Coulee Lake at Its Maximum

Grand Coulee, July 11 (AP)—The 151-mile-long lake behind Grand Coulee dam will reach its maximum height tomorrow, adding vitally needed kilowatts to the dam's output of the power that will help "provide the strength for the crushing blow that will break the axis' back."

John C. Page, commissioner of reclamation, said today.

Advising Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes that rising waters from the Columbia river's tributaries in Canada, Idaho and Montana were bringing the storage basin to its peak elevation, Page said "each new kilowatt that the new level of the Grand Coulee dam reservoir permits us to produce has long been catalogued for service on the production front."

Water plunging through huge penstocks in the dam is driving three of the world's largest hydro-electric units, each of 108,000 kilowatt capacity, and each inch added to the elevation of the lake level increases the efficiency of the mammoth generators, Page explained.

The lake, stretching east and north to the Canadian boundary, averages 4,000 feet in width and 375 feet in depth. Page said it contains enough water to provide every person with two and a half railroad tank cars brim full—a total of 10,000,000 acre feet of water.

Air Attacks on Convoys Serious

London, July 11 (AP)—Recent German naval and air attacks on allied convoys bound for Russian Arctic ports may necessitate a re-examination of the whole Russian supply problem in the opinion of available British sources.

These quarters described as "grossly exaggerated" the Nazi claims that 35 allied vessels were destroyed last week in assaults on a convoy in the Barents sea, but they did not minimize the gravity of the outlook.

The difficulty of getting supplies safely through to Russia over the northern route, it was pointed out, is complicated by the fact that daylight now prevails around the clock in the Arctic—a condition that will last for four or five weeks more.

Nazi planes, operating from Norwegian bases, thus are able to keep the allied supply lanes under surveillance for 24 hours a day and direct the operations of naval vessels waiting in hidden fjords to sally forth for hit-and-run attacks.

It was expected the admiralty would issue a statement soon on the latest assault, during which, the Russians say, counter-attacking soviet submarines scored torpedo hits on the Nazi battleship Tirpitz.

Training Meet For Leaders of Defense Held

A training meeting for leaders representing 46 of the 47 communities of Marion county set up under the neighborhood leader program on direction of the secretary of agriculture to assist the war effort, was held last night under the direction of County Agent Robert Rieder and steps taken toward selection of neighborhood leaders to blanket the entire county in small neighborhoods of from 10 to 20 families each.

Under the program there are two leaders named in each community, a man and a woman, and the only district without leaders present last night was Silverton Hills, there being a full attendance from the others. Maps were on hand for each community and the neighborhood areas of from 10 to 20 homes were blocked off on these maps and the community leaders suggested the names for two neighborhood leaders for each neighborhood, which will give a total of about 750 such neighborhood leaders in the county.

From now on, stated the county agent, the job will be to work through each of the communities and neighborhoods on jobs to aid in the war effort. The plan as outlined by the secretary of agriculture is to have a nationwide setup for imparting information on win the war problems and the first of these will be to outline the president's program to combat inflation and get as nearly a 100 per cent cooperation as possible throughout the country.

E. A. Lowe Dies At Lebanon

Lebanon, July 11—Elnathan A. Lowe, Lebanon mortician, 39, died Friday evening as a result of a heart attack, which he suffered at the Sagert stock ranch.

Born in Portland, September 14, 1903, he came to Lebanon in 1913 and later became associated with the Lowe mortuary, becoming manager of the mortuary at the death of her father, June 13, 1940.

Lowe, who has been active in civic affairs for many years, was a member of the Lions club, the Chamber of Commerce and was past president of the Willamette district Morticians' association. He had been instrumental in organizing the Lebanon cavalry unit of the Oregon Home guard.

In December, 1924, in Klamath Falls, he was married to Adah Nicholson who survives him. Other survivors are two sons, Nathan Albert, 7, and Roger Allen, 4, his mother, Mrs. Winifred Lowe and a grandmother, Mrs. Eliza Whitlock, all of Lebanon.

