July and with blackberries coming along in August followed by pears and prunes there will not be the usual considerable space of time between the two portions of the canning season this year, say canners.

The loganberries which started a week ago or so are still coming in very slowly with small deliveries only reported due to slow ripening and this crop may extend on into the middle of July.

Boysenberries, one of the few items not yet started, will probably not get to going until the latter part of next week and canners say they may stretch through most of July. Youngberries have been going for some days but will probably last for three weeks yet.

Raspberries will extend through most of July. While local red raspberries have been rolling in for some time Reid, Murdoch company expect by next week the reds will be coming rapidly from the Lebanon section where there are some large plantings. Ther red raspberries look very fine so far. Blackcap raspberries also have been coming along but are not expected to last as long as the red raspberries.

Marshall strawberries will probably extend along to July 1 and possibly past July 4 in the Silverton hills where there are large quantities of fine berries yet to be picked. The Red Heart strawberries are still coming in but they are expected to be pretty nearly over this week.

A lot of local cherries are not yet picked and these will probably run over into July although the cherries from Hood River and The Dalles are expected to be wound up by the end of next week.

These guesses by cannerymen are all dependent on weather conditions but good weather is apparently in the offing.

Sewage Bonds Win Approval

Glenn Gregg, chairman of the council sewage and drainage committee, announced today that the bonds for the city's share in the construction of the new $400,000 sewage disposal plant had been approved. The bonds have been in the hands of a Portland bond expert for some time.

This new development leaves the way clear for further action on the construction of the huge plant. Monday night the council accepted the recommendation of Gregg's committee, and selected John Cunningham and associates to supervise the actual construction of the disposal plant.

A special meeting of the city council has been called for 5 p. m. Monday evening to authorize the city recorder and mayor to call for bids for the bonds.

At the same meeting the council will handle any emergency matters that may arise concerning the airport.

Canners' League Deny Indictment Charges

The Canners' League of California has issued a statement bearing on five indictments recently returned by the federal grand jury in San Francisco charging violations of the anti-trust laws by California associations manufacturing, processing, distributing and selling food products.

The statement is extensive but boiled down the gist of it is as follows:

Specific and unequivocal denial of the charge that the canners' league has directly or indirectly participated in any attempt to set or control prices paid for raw materials or charged distributors or the public for the finished products. The association, the statement says, is organized for an entirely different purpose and only one time in recent years has it ever been consulted on either prices or control of production and that was at the direct request of federal and state departments of agriculture to prevent demoralization of prices paid to cling peach growers. That price fixing, says the statement, was done by the government and successfully.

The statement points out the league has cooperated whole heartedly with the national defense council and office of production management, and through recent months has cooperated in an effort to pack and supply canned foods for Britain. It points out the canners are working in full cooperation with three branches of government while a fourth, indicts them for supposed violations of the anti-trust laws.

Through cooperation canners have improved and standardized the quality of their pack, continues the statement, at the close of each crop year have worked in cooperation with the growers and have secured and compiled historical information and studies as to trends of production, consumption and price and have met cooperatively with growers and university economists and discussed data which is public property.

The league also, the statement says, conducts a traffic department which represents the industry at conferences for rate making purposes and for more than 20 years has printed and kept up to date standard contract buying forms which have nothing whatever to do with price.

In conjunction with Chambers of Commerce the league has been active in seeing that production-for-use canneries confined their activities to the purpose for which they were intended, aid for needy families, says the statement. It is pointed out that during the entire period covered by the indictments the canning business in California has been unprofitable and that this is known by every banker and the reconstruction finance corporation.

The statement points out that the department of justice officials have publicly stated the prime purpose of these blanket indictments being brought all over the country and covering all types of business operations is to prevent price spirals in war tmie.

"We submit," concludes the statement, "that the indictment of great numbers of business men in anticipation of what they might do is not the fair American way."

Lindy Urges Negotiations To End War

Hollywood, June 21 (AP) — Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, urging that the United States stay out of war, says "the only way European civilization can be saved is by ending the war quickly through a negotiated peace."

"The alternative to a negotiated peace," he told an overflow crowd in 20,000 seat Hollywood Bowl last night, "is either a Hitler victory or a prostrate Europe, and possibly a prostrate America as well. I tell you that the only way our American life and ideals can be preserved is by staying out of this war.

"We are still unprepared for war, and it would take us years to prepare adequately for the type of war we now consider entering." * * *

The crowd stood and gave Lindbergh a shouted, hat throwing, flag waving ovation as he began his speech, his first in the far west.

There were a few scattered hisses and boos, uttered so low they were heard only a few seats away.

A front page editorial in the Times yesterday morning had said: "Lindbergh and his associates come here to enunciate certain convictions * * * It is not important that Lindbergh be heard, but vitally important that he be given full opportunity to be heard."

Lindbergh fidgeted from foot to foot as he read his speech.

Others speaking on the program were Senator D. Worth Clark of Idaho, novelist Kathleen Norris and Lillian Gish, former actress.

