Children's Room Draws at Library

With mermaids, fishnets, and various denizens of the deep, the Children's Room at the Salem public library has created the proper atmosphere for its summer reading program, the Bookerman club. This activity replaces for the summer the story times held during the winter months. The club is open to all children from the first grade to high school. As soon as a child reads and reports on his first book, he is a member; he puts a fish bearing the name of the book on his own personal "sea" as he reads five more books of different kinds, he receives the appropriate fish for each one.

With the sixth book he has completed the project; his name is put on a larger fish displayed in the red fish net on the wall; at the end of the summer he will have a certificate of achievement and be a guest at a party held for the successful members.

Already a number of readers have completed their undertaking, and more are joining the club and coming near to their final reports every day.

Light Vote Indicated in Special Election Friday

By Harry Crain
Notwithstanding the importance of the two measures for consideration of which the election was called, experienced political observers will be surprised if more than 30 percent of Oregon's half million qualified electors go to the polls tomorrow. Basing their estimates on the experience of special elections in the past, they are pretty well agreed that not more than 25 to 30 percent of the voters will show up at the polling places.

Interest in local issues being submitted simultaneously to city voters here and there may stimulate the voting pace in some localities. In Portland the question of acquiring property for a civic center as a post-war project has engendered some heat that may be reflected in the turnout there. Likewise the Bush Pasture park site question and an electric power franchise fight may be the incentive to call out a larger number of voters here.

Voting will be open to all registered voters at regular precinct polling places throughout

S.U.V. Camp Fire Wednesday Event

An interesting feature of the annual Sons of Union Veterans auxiliary state convention, held in Salem Wednesday and Thursday, was the annual Camp Fire, which was held with the Sons of Union Veterans last night following a dinner at the Evangelical church.

Glenn Adams was chairman of the program committee and arranged the following program: readings by Mrs. Addie Curtis; history of the flag by L. L. Baker of Eugene; songs by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin of Portland, who wore costumes of the Civil War period; humorous skit by Mrs. Francis Smith and members of the Eugene auxiliary; Dr. L. E. Barrick and his quartet in a group of numbers; an address by Supreme Court Justice Arthur Hay, whose topic was "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

involve any increase in taxes. The cigarette tax measure for the support of public schools has lacked any active sponsorship, and has had only lukewarm backing from teachers, parent-teacher groups and school boards. Its defeat will surprise no one.

Locally, the outcome of the balloting on the Bush Pasture purchase question and the Salem Electric franchise measure hinges almost entirely on the size of the vote cast. The heavier the vote the better are the chances of the park proposal and of defeat of the franchise.

Vote for STATE BUILDING FUND

The special election June 22 gives the people of Oregon an opportunity to vote on a measure that means much to the future of the State and its citizens, particularly its returning war veterans. Approval of the measure will establish a post-war building fund of $10,000,000 of which $4,000,000 will be for higher education and $6,000,000 for other state buildings. This fund will insure adequate facilities for veterans, make possible long overdue improvements to the general state institutions, and provide a sizable employment project when war workers are released. Present tuberculosis hospitals are inadequate. In normal times there is a long waiting list for admittance. More adequate facilities will be provided for the training of doctors, whose services are sorely needed. These can be done without increasing taxes, even though the measure authorizes a so-called property levy to produce $5,000,000 in 1946 and a like amount in 1947. That is because the income tax in Oregon was created for property tax relief and funds from it can be used for no other purpose without a vote of the people. The bill provides a levy against real property merely to permit utilizing the income tax surplus. Thus the measure will not mean the collection of any additional real estate taxes. It will not mean any additional income taxes either, because the legislature provided for the surplus to be held in a reserve fund if the building measure fails to pass.

BACKED BY LEADERS THROUGHOUT THE STATE

Will not cost you one cent in property tax and will not increase income tax rates

Governor and Legislators Approve "Careful consideration by the recent legislature results in almost unanimous passage of this measure. The Governor approved and signed it. It is a constructive program for a growing state." Senator Dean Walker and Representatives Giles French and Burt K. Snyder.	Needed Improvements Can Be Had Without Increasing Tax Rates "The need is urgent for added educational facilities and for improvement and replacement of other state institutions. These can be completed without increasing present income tax rates, and without placing additional burdens on real property." Hon. Howard C. Bolton, President, Oregon State Senate.	Will Not Increase Property Tax "We are clearly of the opinion that the proposed tax levy of $10,000,000 for a state building fund... will not be levied on property in any part, but will be fully paid from state income tax revenues." "We can see no reason that the proposed tax should have any effect whatever on income tax rates or exemptions." Charles V. Galloway, Earl B. Day, Earl L. Fisher, State Tax Commission.
Will Not Raise Real Property Or State Income Tax Later "Again and again property owners must be reminded that the $10,000,000 for state institution buildings so critically needed, will be paid for by State Income Tax revenue. It will not in any way raise the rates either for the real property tax or for the State Income Tax." F. H. Young, Manager, Oregon Business & Tax Research, Inc.	Deserves Support of All Citizens "The program submitted by the legislature which will not increase taxes but is merely a method of putting to use funds now frozen in the treasury, deserves the support of all citizens." The Oregonian.	Cannot Fall On Property "It is a tax that was not intended to fall on property and cannot fall on property, for it is clearly provided in the bill that it is a levy to be offset, as are other state taxes, by funds derived from taxes on or measured by net incomes." Oregon Voter.