Services will be held Monday, July 13, at 2 p.m. at Lowe mortuary chapel with Rev. LeRoy Crossley officiating. Interment will be in the Masonic cemetery.

Increases for Fruit Pay Announced

Washington, July 11 (AP)—The agriculture department announced Friday increases of about $40 a ton in prices which it will pay growers for dried apricots and pears for shipment to Great Britain and Russia under the lend-lease program.

The prices will average roughly $380 a ton for dried apricots and $260 a ton for pears. These prices supersede those announced by the department on June 20.

Officials said the revision was necessary to encourage maximum production of these crops by assisting growers in meeting increased production costs and to better align the prices for the fruits used for drying with those used for canning.

Flanagan Funeral Held at Marshfield

Marshfield, July 11 (AP)—Funeral services were held Friday for John W. Flanagan, 62, acting postmaster here for four years. He died Wednesday after an illness of two years. He had been in the real estate and insurance business most of his life. The widow, two daughters and three sons survive.

Battle Raging In Outskirts Of Voronezh

portant Russian forces, with 8,900 taken prisoners.)

The main aim of the enemy offensive southeastward appeared to be to move against the north flank of the Russian defense lines around Rostov and to advance through the Rossosh sector, south of the Don river bend, in an effort to isolate the Caucasus. (This presumably would involve a long push across flat country toward Astrakhan on the Caspian sea at the mouth of the Volga.)

But the most intense fighting for the time being was on the Don river, near Voronezh where the Germans moved up reinforcements in an effort to take that city. (The Germans claim they have held Voronezh since last Tuesday.)

Nazi Bridgehead Lost

Dispatches from the front said that the Germans had moved up the 100th German infantry division from Kursk in an effort to smash into Voronezh but that a new German bridgehead had been wiped out and that the bulk of the enemy forces still was held west of the Don. The situation remained very grave for the Russians, however.

Dispatches also reported that the battle of the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, appeared to be developing favorably for the red army, which stemmed the enemy offensive with a series of powerful counterblows.

The Germans made some break throughs, driving wedges into the Russian lines but these were reported held by Russian flanking attacks, which were "methodically wiping out isolated enemy tank and infantry units," press reports said.

The battle front, over which larger air battles were being fought with the Russians holding the edge, was described as surging back and forth, with the initiative frequently changing hands.

The communist party organ Pravda reported 100 German tanks and an infantry division (15,000 men) had crossed the river Don opposite Voronezh and established a battle front. City of 212,000

They were in the outskirts of Voronezh, a city of 212,000 persons and another point on the Moscow-Rostov railway, but, constantly hammered by soviet tanks and artillery were unable to be reinforced from their main bases on the west bank.

Desperate attempts to establish another bridgehead failed. The defenders repulsed a series of fierce assaults, both on east and west banks of the Don, inflicting heavy losses on the Germans, but they hurried up reinforcements and increased their pressure.

Boston Common Out of Bounds

Boston, July 11 (AP)—Historic Boston common has been declared "out of bounds" after 10 p.m. to men in uniform and "teen-aged girls in a move to eliminate conditions described by John J. Walsh, the city's civilian defense director, as deplorable.

Police, civil and military, and the navy shore patrols last night ordered approximately 500 sailors, soldiers and marines, many accompanied by young women, to leave the spacious greensward.

The police took nine girls under 17 years old into custody and notified their parents to call for them.

Tokyo Bomber Gets Flying Cross

Portland, Ore., July 11 (AP)—Another of Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Tokyo raiders, Sgt. Wayne M. Bissell, 20, Vancouver, Wash., received the distinguished flying cross today.

The presentation was made to the bombardier by Col. Joseph L. Stromme, commander of the army air base here, at a formal review.

Sgt. Morris E. Hicks, stationed at the base, was awarded the soldiers' medal for attempting to rescue Pvt. Elven Wyant, who drowned at Morgan beach on the Columbia river last August.

