

Rogers Wins Reappointment

Reappointment of A. A. Rogers as state superintendent of banks was announced by the state banking board following a brief session here this morning. The decision to reappoint Rogers, first named to the post in 1939, was unanimous, Governor Earl Snell said.

Rural Homes Are Destroyed

Dayton, Ore., Dec. 21—Fire of undetermined origin Saturday completely destroyed the six-room farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Coburn near Dayton. It had recently been rebuilt. Nothing was saved from the second story, and only the light furniture and a part of other belongings were salvaged from the first story.

Mrs. Coburn and three small daughters were alone at the time and she was preparing breakfast when she discovered the fire in the kitchen attic. Mr. Coburn left Friday with a group of Mexican laborers for a wood cutting project near Forest Grove and has not yet learned of the loss, which is partially covered by insurance.

No one was injured. The three girls are with their maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Orr C. Goodrich, and Mrs. Coburn is with her husband's parents.

The Dayton volunteer fire fighters responded but too late to do any good in quenching the flames.

Amity, Dec. 21—The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Rehl and family east of Amity was burned to the ground Sunday morning. The fire was caused by a defective flue. The fire departments of Amity and McMinnville succeeded in saving the barn, shed, woodhouse, and storeroom of vegetables and fruits. The house and contents were covered by insurance. The farm formerly owned by J. F. Mauser of Amity was bought by Mr. Rehl who moved here from Corvallis recently.

Capital Papers Publish Again

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—War labor board intervention today restored daily newspaper publication in the national capital after a 24-hour suspension.

Presses stood idle in four publishing plants yesterday as members of the Columbia Typographical Union—denying they were on strike—conducted a continuous union meeting in connection with wage adjustment negotiations with the Washington Publishers' Association which had failed to result in an agreement.

The meeting prevented printers from reporting at their shops and the Morning Washington Post and Morning Times-Herald were able to get out only skimpy Monday editions. The Evening Star and the Evening News were unable to publish at all and a federal conciliator certified the matter to WLB as a labor dispute.

WLB promptly ordered a return to work and the union voted 158 to 85 early this morning to go back on the job and resume the wage negotiations. Union President Jesse B. Manbeck announced, however, that the continuous union meeting would be resumed in 48 hours unless "tangible" results were forthcoming in that time.

Both the Post and the Times-Herald got out late morning editions today, practically normal in size, and normal afternoon publication was resumed by the Star, afternoon Times-Herald and News.

Manbeck said the printers were asking a $1.33 a day increase, with an hourly minimum of $1.65, asserting these workers were entitled to such an adjustment under the "little steel" formula. The present minimum is $1.47 an hour. He said the publishers had ordered to raise this minimum to $1.57, with additional compensation for night work.
