Outcome of a friendly lawsuit instituted by the Oregon Business and Tax Research, Inc., of Portland will have no effect upon the budget of the Salem school district, Connell Ward, clerk and manager stated Monday. The local budget was set up on a basis that did not take into consideration the validity of house bill 403, passed by the recent legislature which is being tested in the courts. It is alleged in the complaint that H.B. 403, which amended the Oregon budget law in several respects, and which was signed by the governor, is not the same bill that the legislature enacted because a certain legislative conference committee report was omitted. The taxpayer group brought the suit to determine whether a legislative bill becomes a law in the form signed by the governor or in the form approved by the legislature.

Portland Wins Jaycee Trophy

Portland Junior Chamber of Commerce was winner of the annual Geissenber trophy award as the chamber with the year's outstanding record of accomplishments in the annual conference here that closed Sunday afternoon.

Basis of the award was the record made in membership, finance, civic activities, recreational activities, junior chamber relationships, extension and publicity. The expansion award for the year went to the junior chamber of Klamath Falls.

In the annual election of state officers Lee Stidd of Portland was the choice of the conference for president, succeeding of Lofton L. Tatum of Portland who was elected a national director. Other officers elected were: vice presidents, Merle Nash of Eugene, Marvin Hixon of Klamath Falls, and Vern Van Vranken of La Grande; secretary, Bruce Gilbert of Bend; treasurer, Victor Milnes of Medford.

Steps were taken by wives of junior chamber members to organize a state auxiliary, the women meeting at a breakfast at the Marion hotel. Mrs. Wilfred Jossey of Bend was elected temporary secretary. The suggestion was made that auxiliary chapters be formed in all cities having junior chambers.

After adjournment many of the visitors visited Oregon State penitentiary and the state forestry buildings. Attendance was larger than at many previous state conferences.

City Budget Offers Problem

How the city is going to meet the question of firemen's pensions is one of the serious problems to come before the Salem budget committee which holds its first meeting tonight, just prior to the city council meeting.

Requested for pensions is a $22,000 item in the tentative budget, which seems to be an impossible figure in view of necessary cuts to come within the 6 percent tax limitation.

Two proposals were heard today. One of these was to bring in a bill for repeal of the firemen's pension act, and let the state pension act passed by the recent legislature take care of the situation. Another was to reduce the $22,000 to about $2000, or just enough to meet possible firemen retirements this year, and then invoke the state act.

The state act applies to all public employees. Municipalities automatically come under the state act unless the government body rejects it. In municipalities where there is an existing pension act, as in Salem, the state act can be used by contract between municipality and state.

Should a move be made to repeal the Salem firemen's pension act the intention would be to have it voted on at the June 22 special election.

Sub-committees on budget items will report at the meeting.

States Can Void Reno Divorces

Washington, May 21 (U.P.)—The supreme court held today that each state may decide for itself whether to recognize the validity of the six-weeks residence under which Nevada grants divorces.

The 6 to 3 ruling, written by Justice Felix Frankfurter, affirmed the convictions of a Pineola, N. C., couple for "bigamous cohabitation."

The couple—O. B. Williams and Lillie Shaver Hendrix—twice were convicted in North Carolina courts.

The legal entanglement arose after Williams and Mrs. Hendrix went to Nevada in 1940, established residence there for six weeks, obtained uncontested divorces at Las Vegas from former spouses, then got married and returned to North Carolina. The state of North Carolina refused to recognize their Nevada divorces.

The high court upset their first convictions in 1942, holding that it was legal to serve notice by publication on the ex-mates which they left behind. At that time, the court said Nevada divorces were valid.

But the couple was given a new trial in North Carolina and a jury re-adjudged them guilty, this time on grounds that they had not established a bonafide residence in Nevada and that their short stay there constituted a "fraud" on North Carolina. The North Carolina supreme court affirmed the verdict and the case again was appealed to the high court.

Firemen Hear From Vet Sons

John Stettler and Durlough Johnson, both Salem firemen, had surprise telephone calls Thursday from their sons who are in the armed services.

