Plan to Expand Bonneville

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt told congress today that it was planned to extend the Bonneville power administration's transmission lines to 2,321 circuit miles during the year ending next June 30 and increase the number of sub-stations to 50.

He said in his annual budget message that by the end of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1945, they would have been extended to at least 2,504 miles of transmission lines and 53 sub-stations. He said the construction program in the 1945 fiscal year is estimated at $7,135,000.

The president asked congress to authorize the use to $3,734,000 from funds previously appropriated for construction purposes for operation and maintenance of the electric system and facilities and for marketing of power.

He said revenues from sale of electricity from the Bonneville and Grand Coulee developments in Washington and Oregon in the 1943 fiscal year were $11,899,198 and it was estimated they would amount to $18,000,000 in the 1944 fiscal year and $21,800,000 in the 1945 fiscal year.

New Service Draft Doomed

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Chairman Robert R. Reynolds (D., N.C.), of the senate military affairs committee, predicted today that national service legislation requested by President Roosevelt was doomed without even a test of strength on the senate floor.

He doubted his committee would ever approve and send to the floor the pending labor draft bill which its author, Sen. Warren R. Austin (R., Vt.), believes would meet the president's request.

Reynolds' forecast encouraged organized labor in its opposition to the proposed labor draft.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred for nearly two hours yesterday with Presidents William Green of the American Federation of Labor and Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and apparently failed to win their support. The labor leaders refused to discuss the conference, but said they were standing on earlier statements which denounced national service legislation.

A partial poll of the committee by the United Press indicated that Reynolds' guess was well-founded.
