TRAVELER'S TALES

By J. H. Willitt of The Capital Drug Store

Even in war time civilians must travel and always they bring back tales of discomfort, food shortages, delayed meals and of excessive crowding.

All of these things drain away energy but it can be restored quickly, efficiently and economically. The use of vitamins by travelers is becoming widespread as people understand this simple method of maintaining a balanced diet.

A sandwich, a thermos bottle, a little fruit, a selected vitamin capsule will tide you over an uncomfortable trip and bring you to your destination in good order.

Seek a doctor's advice in your selection of vitamins. Or save his time by consulting a trusted druggist. He will explain to you the advantages of vitamins of fine quality.

This is the 312nd of a series of Editorial advertisements appearing in The Capital Journal each Friday.

stormtroopers AMERICAN STYLE

The surging power must go through:
for power on the home front produces firepower on the fighting front.
When storm-driven snow and ice pile inches thick
on slender copper wires and snap these arteries of fighting power and drag to the ground long lines of poles, PGE's linemen become stormtroopers in the best American tradition.
At peril to their safety they force their way through the ice-laden gale, wrap steel cables around fallen poles and hoist them upright;
then chip their sharp-pointed climbers through the ice-crust
and mount the slippery poles and refasten
the new-spliced strands of copper.

PGE proudly salutes its 250 linemen—those troopers of the storm who willingly accept the wartime assignment of keeping more than fifteen thousand miles of power lines in service, carrying a quarter-million horsepower of energy to scores of vital war plants and to twenty thousand food-for-victory farms in a PGE-served territory bigger than the State of Connecticut.
For—the surging power must go through.