Supplementary articles of incorporation have been filed for the First M. E. church of Jefferson, naming it the Jefferson Methodist church and setting out certain specific purposes and manner of discipline. J. O. Van Winkle, Mrs. G. C. Mason and Mrs. Jos. G. Fontaine are named as incorporators.

Portland, July 11 (AP)—Portland merchants reported record payments today of old charge accounts.

The government deadline on payment of old bills fell yesterday, and one department store said the incoming cash was three times normal.

The payments were ordered in an anti-inflationary move.

Sprague to Stay In Politics to Upbuild Party

Portland, Ore., July 11 (AP)—Declaring his retirement from the governorship of Oregon does not mean his retirement from politics, Governor Charles A. Sprague called upon 200 candidates and party workers assembled here to regard the republican party as a tool to effect good government and to keep party harmony and unity.

The governor was chief speaker at today's opening session of the biennial organization meeting of the republican state central committee, being held here Saturday.

"There is more to a political party than mere holding of office," Gov. Sprague declared. "It must be an effective agency of government."

Commenting upon his continued activity in politics, the governor said that he was definitely not announcing himself as a candidate for any office, adding that party harmony and unity cannot be a "one way street."

Governor Sprague spoke after E. Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Oregonian, told the delegates, candidates and workers that the future of America is as "bright as your ideals of service."

"Proper constructive criticism can help to win this war," Hoyt said. "Vital criticism is that which seeks to prevent improper use of funds, boondoggling, playing politics with American lives and lackadaisical attitudes toward the war effort."

"Unreasonable criticism," Hoyt continued, "is to refer to the president as a war monger, to seek to thrust a wedge between the allies and to advocate isolationist policies."

Farm Families Average Bigger

Washington, July 11 (AP)—Oregon's farm households are larger on the average than those in urban and rural non-farm areas, the census bureau reported today.

Based on the 1940 census, the rural farm dwelling had an average of 3.55 residents which was considerably below the national average of 4.25.

The average for Oregon's rural non-farm dwellings was 3.26 persons compared to the national average of 3.78. For urban dwellings the figure was 3.08 in the state and 3.61 nationally.

The white population occupied 33,938 of the state's 337,492 dwellings and average number of white in rural farm units was 3.58, 3.25 for rural non-farm and 3.08 for urban.

Non-whites occupied 3,554 dwellings and the average family was 4.90 persons on rural farms, 3.84 on rural non-farms and 3.54 in cities.

Prison Camp Life Terrible

London, July 11 (AP)—Conditions in the concentration camp on the Japanese-occupied island of Amboina, in The Netherlands East Indies, were described today as "terrible" by a prominent Hollander who recently escaped and was interviewed here today by Aneta, Dutch news agency.

Suffering among children was particularly acute because of insufficient milk, vegetables and meat, the Hollander said. Lack of medical and hygienic facilities were said to have caused a number of deaths, many by dysentery.

"When I left, conditions were rapidly becoming worse," he declared.

He accused Japanese soldiers of forcing Europeans to sell at the point of bayonet their watches, rings and such articles. Japanese soldiers at night, the Hollander said, frequently entered the common sleeping quarters of the camp's inmates and flashed lights in the faces of women.

"The European women were not attacked, but many natives complain of assaults on their wives," he said.

The Cliffside field near Amarillo, Tex., is estimated to contain more than 2 billion cubic feet of recoverable helium.

British Advance 5 Miles in Drive On Alamein Line

Auchinleck opened his offensive after a nine-day comparative lull while both sides regrouped their forces, brought up reinforcements and felt out each others' strength by mobile column operations.

The British guns, massed toward the coast, opened up a bombardment in the early hours of yesterday.

Planes swept over the Imperial lines to the axis held desert.

Just before dawn, the Imperial forces of tanks, mobile guns and motorized infantry moved suddenly westward, driving into the strongest point of the axis lines.

They advanced steadily but, it was indicated in face of strong opposition, along the railroad which runs west from El Alamein railroad station just west of the town.

Prisoners soon started to pass positions which the Imperial troops had stormed and left dotted with axis dead and wounded.
