Lloyd Riches Heads Group

Lloyd Riches, vice-president and general manager of Western Paper Converting company, Salem, was elected president of Columbia Empire Industries, Inc., at a meeting of the board of directors Thursday, succeeding Thomas C. Young, president of Pacific Roofing company, who leaves the organization with the largest membership in its history.

Other officers elected were: First vice-president, Phil E. Hodel, president, Huntington Rubber mills, Portland; second vice-president, J. A. Brewster, manager, Chase Bag company, Portland, and secretary-treasurer, Henry H. Pein, Pein Box company, Portland.

Riches pointed out that the objective of the organization for the year calls for the resumption of the association's prewar program of publicizing the industries and products of the Columbia Empire area; continued interest in national and state legislation which affects industry and labor affairs and closer attention to business and labor trends, not with the idea of negotiating contracts, but to keep informed on problems that arise between management and labor.

$300,000 Asked In Oyster Suit

Portland, Dec. 21 — Twenty-four residents of Oregon and Ira Padrick, a Californian, have been made defendants in a suit filed in federal court by the Tidelands Development company of Seattle for $300,000 damages, alleged to have been caused by "false and malicious statements intended to ruin the oyster business of plaintiff."

Oregon defendants named are: Charles B. Davis, Walter Winslow, W. C. Cate, Warren Gray, George Coffey, Ernest Werner, Cornelius Stuy, Alvin Manning, Ralph Dodson, Ralph Shepard, George Weirich, J. A. Ryan, George Beckner, Fred A. Roberts, Clarence Moser, Ernest Hoisington, William T. Hatteberg, Lowry H. West, C. M. LaFollet, Claralee Hargrave, Guy E. Ervin, Joe J. Walker, F. I. Folsom and Ray Joslin.

In pursuit of this objective, it is alleged, the defendants stated to many purchasers of oyster beds that titles to the beds offered by plaintiff were not merchantable, that plaintiff could not deliver title to the property.

It is also charged that defendants falsely stated that the beds were worthless and that the federal and state governments would not permit oysters from the beds to be marketed.

Give Your Old Table Linen a Gleaming Finish for Christmas

ALTHOUGH new table linen is beginning to appear on store shelves, it is still scarce and most of us will have to be content with our old supply for at least a little longer.

Don't despair of a gleaming white Christmas table, however; just ferret out the nicest cloths and napkins you have and give them a special laundering for their big holiday appearance.

First of all remove any spots and then proceed with the washing. Whether you use a washing machine or a tub, you can be sure of streamlined results if you add bluing flakes with the soap to build up a good two to three inch suds. This method of bluing automatically while you wash helps insure gleaming whiteness and brighter looking colors without danger of bluing streaks, and it cuts down laundering time because it makes a special bluing job unnecessary.

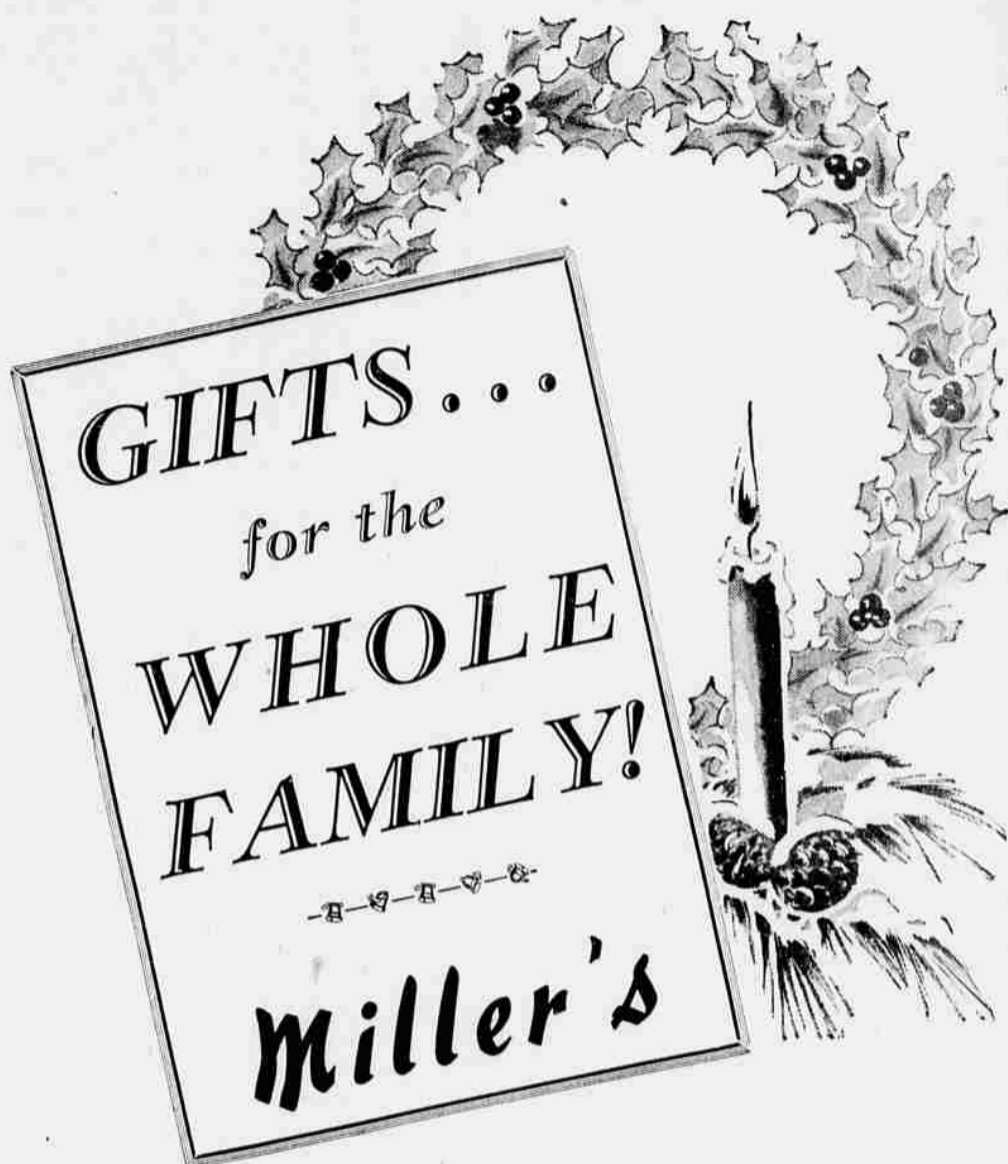

Most of your table linen should not be starched. But some doilies look best when slightly stiffened. Add a specially prepared wax-like product to the starch to keep the iron from sticking and pulling and to give the doilies a lustrous sheen.

Shake all linen out to get rid of as many wrinkles as possible before drying. Smooth out the hems on tablecloths after you have hung them up.

You can fold tablecloths for ironing before they are completely dry, or else let them dry and sprinkle them. Even starched doilies, when the wax-like product is added to the starch, may be ironed without danger of sticking before they are completely dry.

Fold tablecloths once lengthwise, selvage to selvage, right side out, and iron first on one side, then on the other. Be sure the cloth is perfectly dry before putting it away. If you have a roller for your big cloths, roll each one as soon as it is ironed. If not, fold it again lengthwise and then crosswise until it is of the right shape to put away; but do not press in the other folds. Ironed creases do not lie as flat on the table as unironed folds.

Iron all napkins first on the wrong side, then on the right. If they are initialed, place a Turkish towel under the letters and iron on the wrong side until dry. Fold napkins neatly and evenly, and press folds with the iron.