John Stettler, Jr., who has seen service with the marines at Guam, Bougainville, Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima, called his father from San Francisco. Two hours later Thomas G. Stettler called from Oakland. He is in the navy and saw service among other places in the Pacific, in the Marianas. Neither son knew the other had returned to the States until Thomas was informed by their father. So Thursday night they had a reunion at Treasure Island. John, Sr., will leave Sunday night for Oakland to meet both boys.

Cpl. Gerald Johnson, who is in the army air corps, called his father from Hamilton Field, Calif. He has seen 32 months of service in the south Pacific. John Johnson, motor machinist's mate in the navy, called from Shoemaker, Calif. He has had 24 months service in the Pacific. Both boys are returning immediately to service. A third son, Robert Johnson, radarman second class, is with the navy in the Pacific, having seen action at Iwo Jima, Okinawa, and other places.

Overwhelming

set a precedent for such ceremonies.

"Through him (Lindsey) we pay a grateful nation's tribute to the courage of all our fighting men," the president said.

Fought 8 Germans
"The history of this war is filled with countless acts of valor by our soldiers and sailors and marines under fire."

The president pointed out that no officer ordered Lindsey, when wounded, "to engage eight Germans in hand to hand combat."

"Those decisions came from his own heart," the president asserted. "They were a flash of the nobility which we like to think is a part of every American. They were the unselfish valor which can triumph over terrible odds. They were the very essence of victory."

Since the war started, he said, 223 Medals of Honor have been awarded to members of the armed forces, 182 in the army, 33 in the navy, 27 in the marine corps and one to the coast guard.

50 Die in Battle
Of the 100 infantrymen so honored, 50 died in performing the acts for which they were cited.

"It seems fitting that in this symbolic ceremony we should honor an infantryman," Mr. Truman stated. "There is little glamor in his service. He faces not only the enemy before him, but the cold and heat, the rain and snow, the dust and mud, which so often make his life miserable. These things he endures, and arises above them to such valorous deeds as those we celebrate today."

The president expressed hope that every man and woman in the nation "will reverently thank God that we have produced such sons as these."

Platoon Leader
Many of the medals have been presented at White House ceremonies, but that was the first at the capitol with congress present.

Lindsey was a platoon leader in the 16th regiment of the first army's first division when the nazis counter-attacked near Hamich, Germany, last November 16. A fresh company of Germans, aided by five tanks, concentrated the full force of their assault on the remnants of his platoon.

Although wounded in the knee, Lindsey refused to be evacuated. Time and again he repulsed the advancing nazis with his accurate rifle fire. When his ammunition gave out, he fixed his bayonet, and, exposing himself to fire, met the enemy in open terrain.

Closing in, he slashed and stabbed, killing three and capturing three. During the entire action he accounted personally for 20 killed, an untold number of wounded and three captured. He also knocked out two machine guns and captured two others.

Lindsey arrived in New York by plane yesterday from Czechoslovakia. Told of the plans for today's ceremony, he said: "Boy, that's something, holding up the president. I'm sure glad I made it on time."

Carl Hogg has returned from a short visit to his cabin at Paulina lake. He was accompanied by C. Moran, of the Photo Arts studio, Portland.

Blum Marries While Prisoner

Paris, May 21 (U.P.)—Former French Premier Leon Blum was married while jailed by the Germans to a woman who fought her way to his side, he revealed in an interview today.

"After I was deported to Germany, my wife gave the Germans no peace until they granted her permission to come join me," the white-haired socialist leader said. "After her arrival they let us marry. My wife showed iron courage throughout and shared my life of internment."

Blum's first wife died in 1935. His present wife formerly was married to Henri Torres, French lawyer now in the United States.

Blum said the American troops who liberated him and his wife in an Austrian mountain village on May 4 "treated us with a kindness and courtesy we shall never forget."

He said he would resume his post as chief editor of the socialist newspaper Populaire. But he wouldn't discuss his political future.

Japanese Straits Mined by 20 B-29s

Guam, May 21 (U.P.)—Tokyo reported that 20 B-29 Superfortresses mined Kannon Strait between northern Kyushu and southern Honshu for two hours early today.
