

Room and Board . . . By Gene Ahern

changing insults with a truck-driver who refused to give an extra inch of room. The noise to Melissa was incredible; she listened to it, awed and wondered that people could go about their business, indifferent to that terrific roar made up of a thousand and one different sounds.

Work-Out On the fourth morning after her arrival in New York, Melissa appeared at the studio, guided by Ann, for her first rehearsal. Her program was to consist of thirty minutes twice a week; she was to work with a celebrated radio orchestra, with an occasional guest-star.

SHOW BOAT GIRL By ROBERTA COURTLAND

Chapter 26 No Good Randy took out his handkerchief and touched her face with it, wiping the tears gently with a hand that shook a little. He said on a sharp, agonized breath, "Oh, my darling—don't! Don't!" But the next moment he had jerked away from her.

it and dare it to do its worst—and it will purr like a cream-fed kitten. It's just a big bluff—" The taxi managed to fight its way into the stream of north-bound traffic, the driver ex-
