

Room and Board . . . By Gene Ahern

DEATH of a Saboteur By Hulbert Footner

Chapter 8
Telephone report from Jocelyn D'Arcy.

"Prince Lenkoran is a very liberal spender. He has already made me several handsome presents; I accept them without a qualm because I feel that otherwise the money would be spent in some way to injure my country. He always carries a great sum of money in crisp bills of high denomination and ever since I entered the apartment I have been wondering how he replenished them, since I never see him writing a check or sending to the bank. Last night I found out. As we were going out to dinner he sent me ahead of him out of the living room. I left the door open behind me and I distinctly heard him unlock that strange old painted chest that stands against the wall and afterwards lock it again. That's where he keeps his money."

A written report from Welby: "At 9:20 this morning a man came to see P.L. that we have not seen before since we started watching the place. He is a small thin man. Possibly a foreigner."

"I had a good look at him in the street and then proceeded to the listening post. As usual, conversation was in English. P.L. addressed him as Tashila. Tashila was in the middle of

It is significant that all three are employed in the navy yard. "At 3:15 this afternoon (this seems to be his regular hour), Goroshovel appeared in 53rd Street on his way to report to P.L. Richardson tipped me off and I had the earphones on when he came into P.L.'s living room. "P.L. said: 'Yours is the second most important task that has been entrusted to us. Goroshovel. You have a post of honor and danger. You cannot fail! Offer anything you like for the information we are after. If it turns out not to be worth it, we won't pay. A traitor has no comeback.' "They will not install the appliance amongst all those thousands of workmen in the yard. We can assume that it is being manufactured in some other plant, and will be installed on the carrier when she goes to sea for her trials. At the same time, there are certainly men in the Brooklyn yard who know the nature of it, and there must be a blueprint among the other blueprints. It may take time to get a sight of that blueprint. Meanwhile, make it your business to discover the principle of this new device and we'll forward it to our engineers and let them work on it." "P.L. paid money to Goroshovel—the amount was not named, and Goroshovel got up to go. "In a newspaper correspondent's report of the Battle of the Coral Sea, I noted this statement: "One by one the planes lighted like birds on the deck of the carrier and were quickly stopped by that wonderful new gadget which is the pride of the navy and its most closely-guarded secret. "Perhaps this is what our enemies are after. "As Goroshovel was leaving, I heard something that gave me a shock. P.L. said with a laugh "I'm going to ask Amos Lee Mappin here to dinner on Monday of next week and I want you to be present." Goroshovel laughed in an ugly fashion. Mr. Mappin, if this gang is on to you, you are in serious danger! You mustn't attend this dinner!" (To be continued)

Finds Parents Safe on Makin (P)—Lt. Bruno Raymond (center), Royal Australian naval volunteer reserves, born on Gilbert islands, found his father, Moritz, and mother, Maria, safe on Makin island after American troops had cleaned out that Gilbert stronghold. His parents had been living on the island as virtual prisoners of the Japs. He hadn't seen them for nine years. Raymond is now attached to the U. S. navy as a pilot.