Miss Benfer to Speak Sunday Eve

Miss Rachel Benfer, field secretary for the national board of home missions of the Presbyterian church, will address members of the First Presbyterian congregation of this city Sunday evening. She will speak on the topic "Salty Disciples." Special music will be furnished by a mixed quartet and by a young people's choir of 25 voices, directed by Virginia Ward Elliott. The morning service will be featured by the singing of two anthems by the vested choir, "O For a Closer Walk with God" and "Arise O Lord." Rev. W. Irvin Williams will speak on the theme "Obedience."

A special rally for all young people's groups of the church will be held Sunday afternoon at 5:30. A song service will be held, and Miss Benfer will speak on "Unputoutables." At the youth fellowship meeting following church services, final plans will be made by the members of a party planning to climb Mt. Hood Monday and Tuesday of next week.

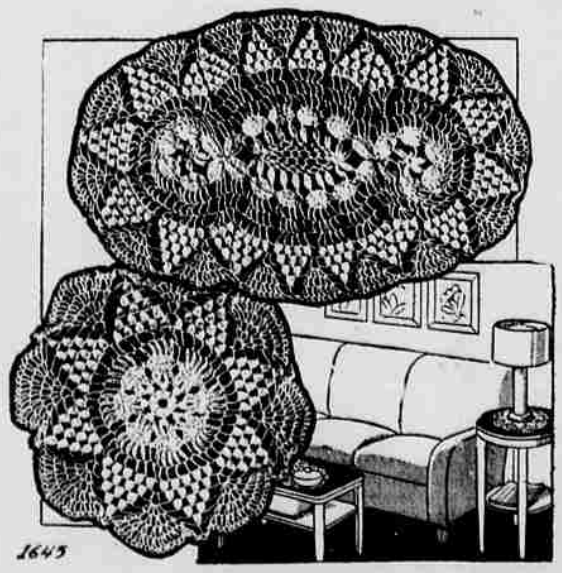
Easy-to-Crochet Doilies

By Baroness Plantonl



PATTERN No. 1645

There are dozens of places about the house that cry out for a touch of fresh white lace. What better way to supply that need than by putting your crochet hook to work and making these two lovely doilies. The round one measures 9½ inches across; the oblong one measures 9½ inches by 15 inches. You'll find these sizes very serviceable. They are made of a few balls of size 20 crochet cotton. Pattern envelope contains complete easy-to-read and easy-to-follow directions for above. Send 10c (coin) for No. 1645 to Capital Journal Needle Arts Dept., 149 New Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.

McKennon Will Represent State At Utah Meeting

The Oregon department of agriculture will be represented at the Western Plant Board meeting June 23-25 in Salt Lake City, Utah, by Frank McKennon, chief of the plant division, and W. E. Upshaw, manager of the Portland branch office.

New developments in pest treatments, final report on an extensive alfalfa weevil study and report on bacterial ring rot are among items to be considered.

Avery Steinmetz, Portland, president of the American Nurserymen's association, is slated to deliver a paper on cooperation between nurserymen and regulatory officials.

Immediately following the plant board sessions, the Western Area Standardization conference will convene in Salt Lake City for two days. Mr. Upshaw is chairman of this conference, at which Oregon will be represented also by W. L. Close, federal-state shipping point supervisor and Ross Aubrey, supervisor of the Klamath district shipping point office.

Fire Drill at Nudists Camp In England

Somewhere In Britain, June 21 (U.P.)—An attendant wearing a cockney cap and knee-high firemen's boots — and nothing else — demonstrated a stirrup-pump for fighting fires today at one of Britain's most popular nudist camps.

A dozen undressed men and women watched the demonstration eagerly.

Charles Macaskie, the grey-bearded, Scottish manager of the camp, said nudity is gaining popularity rapidly in Britain.

"Possibly it's because when people come from air raid shelters, factories and the fighting forces, they really want to relax and get away from the war," he said.

This camp is far from being out of the war, however. It has such air raid precautions as anti-splinter fabric on the windows of its buildings, one air raid shelter and two stirrup pumps.

It is situated in a section where many fighter, bomber and reconnaissance training planes are based, and most pilots know the camp's location by dead reckoning. Low-flying bomber squadrons skirt the trees and reconnaissance planes circle the camp daily.

Macaskie said several Royal Air Force officers on leave are resting in the nudist camp.

Macaskie's camp provides weekly family rates under which a group of three can vacation without clothes as inexpensively as $10 weekly.

Colored Pictures Are Presented

Stained glass windows of France and England of various periods of time varying from the 13th to the 20th century were shown in colored pictures by the study group of the Catholic Daughters of America Wednesday evening at the Salem Women's club rooms. The program was presented in cooperation with the Columbia Museum of Dubuque, Iowa.

A description of the manner in which stained glass windows were made at various periods of history was read by Miss Lorraine Meusey from Dr. Edward M. Hulme's book, "The Middle Ages." Others assisting in the presentation of the program were Leah Suing and Mrs. A. W. Lovick.

The pictures shown included a large number from Chartres, many from other French cathedrals, and some from English cathedrals.

After the pictures were shown a social hour was presented by the Capitol Court of the Catholic Daughters of America. The committee in charge included Mrs. J. D. White, Mrs. F. E. Kenyon, Mrs. F. A. Rademacher and Mrs. Madge Olesby.
