authorized to write to the council in behalf of the action taken by the club.

Talks were made by several members on the advantages the city would receive from such a park: James H. Livesay, who for many years lived on Settlemier avenue and saw the nursery stock grow to its present size, stated that many of the ornamental trees are now from 12 to 14 inches in diameter and when the underbrush is cleared out would make an ideal park. Such a grove, he stated would take 30 to 40 years to grow, and the site also has the benefit of being close to the central part of town.

It was suggested that members of the Garden club each be responsible for the planting and care of flowers if the park is accepted.

A number of others spoke in favor of the proposition. Mrs. Roy Seely told of the larger number of young boys who pass through the grain fields of the Seely farm each summer, walking six miles in order to find a place to swim.
