Labor Demand Missing From Polk Farmers

Dallas — The "no vacancy" sign is hanging out at the Dallas farm labor office.

Ray Kliever, farm labor assistant, reveals that for the first time since he took the position upon returning from service with Company L in the South Pacific he has no orders on file from farmers seeking laborers.

Hop growers all have full crews and are satisfied. Permanent farm jobs are all filled. Seasonal harvest work will not begin until nearly a month yet. Kliever expects no heavy demands for labor until about July 1 when cherry growers put out their S. O. S. for pickers to harvest bumper crops anticipated and cane berries ripen about the same time.

Undoubtedly the figurative "no vacancy" sign will come down at that time.
