More Cherry Growers Than Pickers were available at the Farm Labor employment office at 6:30 Friday morning. These growers, with hundreds of tons of fruit on their trees, are threatened with heavy loss unless many more cherry pickers become immediately available.

More Cherry Growers Than Pickers Found in Salem

More cherry growers than cherry pickers were on hand at the Farm Labor employment service, 261 Chemeketa street, at 6:30 o'clock this morning when Polk and Marion orchardists, confronted with rapidly ripening fruit and an acute shortage of help, came down to plead with workers to go out and pick cherries, even for one day.

One grower with 13 acres, and authorized to pay 4½ cents a pound to get his fruit harvested, left without any help. Others needing 30 or more pickers were considered fortunate if they could induce two or three men, women or children to be seated in their transportation. So numerous were the growers present that they mistook one another for pickers and solicited their assistance.

Unless more orchard help becomes available tons of cherries probably will spoil on the trees. Recent hot weather has ripened fruit in different levels without much distinction for elevation and at the moment the equation amounts to more fruit urgently in need of harvest than there are pickers. Cherries in lowland orchards are already beginning to sunburn.

Every effort is being made by the farm labor office to induce pickers to report for work. Radio and newspaper advertising has been tried in metropolitan areas. So far the results have been meager and growers, hopeful that favorable results might be obtained, are now beginning to realize that they will probably suffer heavy losses because of unpicked cherries.

Acquires Rodin Bronze

St. Louis (U.P.)—The City Art Museum has announced the purchase of Auguste Rodin's famous life-sized bronze, "St. John the Baptist," for $15,580. The statue is generally conceded to be Rodin's finest example of realistic movement.

Stocks Advance Irregularly

New York, June 21 (AP)—Bargain hunters stepped into another "thin" stock market today and rallied a wide assortment of yesterday's weak issues fractions to 3 or more points on expanding volume.

While scattered losers were in evidence at the close, the rallying column was well populated. Transfers were around 1,400,000 shares. Steels, motors, rubbers and "blue chips" were prominent on the upward swing.

Hupp Motors turned active on the advance when it was announced former President Knudsen of General Motors had been elected a director of the company. Eastman Kodak got back about half of the two-day slump of 27½ points.

Prominent on the revival were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Baltimore & Ohio, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, American Telephone, Kennecott, Du Pont and Electric Power & Light.

Talk of a "buyers' strike" in stocks persisted as a cautionary influence and numerous customers held aloof to await price control developments, more light on business prospects and international affairs.

Bonds were lower.

Peat, believed the earliest stage in the evolution of coal, is found in bogs.

Good Time to Cut Branches

The cherry picking season offers the cherry tree owner an opportunity to remove dead, broken and inaccessible branches at a most convenient time, according to Ben A. Newell, assistant county agent. By removing this surplus wood the owner not only makes picking easier but also contributes to the vigor of the tree. Dead and broken limbs are always a source of disease and may devitalize the tree.

Removal of inaccessible branches in the high cherry trees so common in the urban areas presents a special problem. In order to avoid bruising and mashing the cherries on these branches, Newell believes it best to make several small cuts rather than one large one. Large loaded branches are very unwieldy whereas small pruned branches may be handled with a minimum loss of fruit. A rope can often be used to lower a pruned branch to the ground.

One final word of advice in this harvest time pruning is to make clean pruning cuts by using a sharp saw and shears. Large branches should always be undercut. A large branch will split off harmlessly if the cut on the lower side is about six to eight inches closer to the top of the branch than the upper cut. The small stub remaining can then be sawed off.

Cuts over one and one-half inches in diameter should be allowed to dry and then be painted with "Tree Seal," "Tree Heal" or some other wound covering preparation.

Rains Spared Royal Anns But Bings Show Cracking

Royal Ann cherry deliveries, which are under way in good shape this week, are furnishing a good line on recent rain damage with but few cracks showing up in that type of cherry. But Bings show the effects very markedly in those going over the delivery docks at Willamette Cherry Growers association plant where, for the next 30 days or so, cherries will be going over the scales in vast tonnages each night.

