

Lebanon City Council Sets Curfew Hours

Lebanon — The city council this week passed, with an emergency clause, a curfew ordinance which makes it unlawful for minors under 18 years of age to loiter or be upon the streets of Lebanon without proper company after 10 o'clock. The ordinance, which is patterned after that in effect in Salem, holds the parent responsible for any offense committed, and subject to a fine of $10 to $100, or jail sentence of 5 to 30 days, or both.

This was the first council meeting conducted by Lebanon's new mayor, Dr. Peter T. Tweed, who, along with G. N. Gillenwater, councilman from ward 3, both of whom were named to office at the general election, was sworn into office to fill existing vacancies. Under the ordinance the police are empowered to take violators to the city hall and hold them until their parents or guardian comes for them, and if they refuse, they will be subject to arrest under a separate clause of the law.

A second ordinance, prohibiting the sale of newspapers, magazines or literature by boys under 10 or girls under 18 years of age, aimed at curbing the actions of Jehovah's Witnesses, was considered but turned over to the ordinance committee for further study, since the law did not seem to cover the intended purpose.

The ordinance committee was instructed further to study present city laws and to make recommendations for necessary changes or new ordinances to meet the city's needs.

Observation Post Attracts Interest

Mill City — A mass meeting in connection with the work of the observation post was held at the Mill City theatre Wednesday evening. Two army officers from the fourth fighter command headquarters in Portland were present, giving a talk on the various phases of the work. The meeting was well attended, with much interest being shown by the audience.

Moving pictures were shown by R. P. Veness, theatre manager, depicting the way in which observation posts are manned in England. A representative of the Pacific Telephone company was present from the Portland office, highly complimenting the efficient telephone service in Mill City.

The local observation post has recently been remodeled and improved upon in a number of ways to make it more comfortable for the observers. Better equipment has been purchased and installed through the soliciting of materials and money from "non-observers" in town.

Sales of Coffee Halt at Midnight

Lebanon — No coffee will be sold in the retail stores from midnight, Nov. 21 to midnight, Nov. 28 in any consumer, in order that ration of this favorite beverage may be put into effect after that time, the local war price and ration office announced.

Consumers holding war ration book No. 1 for sugar rationing do not need to contact their local board prior to rationing of coffee, but may make their purchases of one pound of coffee per person per month with their sugar ration book.

Institutional users of coffee, including restaurants, hotels and boarding houses, must register on Nov. 23, 24 and 25 at the local office. Quotas will be based on the amount of coffee used during September and October.

Howard Talks Before Forum At Silverton

Silverton — "College training is an essential commodity like rubber, chromium or oil," said Dr. C. A. Howard in his talk before more than fifty guests at the Chamber of Commerce banquet at Toney's last night in telling of the importance of education in war, as a representative from the Oregon state system of higher education.

Dr. Howard substituted for Willard Marks who was ill and could not make the trip here.

J. H. McCullough, president of the forum, introduced the speaker and the members of the general committee on plans, Dr. C. W. Keene, Mrs. Glenn Briedwell and Leonard F. Hudson, were official hosts. Dr. R. E. Kleinsorge of Silverton, a member of the state board of higher education, and latest appointee, was honored guest.

Dr. Howard gave facts and figures as proof of an unmet need in the armed forces for more college trained men, citing the fact that only an average of eight per cent of the general public ever attend college, yet 75 per cent of the initial officer staff comes from this source.

Two outstanding men, Admiral Nimitz, who urged more specially trained men in mathematics and physics, and General Marshall, who said "Mobilization could not have taken place without officers trained by ROTC in colleges and universities," were quoted.

Oregon's contribution, largely because of the excellent unified influence of the plans of the state board, has been from the AERC and other reserves for the 1942-43 enlistments 4000 men out of the 11,000 graduates of the past ten years; 1300 skilled technicians, and 2645 engineers, scientists and managers in hundreds of doctors, nurses, pre-medics, production managers, pharmacists, chemists and physicists with the number of engineers reaching 1200 and many more in training.

The greatest home need is that of teachers for the children who suffer more than the adult realizes by the upset conditions, the speaker claimed, and adequate and sufficient teachers is the drastic need during war times. These teachers must be the product of the higher educational institutions of the state.

Dr. Howard defended the "enlisted reserves" who are attending college for special work in the armed forces and "not to escape war activities as had been a misjudgment against them," he said.

President McCullough announced that this would probably be the only Chamber of Commerce program during the winter months in respect to other activities of more vital nature.

Five Youths Involved In Dynamite Theft

Dallas — Arrested this week by Sheriff E. B. Hooker were five local youths involved in the stealing of 20 sticks of dynamite, 50 caps and 150 feet of fuse from the cement quarry November 9, and the setting off of part of the dynamite near the south Dallas city limits, Armistice eve, two days later.
