West Salem Will Organize Platoons for Field Work

West Salem, June 21—In response to a request from the U. S. employment office Mrs. Drew Michaels, president of the woman's club, has spent the past few days working in the interest of organizing platoons of school children for field work.

According to present plans all children, ten years of age or older, who desire to help harvest the fruit and vegetable crops, are eligible to join the platoons. Transportation and expense of maintaining paid supervisors, who will be in charge of the groups, will be borne by the farmers. Mrs. Emily Van Santen, school principal, and Mrs. Robert Forster, president of the Kingwood Garden club, have thus far been secured as supervisors. These leaders will attend classes especially designed for the purpose of training them in the supervision of such groups of school children.

The women's club, sponsors of the children's employment movement, aim to at this time perfect the organization of platoons in such a manner that they will be prepared to function just as the harvesting of the various crops begins. The harvesting of cherries, which is to begin early in July, is first on the program. Berries, beans and hops will also be included in the field labor schedule.

Buses or trucks will pick up the children at a point within the city limits providing the number of workers is sufficient to warrant this service, so in order to determine how many children will be available for field work under the platoon organization, they are asked to register either Tuesday or Wednesday morning, June 22 and 23, between 9 a.m. and 12 noon with Mrs. Waldo Mercer, 1231 Edgewater street. The registrations must be made in person by either the child or his parent as telephone applications will not be accepted.

The annual school election for district 32 will be held at 8 o'clock this Monday evening, June 21, in the school house. One director for a three-year term and a clerk for a one-year term will be elected. Floyd DeLapp and Mrs. Elmer Cook are the members of the board whose terms expire. Balloting will continue for one hour following the time announced for the opening of the meeting. All legal voters of the district are privileged to vote for board members and upon all other business which may arise. The budget for the following fiscal year, approved June 4 by the budget committee, calls for an estimated annual operating cost of $19,978.76, a total only slightly above that of last year. The increase in operating cost is noted principally in expenditures for supervision and maintenance.