Cherries are now coming off the lower level orchards which will be picking for 10 days or so.

No chances are being taken on wormy cherries and a group of experts is keeping a careful check for the first sign of the unwanted pest.

With cherry fly control being placed on a stringent basis the first time this year, there are hopes that the great bulk of one of the valley's finest crops can be saved. It is pretty certain that if any worms do show up they are not going to get far past the receiving docks or into the barrels. The state pure food department has charge of sleuthing for worms.

Cherries received by the Willamette Cherry Growers all go into barrels brined. There they are held until after harvest and later are pitted for the maraschino trade in the main. This keeps the plant in operation virtually the year around and constitutes one of the biggest cherry deals on the coast.

Trade Board Ups Margins

Chicago, Ill., June 21 (U.P.)—Moderate commission house selling broke three oats deliveries loose from ceilings on the board of trade today but short covering furnished sufficient support to bring all deliveries back to the maximum levels.

The new higher margin requirements which went into effect today were believed to have brought mild liquidation into the market. Some of the selling was attributed to continued favorable crop reports. Corn and barley futures remained inactive at ceiling prices bid.

The board of trade clearing house upped margin requirements on corn and barley to 50 cents from their previous ten cent levels and raised the oats margin to 12 cents. The measure was effective on clearing reports dated today.

The considerable improvement in winter wheat crop prospects noted in the government's special crop report was not unexpected as many traders had predicted an increase. Rains in the northwest may help counteract a 26,000,000 bushels drop in the spring wheat estimate.

1946 Pig Crop Down 6 Percent

Washington, June 21 (U.P.)—The agriculture department estimated today that the 1946 pig crop would total 81,500,000 head, a decrease of about six percent from last year and the smallest since 1940.

The estimate was based on an actual spring pig crop of 52,324,000 head and an anticipated fall crop fo 29,176,000 head. The fall estimate was based on farmers' fall farrowing intentions.

The report foreshadowed a continued shortage of pork and pork products at least deep into next summer. Last year's pig crop totaled 86,714,000 head, including a fall crop of 35,144,000 and a spring crop of 51,570,000.

The department said the estimated number of hogs over six months old on farms as of June 1 was 22,959,000 head—a decrease of 10 percent or 2,600,000 head from a year ago.

Feed Shortage Still Acute

State Agriculture Director E. L. Peterson, asserting the feed shortage is as serious as ever, charged today that reports from the production and marketing administration that feed is moving into Oregon are "misleading and fallacious."

Peterson said he has been able to account for only seven carloads of feed moving into Oregon.

"Receipts have been so few as to have been of little or no effect," Peterson said. "Likewise, the protein supply picture is equally serious. Of June set-aside stocks committed to Oregon, only 820 tons have been accounted for."

He said he is complaining again to the grain branch of the federal department of agriculture, which he said told him last February that average monthly receipts would be maintained near 3000 tons.

"All we have had so far is promises which the facts quite clearly indicated could not be fulfilled when they were made," Peterson continued. "The U. S. department of agriculture is deliberately confusing both the feed trade and producers so any direct relief may be avoided until new harvest is available."

"The sad part of the whole situation is that the government itself holds wheat which could be used to relieve the feed shortage at least for poultry, and this without jeopardizing the famine relief export program.

"Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, his undersecretary Mr. Dodd and President Truman have the full facts concerning this matter. Failure to act can only be interpreted as punitive action directed, so far as we are concerned, directly at our producers."

Northwest Dairyman Sells 88 Guernseys

Medford, June 21 (AP)—C. A. Smith, owner of dairies here and at Vancouver, Wash., said today he had sold his Medford herd of 88 registered Guernseys to the San Carlos Dairy of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Rising costs, he said, prompted discontinuance of his dairy here but he added that he would retain his Vancouver herd.
