

BRIDE of Friday evening was Miss Clarice Busselle, daughter of Mrs. Lloyd Demarest and E. T. Busselle of Tacoma. She exchanged her marriage vows with Fred S. Anunson, Jr., son of Fred S. Anunson and the late Mrs. Anunson.

The rites were exchanged at 8 o'clock at the First Congregational church with Rev. Lewis White officiating.

Miss Mary Ann Brady, Pi Beta Phi sorority sister of the bride, sang before the ceremony. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Bedford. Lighting the altar tapers were two recently wed Pi Beta Phis, Mrs. Lawrence Feldschau and Mrs. Leighton Fairham.

Ted Busselle gave his sister in marriage. Her gown was of white marquisette, designed with a round neck, lace yoke and bishop sleeves. From a fitted waistline fell a lace panelled full skirt with a short train. Her floor length, lace edged veil fell from a crown of seed pearls. Stephanotis, gardenias centered with white orchids formed her bridal bouquet.

Miss Carmen Campbell, a Pi Phi, wearing a pastel pink marquisette with bishop sleeves, a fitted bodice and round neckline, was maid of honor. Her skirt was ruffled down the front, rising on either side to a bustle effect in the back. She carried a bouquet of white gladioluses and pink bouvardia and wore a diamond coronet in her hair.

Miss Donna Shafer, in pastel blue and Miss Lorraine Murdock, in pastel rose, were bridesmaids. Their marquisette gowns were designed with sweetheart necklines, bishop sleeves, fitted bodices and full skirts. They carried bouquets of Rubram lilies combined with pink and white bouvardia, wearing matching coronets in their hair.

Robert G. Brady, Jr., stood with Mr. Anunson as best man. Ushers were Donald Reiger, Landy Franzen, Edward Herman and Charles Wilkner.

Mrs. Demarest chose for her daughter's nuptials a white gown accented with purple and American Beauty. In her hair she wore a coronet of fuchsias.

In the white-flowered fireplace room, where the reception was held, Mrs. James Lewis acted as hostess. Mrs. F. W. Ginn of Astoria, the bride's aunt, cut the wedding cake, and pouring was Mrs. I. N. Bacon. Serving the ices was Miss Beryl Holt. Presiding at the punch bowl was Miss Thelma Wilcox.

Assisting and serving were Mrs. Douglas Baker, Miss Darlene Simmons, Miss Sara Ann Ohling, Miss Mary Ann Wittliff of Astoria and Miss Bernice Bowers of Dallas.

Passing the dream cake was Miss Barbara Aspinwall.

Mrs. Anunson wore a white gown with grey, salmon and lime fish in print, topped with white coat to which she pinned white orchids. Her accessories were white.

Jottings by Jean

Bay City Minded: Seemingly Salemites are drawn south for vacation—and even work—time . . . Mr. and Mrs. Willard Marshall and her mother, Mrs. Walter Stolz, and Martha and Julia had a wonderful two weeks in the glamorous city . . . registered at the Mark Hopkins, they saw and did everything, even going down to Stanford and Berkeley to see the campuses . . . they almost saw Mrs. John Simkin, well-known former Salem resident, now living there . . . but either the travelers' visiting schedules or hers were full . . . several long phone chats were had, though, catching up on doings of friends both here and there . . .

Tiny Girl: It was always thought, at least by this fashion-minded female, that the ladies of yesteryear were much, much smaller than their modern-day counterparts . . . always in our mind is the measurement—about 16 inches—of Scarlett O'Hara's waist . . . but Marian McCormack, who last Saturday was married to Weld Wilkie, exactly fitted her grandmother's wedding gown of 58 years ago . . . which should be something with which to reply to any pronouncements that modern girls have lost some of their femininity by being so healthy . . .

Amity San Francisco: Jane MacLachlan, who recently was in Salem following her discharge from the Waves, has found no shortage of jobs in California . . . she applied with United Airlines, thinking perhaps they "could put her on a list" for further reference, and lo and behold, she was offered so many different types of interesting and lucrative jobs that she went to Los Angeles for a week to decide which would be best . . . that's an encouraging note for anyone who might be thinking of leaving South to work . . .

On the Other Side: Mr. and Mrs. Leo Childs, who just returned from a visit with their daughter, Betty, working down there, report that living conditions are getting more and more difficult, however, though jobs are plentiful . . . seems that before one even scouts for a job, one should look for a permanent place to hang one's hat . . .

MRS. THOMAS EVERETT MAY of Carmel, Calif., guest of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McKay, will be honored Monday afternoon when her husband and Mrs. G. Frederick Chambers entertain with an informal tea at the McKay home in Jervis street.

Presiding the urns will be Mrs. George Alexander, and assisting will be Mrs. Roy S. Keene, Mrs. William Phillips and Mrs. E. M. Page.

Several other informal events have been planned for the visitor.

Mrs. E. C. Flegel, in town for the weekend after several weeks at the beach, will be honored guest Monday noon when Mrs. Linn C. Smith entertains with an informal luncheon at her home in Chemeketa street.

Salem chapter of the American War Mothers will meet Tuesday afternoon from 2 o'clock until 5, at the home of Mrs. Mabel Lockwood, 388 North Liberty.

The Zielinski family reunion will be held in the Silverton city park Sunday, June 21. President of the group is Joe Zielinski of Salem and secretary is Mrs. Mildred Henny of Brooks.

WED LAST FRIDAY evening in the fireplace room of the First Presbyterian church were Miss Jean Driggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Driggs, and Clifford Luehrs, son of Mrs. O. G. Luehrs. He has re-entristed in the army and the pair, now on a wedding trip at the Oregon beaches, are awaiting his orders. (Jesten-Miller studio)
